their cause of action arising when the Municipal Commissioners refused to remove the stones. Defendants case was that the land had been in possession of Government till Bengal Act III of 1864 was extended to Howrah since which time the Commissioners had held the land. Held that the plaintiffs cause of action could not be considered to have first arisen on the refusal of the Municipality to remove the stones. Held (by BAYLEY J) that the Municipal Commissioners had acted properly under the law and were entitled to the application of s 87 Bengal Act III of 1864. Held (by PHILLIPS J) that s 87 could only protect defendants if sued for damages consequent on a wrong done by them in the reasonable belief that they were exercising their lawful powers not if they were sued by parties kept out of possession by their continued wrong-doing. POORNO CHUNDER ROY v BALFOUR 9 W R. 535 his paddy field by erecting a fence at either end of it. It was found that the public had a right of way over the path and the lower Courts convicted the accused of an offence under that clause. In revision it was contended that the conviction was bad as the clause could only refer to a road which had vested in the Municipal Commissioners. Held for the above reasons that the conviction was right and must be upheld. PAM CHANDRA GHOSH v. BENGAL MUNICIPAL ACT (III OF 1884)—concluded

Chairman of the Motihari Municipality I L R 17 Cal 321 approved. A landowner on whose land a market had been held for some years previous and which land lay within the bounds of a municipality was prosecuted under s. 344 of the Bengal Municipal Act and convicted and fined for using such market without having obtained a license under s. 338. He alleged that he had applied for a license, and that it had not been granted him and that the neglect to grant it was due to the fact that his market interfered with a new market established by the Municipal Commissioners and their desire to close his market. It appeared that some time previous to the institution of the prosecution the Municipal Commissioners at a meeting passed a resolution that the provisions of s. 337 of the Municipal Act (Bengal Act III of 1884) be extended to this municipality and it was contended that by this resolution licenses became necessary to sell at any market any of the provisions mentioned in that section and that selling without such license rendered the accused liable to prosecution and fine under s. 344. It appeared further that Part V of the Act which includes s. 337 had been previously extended to the municipality by an order of the Government of Bengal. Held that the resolution of the Commissioners was not an order such as is contemplated by s. 337 as it was not sufficiently precise to convey any definite meaning and purported only to do what the Bengal Government had already done some time previously. Held further that the conviction and sentence must be set aside there being no proper order under s. 337. QUEEN EMPRESS v. Assessment of land formerly occupied for Government salt works
—Upon the relinquishment by the Government of lands within the ambit of a permanently settled zamindari continuously used before and since the perpetual settlement of salt works from the commencement of salt making by the Government until after the passing of Regulation I of 1874 the provisions of that Regulation are applicable to the mutual rights of the zamindar and of the Government. Such lands were held by the officers of the Salt Department in terms of cl 11 of that Regulation free of rent and under a perpetual title of occupancy whether belonging to a permanently settled estate or not. The force of the Regulation and the right of the Government to assess such lands are not affected by khalsari payments having been made among other compensations by the Government to the zamindar; and cl 11 appears to contemplate some such payment. On a settlement of the relinquished lands khalsari payments being sums remitted to the zamindars and to be allowed in perpetuity within the meaning of cl 4 of s. 9 of Regulation I of 1824 must be continued to the zamindar; for if a settlement should be made with others he should be assessed only for the

4. — Suit to recover excess of rent—Act X of 1859 ss 10 and 23 cl 2—Exaction of sum in excess of rent—Contemporaneously with the execution of a pottah it was verbally agreed that the tenant should supply the zamindar with a certain quantity of rice and that a deduction should be made from the rent reserved in respect thereof. The zamindar took proceedings against the tenant under Regulation VIII of 1819 for the recovery of the entire amount of rent notwithstanding the tenant had supplied the rice and was entitled to the reduction. The tenant without contesting his liability or demanding an investigation as to the amount due paid the entire amount. Held that this was not "an exaction from the rayat of a sum in excess of the rent specified in the pottah within the meaning of s 10 Act X of 1859 (Bengal Act VIII of 1869 s 11) and that a suit was not maintainable in respect of it under the Rent Act. CHUNDER MOHUN CHOWDRAI v DEBENDRA NATH ROY CHOW DAI Marsh. 420 2 May, 619

5. — Suit against zamindar for excess rents collected under sur-i-peshgi lease—A zamindar after he had granted a sur-i-peshgi lease collected the rent from the rayats. Held that the lessee was entitled to recover from the zamindar the amount of rents so received in excess of the rent due under the lease and that a suit to recover such excess was properly instituted under the Rent Act. RAMPERSHAD YOGUT v RAM TOHUL SINGH Marsh., 655

6. — Suit to contest notice of enhancement—A suit under s 14 Act X of 1859 (s 15 Bengal Act VIII of 1869) to contest a notice of enhancement is properly instituted under the Rent Act though quære whether it is a suit for illegal exaction of rent. SOROOR CHUNDER PAUL v DURUP DE DOHIAL 1 W R, 72

7. — Suit by sub lessee to recover from lessor malikana which he was compelled to pay—A suit brought by a sub-lessee to recover from his lessor the amount of malikana which he was compelled to pay and which was properly payable by his lessor is not one for illegal exaction of rent and should not be brought under the Rent Act. TARAKAN v KADHAKY LAL 5 N W, 1

8. — Suit for rent illegally exacted—Plaintiff took from defendant a lease of a certain quantity of land at a stipulated rate finding however that the land fell short of the quantity specified in the lease and that defendant not withstanding realized the full rent from him he obtained a decree for abatement under Act X of 1859. The present suit was brought for the excess rent levied from plaintiff between the date of taking possession and of the Act X decree. Held that if the suit did lie at all it would be a suit for an illegal exaction of rent and should be brought under the Rent Act. SURBO CHUNDER DOS v WOODMANFORD ROY 11 W R., 413

9. — Suit to recover money deposited to pay rents—A suit to recover money deposited with the defendants to be applied in payment of rents (the deposit having been unsuccessfully pleaded in a suit for rent) should not be brought under the Rent Act. DANEE GOLAM SINGH v CHUNDER LAL MOOKERJEE 3 W R., 109

10. — Suit for money paid in excess of road cess—Limitation Act (XV of 1877) sch II art 36—In a suit to recover money alleged to have been paid by the plaintiffs to the defendants in excess of the sum demandable by the latter from the former on account of road cess—Held (reversing the decisions of the Courts below) that the suit was governed not by the special law of limitation contained in s 27 Bengal Act VIII of 1869 but by art 36 sch II of the Limitation Act XV of 1877. MATHURA NATH HUNDU v STEEL [I. 14 ———— Suit for abatement of rent—Eviction from part of tenure—In a suit by tenants for abatement of rent in consequence of having been dispossessed of two mauzabs which were included in their lease and for which separate rents were fixed the landlord pleaded limitation. Held that Bengal Act VIII of 1869 s 27 did not apply to a case of this description. In such a case the eviction might either give the tenant a cause of action for damages or suspend the rent during the time it lasts. In the latter case the cause of action would not arise until the landlord sought or threatened to recover rent. ATKINSON & NEILMOY SINGH DEO

The suit was first brought in the Revenue Court and as their co-sharers had not joined in the suit the plaintiffs made them defendants and their being defendants preventing the plaintiffs from continuing the suit in the Revenue Court they instituted it afresh in the Civil Court after Bengal Act VIII of 1859 came into operation. The defendants objected that under the limitation provided by s 29 of that Act no more than three years' rent could be recovered but the Judge held affirming the decision of the Munsif that the case was governed by cl 16 s 1 Act VIII of 1859 and that six years' rent could be decreed. Held on special appeal to the High Court that the fact of the co-sharers being made pro forma defendants did not alter the real character of the suit which was to recover arrears of rent and that therefore the provisions of s 29 Act VIII of 1859 were applicable, and a decree for three years' rent only was given. GURGO GOWIND SEN v GOWIND CHUNDER DASS

On B's death C and D applied to the Collector for registration of the patni talukhs in their names as assignees of B. A objected to the registration on the ground that the lease insured only for the life of B. A's objection being overruled he instituted a regular suit to eject C and D the present defendants which was decided against A finally by the Privy Council in 1874. During the pendency of this litigation the zamindar sued to recover the rent for the year 1868 not upon the basis of the patni lease but for use and occupation treating the tenants as mere trespassers. This suit was dismissed on the ground that the plaintiff ought to have sued on the lease. In 1875 the plaintiff brought the present suit for the rent of 1868 on the patni lease. The defendants pleaded res judicata and limitation. [13 W R. 433]

A suit under the Rent Act X of 1859 s 24 was not maintainable unless the defendant was an agent or servant employed in the management of lands or collection of rents. The Bengal Rent Act 1869 however does not define who are agents.

1 ——— Agent Suit against—Suit for papers in possession of sadar amilshah—It was held that a suit for papers in the possession of a sadar amilshah employed in keeping the books of the office and in performing the other duties incidental to the office of sadar amilshah and not mufassal amilshah was not one cognizable under the former Act. MORFAN BROHARAIN SINGH v LALLA RUTUN [Marsh 238 2 May 278]

It was further urged that defendant the lessee had defaulted that plaintiff had obtained decrees and that defendants having failed to pay within fifteen days had violated the lease and were liable to be ejected. Held that the terms of the contract were in strict accordance with the provisions of s 78 Act X of 1859 and the plaintiff ought to have brought his suit under that section and obtained a decree for ejectment. From the date of such decree specifying the amount of arrears the lessee would have fifteen days for payment

Application for execution was made in December 1877 against property other than that for which the rent was due but was in the first Court opposed successfully by the judgment debtor on the ground that the under tenure should first be proceeded against though such under tenure had already been sold away in execution of another decree and the execution proceeding was struck on the 15th March 1878 and the property released from attachment. The judgment creditor appealed and was successful both in the lower Appellate Court and the High Court the latter decision being dated 26th February 1879. The costs awarded him in these proceedings if added to the amount of the decree would amount to a sum of more than R500. BENGAL RENT ACT, VIII OF 1869 (X OF 1859)—continued

Suit for value of crops—Distraint—Jurisdiction—Small Cause Court—The plaintiff made a complaint to the Magistrate against the defendant his landlord for forcibly carrying away his crops whereupon the defendant was tried, convicted of theft and punished. The plaintiff then instituted a suit against the defendant in the Munsif's Court apparently under s 95 of Bengal Act VIII of 1869 and obtained a decree declaring the distraint to be illegal and directing the crops to be given up to him. The defendant offered to give up a smaller quantity than was mentioned in the decree. The plaintiff refused to take the same and brought a suit in the Small Cause Court to recover the value of the quantity he had claimed before the Munsif and something additional. Held that the Small Cause Court had no jurisdiction and that the suit ought to have been brought under s 93 of Bengal Act VIII of 1869. HYDER ALI v. 2 ————— Intent on of section—Effect of decree under—S 10<sup>a</sup> of Bengal Act VIII of 1869 was enacted in order to protect parties in the position of raiyat-defendants and to prevent their being dragged up to the High Court in cases where the decree is demand is under R100. In such cases the decree is intended to have the same effect as that of a Small Cause Court. DOORGA NARAYAN v. PAM LALL CHUTTAH.

3 ————— Special appeal—Power of Bengal Legislature—Bengal Act VIII of 1869 (s. 33 (1)) gives jurisdiction to Civil Courts to try suits brought for any cause of action arising under that Act but it is a jurisdiction to try them according to the Code of Civil Procedure except where it is otherwise provided by the Act and s. 10<sup>a</sup> modifies the effect of s. 33 and provides that there shall be no special appeal in rent suits for an amount under R100 except in certain circumstances. Quare—Has the Bengal Legislative Council power to give to the High Court any appellate jurisdiction not conferred by the Charter? POORBO CHUNDER POY v. KRISTO CHUNDER SINGH. 23 W. R. 171.

4. ————— Special appeal—Practice—In a suit for arrears of rent and ejectment the right of appeal is taken away by s. 102 Bengal Act VIII of 1869 only when it is shown that the amount sued for and the value of the property claimed is less than R100. Unless that fact appears either from the finding of the District Judge or elsewhere upon the proceedings the High Court has no right to draw any inference to that effect. TILAK PANDAY v. BUCHU LAL.

settled and no notice being therefore required. The value of the suit was under Rs 100 and the High Court held that the Judge had not decided any right to vary or enhance the rent and therefore they could not interfere there being no appeal under Bengal Act VIII of 1869 s 102. GOLUCK CHUNDER DUTT & MEAH RAJA MIJEE 17 W R. 119

15 — Special appeal—Question between parties having conflicting claims—In a suit for rent less than Rs 100 the decision turned upon whether in a former suit against the plaintiff by a third party a decree had been recovered for possession of a portion of the land now in dispute. Held that as neither the land nor the rest of such portion was claimed by the defendant the question as to title was not decided between parties having conflicting claims thereto consequently there was no right of appeal. REEDOWNATH DOORIPA & PUDDO LOCHUN CHUCKERBUTTY 23 W R. 205

16 — Special appeal—Question of title—The issue whether or not there has been a binding enhancement of rent and whether or not the tenant has paid at the enhanced rate involves no question of title or of right to enhance or vary the rent and the appeal in such a suit properly lies to the Collector. BAHADUR SINGH & HURA 3 N W. 73

17 — Special appeal—Decision as to varying rent—In a suit for arrears of rent on the basis of a shironama where the rayat denied that he had executed that document and produced evidence to show that the rates mentioned in it were not correct. Held that there was no question of right to vary the rent and that the case therefore did not come under Bengal Act VIII of 1869 s 102. NIHESUR SINGH & JHOTHE TILY 23 W R. 343

18 — Special appeal—Decision as to varying rent—Where the amount of jumma is not disputed but there is a question as to whether it is payable by instalments or in a lump sum the decision cannot be said to involve a question of right to enhance or vary the rent. PABRI MOHUN MOOKHO PADHYA & MADHUB CHUNDER BASOO [23 W R. 385]

19 — Special appeal—Question of fact—Question of nature of rent—In a suit for arrears of rent where the question was whether the defendants were holding on payment of nugh rents or as bhoul tenants. Held that the decision was a finding of fact. Held further that as the suit was for an amount under Rs 100 and as no question to vary the rate was determined nor any question of title as between parties having conflicting claims thereto there was no special appeal. SATMUL SINGH & TOOPDEV SINGH 24 W R. 469

20 — Special appeal—Right to vary rent—A suit for rent under Rs 100 is not taken into the purview of Bengal Act VIII of 1869 s 102 by the fact of the rate of rent having been varied by the decision of the Court unless the Judge determined the right to vary the rent. WATSON & CO & MOHENDRO NATH LAUL 23 W R. 436

21 — Special appeal—Question as to whether rent has varied—Bengal Act VIII of 1869 s 102 does not apply where the point decided is simply whether the rent fixed by a previous decision has been subsequently altered and a new arrangement come to. NURUDESSUR PRASHAD ROY & JUNGOL [24 W R. 49]

22 — Special appeal—Question as to variation of rent—In a suit for arrears of rent under Rs 100 in which the question was whether the landlord had the right to raise and had raised the rent and the Judge decided that there had been no alteration in the rent. Held no appeal lay to the High Court. ROY JUNG BAHADUR & JUNGOL ROY [25 W R. 247]

23 — Special appeal—Question of title—Where the Judge practically came to no determination at all on the erroneous supposition that a review had been wrongly admitted by the Munsif a special appeal was held to be not barred. GOON DIAL ROY & DEKA MOONTA 23 W R. 448

24 — Special appeal—Co-sharer—Suit for rent—The plaintiff one of several co-sharers of a taluk sued to recover her share of rent making her co-sharers who resisted her claim defendants. The first Court raised and tried questions of title between the plaintiff her co-sharers and the rayat and decided in favour of the plaintiff. The lower Appellate Court without expressing any opinion on the rights of the parties dismissed the suit on the ground that it was not maintainable. On special appeal it was contended that no appeal would lie as the amount of the claim was less than Rs 100 and no question of title was determined by the judgment; but this objection was overruled on the ground that the decree of the lower Appellate Court dismissing the suit had the effect of deciding the question of title against the plaintiff. On appeal under cl 15 of the Letters Patent. Held that the judgment rather than the decree is to be looked at in applying s. 10 of Bengal Act VIII of 1869. No appeal lay from the judgment of the lower Appellate Court inasmuch as that judgment showed not only that no question of title was determined but that the Judge did not even consider it. KARIM SHEIKH & MUKHODA GOVDEVER DASSEE 15 B L R. 111 23 W R. 269

37 — Special appeal—Question of title—In a suit for rent under R50 in which no question to enhance or vary the rate was decided and in which although the first Court went into the question of title the lower Appellate Court came to no decision on the point—Held that the case fell within the purview of Bengal Act VIII of 1869 s. 102 and no special appeal lay BRUGWAN DUTT MISHRA v NOWNEEDR LALL [35 W R. 153]

28 — Special appeal—Decision on genuineness of document in order to decide as to amount of rent—Where a suit for rent of certain years not exceeding R100 based upon a kabalat and jumabandi was dismissed in appeal on the ground that these documents were forged and the lower Appellate Court in order to arrive at a decision as to the amount of rent due enquired into and decided upon the genuineness of the mokurari pottah set up by the defendant—Held that Bengal Act VIII of 1869 s. 102 precluded any special appeal in the case MAHOMED TOQUE v FOUZDAR ROY [25 W R. 14]

29 — Special appeal—Question of title—In a suit for rent in which the sum claimed was less than R100 the defendant pleaded that the plaintiff had ceased to have any interest in the land and the suit was dismissed. There was no finding as between the plaintiff and any other person claiming title to the land. Held that a special appeal to the High Court was barred by s. 102 Bengal Act VIII of 1869 Kashet Ram Doss v Maharanee Sham Mohinee 23 W R. 227 and Dilber v Issur Chunder Roy 21 W R. 86 cited and followed. DONZELLI v TEHAN NODAY 20 C L R. 558

30 — Special appeal—Question of title—In a suit for ejectment valued under R100 the defendants who were sued as yearly tenants replied that their tenure was a masurati gajasta tenure and in proof of their allegation adduced evidence which was not displaced by the plaintiffs. The lower Court considered that the defendants' allegation was well founded. Held that although the value of the suit was under R100 an appeal was not barred by the provisions of s. 102 of Bengal Act VIII of 1869 as the lower Court had determined a question of law as to whether the tenure was gajasta BIJJO NATH SANKO v RAMDOUR ROY 7 C L R. 369

A tenant holder granted a usufructuary mortgage of certain lands within his tenure to A and directed the tenants to pay their rents to him. Subsequently the superior landlord brought a suit for road cess against the tenure holder and in execution of his decree sold the tenure under s 65 of the Bengal Tenancy Act. A then brought a suit against one of the tenants for arrears of rent and contended that all that passed under the auction sale was the right title and interest of the tenure holder and that his rights under the mortgage were unaffected by the sale and that he was still entitled to the rent. Held that Ch VI of the Bengal Tenancy Act must be read with s 60 of the Act and that having regard to the definition in cl 5 of s 3 rent as used in that section includes road cess payable by the tenant and that the sale was a sale of the tenure the purchaser acquiring the property free from the incumbrance created by the tenure-holder in favour of A it not being a registered and notified incumbrance within the meaning of s 161 of the Act MOHIB CHAND NUSKAR v BANERJATH PARANANTICK I L R. 21 Calc 722

Collector—Jurisdiction and functions of the Civil Court—The proprietors of a talukh who had constructed an indigo factory and employed a European manager applied to the Civil Court under s 84 of the Tenancy Act to acquire by compulsory sale a small piece of land made up of several rayati holdings within the estate. The application was opposed by the proprietors of another indigo factory who had taken under leases from the rayats the greater part of the lands of the village including the holdings within which the plot in question was comprised. The Collector of the district had certified under s 84 that the purpose for which the land was required was reasonable and sufficient. The Munsif tried the matter as a disputed question of fact and held that the purpose alleged was not reasonable or sufficient and declined to authorize the purchase.
The District Judge on appeal reversed the Munsif's finding and authorized the compulsory acquisition of the land. Held that there is no appeal against an order passed by a Civil Court under s 84 of the Bengal Tenancy Act and that the grounds for authorizing the compulsory acquisition of land under s 81. The purpose for which the land is sought to be acquired must have a direct relation to the good of the holding and objects which might have a remote or speculative bearing upon the good of the holding are foreign to the scope of the Act. Held by PETHERAM C.J.—The section gives to the Collector jurisdiction to decide whether the alleged purpose is reasonable and sufficient leaving to the Civil Court to settle the amount to be paid for the land and the decision of the question whether the land is bona fide required for the alleged purpose. The words satisfied on the certificate mean that the Civil Court is to be satisfied on the certificate alone and has no jurisdiction to take other evidence on that question but is to accept the decision of the Collector as final. GOOHUY MOLLAH v. On the 4th March 1891 the same co-sharer applied to the Court to the effect that proceedings might be taken under s 93 of the Bengal Tenancy Act and that the management of the estate might be taken over by the Court of Wards. The other co-sharers and the representative of certain minor co-sharers objected to the appointment of a common manager but consented to the estate being made over to the Court of Wards. On the 30th March 1892 the District Judge without satisfying himself as to the necessity of the appointment of a common manager ordered that the estate should be made over to the Court of Wards. The Court of Wards took over the estate but subsequently refused to act and the Board of Revenue directed that the estate should be released. On the 13th August 1892 the District Judge issued notices on the co-sharers under s 93 calling on them to show cause why a common manager should not be appointed. All the co-sharers appeared and objected to the appointment of a common manager but one of them and the representative of the minor co-sharers stated that they had agreed to appoint a private person manager of their shares. The District Judge therefore appointed such person temporarily as a common manager of the entire estate until the co-owners should take steps under s 99 to satisfy the Court that they were in a position to manage the estate and on the 24th March 1893 passed two orders on separate applications made by two of the co-sharers for the release of the estate refusing to release it as he was not satisfied that the management of the estate could be conducted without injury to the rights of the minor. Held that these orders of the 24th March 1893 were ultra vires GASODA KANTA ROY & PROBHABATI DAS

II — Power of Settlement Officer—Decision of Special Judge—Res judicata—Question whether land is mal or lakhs ray—The plaintiff had been proprietor of an estate which was sold for arrears of Government revenue and repurchased from the then purchaser by the plaintiff in 1886. X of the Bengal Tenancy Act for the measurement of the estate and the preparation of a record of rights and the Revenue Officer deputed for these purposes found that a portion of the estate held by the defendant was mal land though it was held as lakhs ray under certain sanads and as he also found that no rent had ever been paid for it as it was entered on the record of rights as mal land held under those sanads as lakhs ray. The Special Judge on appeal by the plaintiff held that the land having been found to be mal should have been entered as mal land and assessed with rent. In a suit to have the land assessed with rent it was found that the sanads under which the defendant claimed to hold were granted not by any predecessor in title of the plaintiff and were of a date anterior to the Permanent Settlement. Held (reversing the decision of the lower Appellate Court) that the Special Judge had no jurisdiction to determine whether the land was mal or lakhs ray and that his judgment as to its being mal did not therefore operate

I — and ss 38, 52 subs. 2 cl. (c) Ch. X s. 101 subs. 2 cl. (a)—Ancient holdings—Additional rent for excess land—Onus of proving lands in excess of area originally let—Permanent deterioration—Liability to additional rent—Duty of Settlement Officer—s. 104 subs. (2) of the Bengal Tenancy Act is subject to the provisions of s. 52 of the Act. The mere fact that on a measurement made by a zamindar under the authority of Government given under Ch. X of the Bengal Tenancy Act it is found that the tenants generally are in possession of lands in excess of the areas entered in his zamindari papers and their rent receipts does not necessarily prove that he is entitled to additional rent for the excess areas. Where settlements or holdings are of very old date and lands are let out by areas ascertained without any accurate survey but as contained within certain recognized boundaries for instance by reference to other holdings it is incumbent upon the zamindar seeking enhancement of rent very many years after the original settlement to show that the lands held by the rayats are in excess of the lands originally let to them in consequence of some encroachment or some alluvial increment or that the settlement was made on the basis of measurement and the rates of rent as applied to the area then determined, while on a fresh measurement made by the same length of measure it has been found that he is entitled to receive additional rent which by carelessness or neglect or a me other cause he had hitherto lost. A liberal interpretation should be put upon the word permanently in s 38 sub s (1) cl (a) and the word construed with reference to existing conditions. It cannot be said that a deterioration is not permanent only because by the application of capital and skill it might be removed. In determining the liability to additional rent the Settlement Officer is by s 52 sub s (2) cl (c) bound to consider the length of time during which the tenancy has lasted without dispute as to rent or area. Although only an occupancy raiyat can bring a suit under s 38 the principles laid down in that section ought to be taken into consideration in all proceedings for settlement of rent whatever be the status of the raiyat. GOURI PATTRA v REILY I L R 20 Calc 579

■ 120 sub s 2—Record of proprie-tor's land as private land—Grounds for determining land to be private—Evidence—In enacting sub s (2) of s 120 of the Bengal Tenancy Act
the Legislature had before it the attempts which might be expected on the part of landlords to frustrate the intention of the Legislature as asserted in the draft Bill laid before the Council for consideration to extend the occupancy rights of tenants
before the measures then declared to be in contemplation became law and therefore the particular date
the 2nd day of March 1883 the date on which the draft Bill was published in the Gazette and leave was obtained to introduce the Bill into the Council was declared to be the latest date on which there should be free action on the part of zamindars to assert their private rights so as to prevent the accrual of special tenant rights From the wording of that sub-section it was intended that, in determining whether land is the private land of the proprietor regard should be had to any declaration made before the 2nd March 1883 by the landlord and communicated to the tenants in respect to the reservation of the proprietor's right over the land as his private land the words any other evidence that may be produced in that sub-section mean therefore any other evidence tending in the same direction that may be produced to show the assertion of any title on the part of the proprietor and communicated to the ten-

1. sch. III, art. 2—Limitation—Suit for arrears of rent at excess rate—In 1865 the plaintiff sued and obtained a decree for payment of additional rent for excess land held by the defendant and on the 29th March 1871 instituted another suit against the defendant for khas possession of newly accreted lands or in the alternative for an assessment of rent thereon according to the terms of the defendant's kabuliat. This suit was dismissed on the 29th June 1881 but on appeal to the High Court this decision was reversed on the 11th May 1883 and khas possession was given to the plaintiff. On appeal the Privy Council on the 21st July 1886 reversed the decree for khas possession and declared the plaintiff entitled to a decree fixing the extent of the excess lands and assessing rent therefor in terms of the kabuliat such rent to be payable from and after the 28th March 1878 and remitted the case for a finding as to the extent of the excess lands. The Subordinate Judge to whom the case was remitted gave the plaintiff a decree on the 21st March 1887 for increased rent in respect of kharis 7 gun dabs 2 cowries of excess land. On the 14th July 1887 the plaintiff instituted a suit to recover excess rent for the years 1878 to 1886 and for rent at the old rate plus the excess rent for a portion of the year 1887. Held that the suit so far as the rent for 1878 to 1883 was concerned was barred by limitation. HURBO KUMAR GHOSH v KALI BHASHYA THAKUR

5 ——— *Limitation—Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885) s 151—Suit for arrears of rent—Bengal Regulation VIII of 1919—A land lord, to recover arrears of rent for the year 129, B brought from the plaintiff a petition on the 1st Bysack 195 (13th April 191) in the Court of the Collector under the provisions of Regulation VIII of 1819 praying for the sale of the patta taluk. The taluk was sold and was purchased by the landlord on the 1st Jyest 195 (14th May 1891). The whole of the arrears not being realized by the sale proceeds the landlord brought an action on the 14th May 1894 for the balance of the patta rent to the end of 1297 B (1st April 191). The defence was that the suit was barred by limitation. Held that the suit was governed by the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act s 184 and sch III art 2 (6) the period of limitation in a suit for rent provided by that article is three years from the last day of the Bengal year in which the arrear falls due and as in this case the arrear fell due in the Bengal year 1297 which ended on the 12th April 1891 and the suit was not commenced until 14th May 1894 more than three years from the last day of the Bengal year in which the arrear fell due it was barred by limitation. BREKA MOYI DAS EE v BURMA MOYI CHOWDHURANI

During their minority their elder brothers sold that joint the first three defendants in fraud of the rights of the plaintiffs and the purchasers took possession of the joint accordingly and had entries made in their own names in the record of rights. The plaintiffs brought this suit under Act XVI of 1869 against the defendants to recover their share in the joint. The lower Appellate Court without going into the merits dismissed the case as not cognizable* in view of the provisions of Act XVI of 1869 and the repealing Act VII of 1895. On appeal therefrom—Held that the notification extending the Civil Procedure Code to Jalpaiguri had not the effect of introducing the Civil Procedure Code to the Bhutan Duars although the latter are a part of Jalpaiguri inasmuch as Act XVI of 1869 which was then in force in the Bhutan Duars excluded that jurisdiction in express terms. But the effect of the repeal of Act XVI (without any qualification) by Bengal Act VII of 1895 has left the Civil Procedure to be admitted in the Bhutan Duars. That the plaintiffs are not precluded by the entry in the record of rights from obtaining relief against the defendants. An entry in a record under Act XVI of 1869 in order to be conclusive evidence of any right interest or other matter must be one which has been honestly and fairly obtained. *BROJO KANTO DAS v. publication of bans of marriage is an act done in the preparation to marry, but does not amount to an attempt to marry. 5 ——— Divorce among Rajput Gujaratis in Khandesh—Penal Code ss 494 and 109—Marrying again during the lifetime of husband—Deed of divorce by husband—Validity of divorce—A member of the caste of Ajanya Rajput Gujaratis residing in Khandesh executed a deed of divorce to his wife. The Court held on the evidence that the deed was proved and that in this caste a husband was for a sufficient reason such as incompetence allowed to divorce his wife. That the deed in the present case had not been executed for a sufficient reason and that consequently the parties entering into a second marriage were guilty of an offence under s 494 of the Penal Code (V.L.V. of 1860) and that the priest who officiated at that marriage was an abettor under ss 494 and 109. Mere consent of persons to be present at an illegal marriage or their presence in pursuance of such consent or the grant of accommodation in a house for the marriage does not necessarily constitute abetment of such marriage. EMPRESS v. the Roman Catholic Church and married by B a priest to a Roman Catholic during the lifetime of her Hindu husband. Held that A's marriage with the Hindu was subsisting and valid at the time of her Christian marriage and that she was guilty of the offence of bigamy and that B was guilty of abetting that offence. LIPE v. 9 ——— Conversion of a Hindu wife to Mahomedanism—Marriage with a Mahomedan—Penal Code s 494—The conversion of a Hindu wife to Mahomedanism does not ipso facto dissolve her marriage with her husband. She cannot therefore during his lifetime enter into any other valid marriage contract. Her going through the ceremony of nika with a Mahomedan is consequently an offence under s 494 of the Indian Penal Code. GOVERNMENT OF BOMBAY v. GAYGA

[1 L R. 4 Bom 330]

10 ——— Marriage with Mahomedan—Mahomedan Law—Marriage—Penal Code s 494—The petitioner originally a Hindu woman and the illegitimate offspring of Chattr parents was duly married according to Hindu rites to D who was also by caste a Chattr. Subsequent to the marriage the petitioner became a convert to Mahomedanism and married a Mahomedan. She was charged with and convicted of an offence under s 494 of the Penal Code. It was contended on her behalf that (1) the marriage between her and D was invalid under Hindu law by reason of her illegitimacy and the consequent difference of caste between the contracting parties (2) the marriage between her and D became dissolved under the Hindu law on her conversion to Mahomedanism and (3) the second marriage was not void under the Mahomedan law by reason of its taking place in the lifetime of D and that the conviction was therefore erroneous. There was no evidence of any notice having been given to D previous to the second marriage calling on him to become a Mahomedan. Held that illegitimacy under Hindu law is no absolute disqualification for marriage and that when one or both contracting parties to a marriage are illegitimate the marriage must be regarded as valid if they are recognized by their caste people as belonging to the same caste. Held also that there is no authority in Hindu law for the proposition that an apostate is absolved from all civil obligations and that so far as the matrimonial bond is concerned such a view would be contrary to the spirit of that law which regards it as indissoluble, and that accordingly the marriage between the petitioner and D was not under the Hindu law dissolved by her conversion to Mahomedanism. REHMAT BEEBEE v. BOKRYA BEEBEE [1 Norton's Leading Cases on Hindu Law p 12 dissented from. Held further that as the validity of the second marriage depended on the Mahomedan law and that law does not allow a plurality of husbands it would be void or valid according as the first marriage was or was not subsisting at the time it took place that no notice having been given to D as required by Mahomedan law previous to the second marriage and no recourse having been had to the Courts for the purpose of obtaining a declaration that the former marriage was dissolved and as British India cannot be held to be a foreign country for the purpose of rendering such notice unnecessary the previous marriage was not dissolved under Mahomedan law and the subsequent marriage was therefore void. Held accordingly that the conviction was right. IN THE MATTER OF THE PETITION OF RAM KUMARI I. L. R., 18 Calc., 264

11 — Mahomedan law—Marriage—Child marriage—Option of minor of repudiating marriage on attaining puberty—Want of ratification after puberty—Penal Code s. 494 — B a Mahomedan girl whose father was dead was alleged to have been given in marriage by her mother to J some years before she attained puberty. Prior to her attaining puberty J was sentenced to a term of imprisonment for theft. While he was in jail B after she had attained puberty contracted a marriage with P. The marriage with J was never consummated. On J being released from jail he proceeded to prosecute B and P for bigamy and abetment of bigamy and also charged P with adultery. It appeared that before taking proceedings J requested B to return to him but she refused to do so. The marriage between B and J was sought to be proved by the evidence of J's mother and two witnesses who were said to have been present. B and P were both convicted. Held on appeal that the evidence of the marriage between B and J was insufficient to justify a conviction in the absence of proof that a Mulla was present at the ceremony or that the sigha required to be recited at the marriage of minors was recited or the akad performed. Held further that assuming B to have been given in marriage to J when a mere child by her mother she had the option of either ratifying or repudiating such marriage on attaining puberty. Under the Shari law such a marriage is of no effect until it has been ratified by the minor and under the Sunni law it is effective till cancelled by the minor. Under both schools of law the minor has the absolute power on attaining puberty to ratify or cancel an unauthorized marriage though under the Sunni law ratification is presumed if the girl remains silent after attaining puberty and allows the marriage to be consummated. Held on the facts of the case that the circumstances afforded sufficient indication even assuming the girl to be governed by the Sunni law that she never ratified the marriage. Held also that a judicial order was not necessary to effect the cancellation of the marriage. BADAL AHMAT v QUEEN EMPRESS I. The bill fell due on December 3rd, 1870 which was a Saturday and on that day the plaintiff sent his jemadar to C N & Co the acceptors to present the bill for payment. The bill was taken by A one of the members of the firm of C N & Co who gave a cheque for the amount and took a receipt from the plaintiff's jemadar striking out the signature of C N & Co as Cashier but with out the plaintiff's consent. The plaintiff's gomastha sent him to the defendant's firm to give him notice of what had taken place. It was alleged that at this interview the defendant's liability was admitted in case the cheque was not honoured and the plaintiff's jemadar was advised to wait until Monday the defendant stating that he also had a cheque for ₹7000 from C N & Co. This was denied by the defendant. On Monday 5th December the cheque was presented to the bank for payment and was dishonoured. The plaintiff's gomastha went to the defendant's kotli and gave notice of the dishonour of the bill and cheque and asked him to pay the amount of the bill. The defendant asked for the bill and the plaintiff's gomastha went to C N & Co and brought back the bill with the name of C N & Co which had been struck out replaced. The defendant seeing the bill was overdue refused to pay the amount. The cheque was thereupon returned to C N & Co and the bill retained by the plaintiff who on 6th December caused written notice of dishonour to be given to the defendant. Held that the cheque must be taken to have been merely a conditional payment and when it was dishonoured the liability of the original bill revived. Held also that reasonable notice of dishonour was given whether the bill be taken to have been dishonoured on the Saturday or on the Monday SOMASHTIL v BHAIRO DAS JHURRY 7 B L R 431

In May 1876 A by letter agreed to execute a mortgage of a certain portion of his property consisting of a share in a Privy Council decree to B and in the meantime to hold such property at the disposal of B his successors and assigns. In the month of June 1876 A became unable to meet his liabilities and in the month of August following executed a conveyance of all his property to the Official Trustee upon trust for the benefit of A's creditors. The bank assented to and executed this deed after it had been assented to and executed by some of the other creditors. The deed did not contain any covenant with or release by the creditors nor any covenant on their part not to sue A. In a suit by the bank against B as acceptor of the bills—Held that B was not precluded by the provisions of s 139 of the Contract Act and s 92 of the Evidence Act from pleading that he was an accommodation acceptor only. Held that the letter of May 1876 constituted a good equitable mortgage and that B was not thereafter entitled as against the bank to the equitable rights of an accommodation acceptor. Held further that the trust did not impair the eventual remedy of B and that therefore he

J and read the bills for value to the plaintiffs who in default of payment by defendant sold the goods and credited him with the amount realized. After giving him credit for the amount there remained due by the defendant to the plaintiffs in respect of the said bills a sum of Rs 1017. The plaintiffs abandoned Rs 17 of this amount and sued the defendant for Rs 1000 in the Small Cause Court at Bombay. In that suit the defendant pleaded that the goods in respect of which the bills were drawn were damaged and that he had therefore refused to accept them as he was entitled to do. The Judge thereupon dismissed the suit on the authority of Shoriff v Abdul Pohiman 6 Bom O C 53 holding that the plaintiffs could not under the circumstances give the defendant credit for the goods and that the claim was not therefore within the jurisdiction of the Small Cause Court. The plaintiffs then brought the present suit in the High Court upon the bills of exchange alleging that they held the proceeds of the goods for the consignor. The defendant contended that in no case would the plaintiffs recover from him more than the amount of the bills less the proceeds of the goods. Held that the defendant was entitled to credit for the net proceeds of the sale of the goods. The plaintiffs had by the sale already realized part of the amount due to them and to all who now to recover from the defendant the whole amount due on the bills would be to permit them to realize this part of the claim a second time in that case they would be paid twice over the amount realized to the drawers. But the drawers when they negotiated the bills with the plaintiffs got all they were entitled to and would have to account in equity to the defendant for anything further

The bill was in the following terms:—The New Oriental Bank Corporation Limited To the New Oriental Bank 1889 On demand pay this first of exchange (second of same tenor and date being unpaid) to the order of Sulleman Hussein six hundred and fifty rupees for value received. For the New Oriental Bank Corporation Limited To the New Oriental Bank registered post to Bombay addressed to the plaintiff Duran's transmission it was at London. On the 18th May it was presented by a messenger to the defendant's Bank in Bombay bearing a forged endorsement in blank of the plaintiff and it was paid by the Bank. The plaintiff as soon as he heard of the loss of the bill made inquiry at the Bank and was told that the bill had been paid. On being shown the endorsement the plaintiff pronounced it to be a forgery and demanded payment of the bill which the Bank refused. He thereupon filed this suit against the Bank as drawers of the bill. Held (1) that the document was an ambiguous instrument within the meaning of a 17 of the Negotiable Instruments Act (XXVI of 1881) and that the plaintiff had elected to treat it as a bill of exchange. (2) That treating the document as a bill of exchange the defendants as drawers were discharged by the payment to the de facto holder who presented it for payment. SULLEMAN HOSSEIN v. It is the duty of the shipper to comply strictly with the terms of the shipping order. GENTLE v. THOMSON

5 ——— Insufficiency of package—Negligence—The defendants by a condition annexed to their bill of lading stipulated that they should not be responsible for leakage or breakage or other consequences arising from the insufficiency of the address or package. The plaintiff shipped for conveyance from Hong Kong to Bombay certain goods on board a steamer of the defendants in packages which were proved to be insufficient. These goods in accordance with a condition to that effect contained in the bill of lading were transhipped at Galle. On their being landed in Bombay it was found that all the packages were broken and in a much more damaged condition than is usual in the case of such goods carried from Hong Kong to Bombay in similar packages. The contents had to a large extent escaped from the packages but were otherwise uninjured. Held that under a bill of lading in the above form the onus of proving that the packages were insufficient and that the injury which they had sustained was the consequence of such insufficiency lay upon the defendants but that when the result of the evidence on both sides was to leave it in doubt whether the injury was caused by negligence or was the consequence of the insufficiency of the packages the plaintiff was not entitled to recover. P & O STEAM NAVIGATION CO. v. 6 ——— Insufficiency of package—Negligence—Mercantile usage—Evidence of—The defendants carry between Hong Kong and Bombay. By a condition annexed to their bill of lading they stipulated that they should not be responsible for damage to goods arising from insufficiency of package. The plaintiff shipped certain goods in the defendants' steamer in packages which though in fact insufficient were packages of the kind ordinarily used for the conveyance of such goods from Hong Kong to Bombay. On their being landed in Bombay it was found that the packages were more or less broken and the contents were in some instances injured and had to a small extent escaped from the packages. In an action brought to recover damages in respect of such injury it was held that evidence of mercantile usage or of custom would be admissible to show that the words "insufficiency of packages" should not be taken in their ordinary sense but as meaning insufficient according to a special custom of the China trade. Held also that the evidence of these packages being ordinary China packages, and of such packages having always been carried by the defendants without objection was not sufficient, in the absence of proof of negligence to fix the defendants with liability for damage done to them there being no proof that it had been the practice either of the defendants or any other ship-owners protected by a

When the ship arrived at port the consignee not having had his own boats alongside the goods were put into other boats one of which through the negligence of the boatmen was swamped and the contents damaged. Plaintiff sued for damages. Held that as defendants were not shown to have neglected the duty of taking reasonable and proper care in the selection of boats they were not liable for the loss incurred. BULLOCK BROTHERS & CO v TOAY ATNG 24 W R 74

damage occasioned by neglect of Company's servants—Suit to recover goods destroyed—Contract Act s 151—The plaintiff shipped two plate glass show-cases from Calcutta to Rangoon by a steamer of the defendant company and issued a bill of lading which contained the following clause—Carried and delivered subject to the conditions after mentioned loss or damage for any act neglect or default whatsoever of the pilot master or mariners or other servants of the company etc excepted. In landing the two cases one of them was entirely destroyed owing to the carelessness of the company's servants. The plaintiff sued the company setting out that the damage was occasioned by the negligence of the company's servants. The defendant company (who were not subject to the Carriers Act) relied on the above-mentioned clause in their bill of lading. Held that the defendant company were protected by their bill of lading the terms of which had been accepted by the plaintiff. JELlicoe v BRITISH INDIA STEAM NAVIGATION CO

9 — Liability of master

—Negligence—Onus probandi—Estoppel—The defendant master of the steamer Scindia issued a bill of lading by which he agreed with C & Co of London to deliver at Calcutta to them or their order four casks of brass wire which were shipped on board the Scindia. The casks were described in the bill of lading as bearing a certain mark beneath which was the word Calcutta as being the port of destination and they were stated as being carried subject to the following exceptions—The ship is not liable for obliteration or absence of marks numbers address and description of goods shipped and expenses and losses by detention of ship or cargo caused by incorrect marking or by incomplete or incorrect description of contents shall be borne by the owners of the goods. In case any part of the within goods cannot be found during the ship's stay at the port of destination they are when found to be sent back by first steamer at the ship's risk and expense and subject to any proved claim for loss of market. The ship shall not be liable for incorrect delivery unless each package shall have been distinctly marked by the shippers before shipment with the port of destination. The bill of lading was endorsed by C & Co to the plaintiff a trader in Calcutta who on the arrival of the Scindia at that port applied for delivery of the four casks and it then appeared that they had been landed at Colombo. In a suit to recover the price of the goods—Held the defendant was estopped from alleging that the casks were not marked as stated in the bill of lading. It was open however to the defendant to prove that the casks did not on their arrival at Colombo bear the word Calcutta and thus to bring himself within the clause in the bill of lading exempting the ship from liability for obliteration or absence of marks but on proof of this in order to disentitle the plaintiff to succeed the defendant must show that the absence or obliteration caused the landing at Colombo. It was found on the evidence that he had failed to do this and a decree was given for the plaintiff. MADHUS CHANDER DEY v LAW 13 B L R 394

10 — Stowage—Negli-

gence of the crew or other servants of the ship—Period of loading covered by the contract of carriage—Fitness or unfitness of the ship—The plaintiffs shipped certain bags of sugar on the 11th and 12th November 1887 on board the defendants ship the Byculla for conveyance to Bombay. There being a dispute as to the number of bags shipped no mate's receipts were given and no bill of lading was signed until the 28th November. The Byculla started on her voyage on the 14th November and duly delivered the sugar in Bombay. The sugar however was found to be damaged by water which was due to its having been stowed in immediate proximity to a quantity of wet timber. The plaintiffs sued the defendants in the Small Cause Court for the damage so caused. The defendants sheltered themselves under the terms of the exemptive clause in their bill of lading of the 28th November which clause ran as follows—The act of God the Queen's enemies and all the perils and dangers accidents of the sea and accidents loss or damage from any act neglect or default whatsoever of the pilot master or mariners or other servants of the Company or for any deviation excepted. The plaintiffs contended that a bill of lading did not relate to or cover the period of loading and that even if it did the exception relied upon in this bill of lading related only to negligence subsequent to the commencement of the voyage. They also contended that the ship was not a ship reasonably fit for the voyage within the meaning of the rule laid down in Steel v The State Line Steamship Company L R 3 Ap Ca 72. In the Small Cause Court judgment was given in plaintiff's favour. On appeal to the High Court in the case stated this judgment was reversed. Held that this was not a case to which the rule laid down in Steel v The State Line Steamship Company L R 3 Ap Ca 72 applied as there was no question here of any defect inherent in the ship. It was simply a case of negligent and improper stowage. Held further following Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Co v Baker 7 Bom O C 196

that the receipt made of consigning the consignment evidenced by a bill of lading was the whole of the receipt as to the goods and that there was no evidence to be found in this bill of lading of any other intention. Held further that the goods were covered by the bill of lading from the time they were put on board to be loaded consequently the defendants were protected from liability under the exemptive clause. The Duro L R 2 A and E 893 and Hayes v Cuttford L R 4 C P D 152 mentioned in and Re Hassan Broom v Ingram; British India Steam Navigation Company I L R 13 Bom 571

12 Liability for loss—Absence of negligence—A cask at Madras shipped by the B I M N steamer Vishvavati was found to be delivered to their Agent M at Bimlipatam. At the time of shipment they declared the value and paid enhanced freight on account of such value. By the bill of lading the company undertook to deliver the case in good order at Bimlipatam to the consignee M subject to certain conditions annexed. By one of these conditions if the consignee did not take delivery when the ship was ready to discharge the goods might be warehoused at the merchant's risk and the company's liability was to cease when the goods left the ship's side. The consignee did not take delivery at the ship's side and the company's agent at Bimlipatam took the case to the Custom House as he was bound to do by the regulations of the port. If the superintendent of the Custom House had known that the case contained corals it would have been placed in an inner room but the company's agent did not know the contents of the case and therefore was unable to give any such information to the Superintendent. While the case was lying at the Custom House application was made in plaintiff's behalf to the company's agent for delivery of the case upon the usual guarantee. The agent refused to deliver the case with the production of the bill of lading. Afterwards the bill of lading was received from M and the case was delivered up. At a meeting between its leasing the ship's side and delivery to the consignee the case was opened and a pearl shell was found. Held that the defendants were at fault. MACINTOSH MACKENZIE MIXEN v

On the face of the bill of lading was printed "This bill of lading is issued subject to the following conditions. One condition was that a written declaration of the contents and value of the goods is required by the owner and must be delivered by the shipper to the owner's agents with the bills of lading. A wrong description of contents or false declaration of value shall release the owner from all responsibility in case of loss etc. and the goods shall be charged double freight on the real value which freight shall be paid previous to delivery." The declaration in this case was contained in the following letter from the shipper to the agent of the shipowner:—Dear Sir—Be good enough to give me an order for a small box containing diamonds to the value of about Rs 14000 to be shipped on board the steamer John Bright for Calcutta. Yours etc. The box was lost by the negligence of B's servants. In a suit by A to recover the value of the goods—Held that all the shipowner was entitled to was that the shipper should make a declaration of what kind of goods he believed to be the value. The declaration as to contents was not vitiated by the omission to enumerate all the different species of articles contained in the box. Upon the evidence the declaration as to the value and nature of the contents was bona fide therefore A was entitled to recover the value of the diamonds lost. DRUMMOND STEAMSHIP CO v BETHAM

14 Leakage—Breach—Damage caused by leakage from other goods—Peculiar goods were carried from India to Bombay under a bill of lading the exceptio in which protected the master from leakage, breakage, rust, decay, loss or damage from machinery, human misfeasance, error in judgment, negligence or default of persons in the service of the ship and the ship not being liable for any consequences of causes therein excepted however originating. The peculiar goods on their arrival in Bombay were found to be damaged by oil and by chafing—i.e. by rubbing against other goods in the hold—but there was no evidence to show that such damage was caused. Held that the term "leakage" did not include leakage from other goods in the hold—peculiar goods nor did "breakage" include damage caused by chafing and that as no negligence was proved the master was not protected by the exception. GRAN v HILL water escaping some of the bales were damaged. Held that the damage was within the exceptions of the bill of lading and therefore that the defendants were not liable to make good the loss. Quere—Whether notwithstanding the exceptions in the bill of lading the defendants might not have been made liable in a suit on the implied warranty if it had been proved as a fact that the boiler was not reasonably fit for the voyage. BRITISH INDIA STEAM NAVIGATION Co v ABRAHAM MOOSUM 8 W R, 35

18 ————— Exception in bill of lading—Seaworthiness—Suit for damage to goods by leakage while ship in dock—The plaintiffs goods were loaded in the defendants steamer then lying in dock to be carried from Bombay to certain ports in East Africa. At the time of loading the ship was apparently in a sound and seaworthy condition. Two days after the goods had been put on board and when the ship was still in dock it sprung a leak and the water came into the hold and damaged the plaintiffs goods. The ship was taken to the dry dock the cargo was shifted and the leak repaired. It appeared that the leak had arisen from the fact that one of the plates of the ship had been worn thin in one particular spot so that when the cargo was put on board and the ship lay deeper in the water the pressure became so great that a hole was made and the water rushed in. The plaintiffs sued the defendants for damages. The defendants pleaded (1) that the ship was in a seaworthy condition when the goods were put on board (2) that they were protected by the bill of lading which contained the following exception:—Accident loss and damage from vermin barratry jetison collision fire machinery boilers steam and all the perils dangers and accidents of the sea rivers land carriage and steam navigation of whatever nature and kind and accident loss or damage from any act neglect or default whatsoever of the pilot master or mariners or other servants of the Company or from any deviation excepted. Held that the defendants were liable. While the ship was in dock it was not seaworthy and the exception in the bill of lading did not limit the implied warranty of seaworthiness. VITHULDAS GOSWAMI v BOMBAY AND PERSIA STEAM NAVIGATION Co I L R 19 Bom 639

17 ————— Loss by fire—Carriers—Wharfingers—Under the terms of a bill of lading goods were to be delivered from the ship's tackle as fast as the steamer could discharge failing which the agents were to be at liberty to land the goods at their godowns the bill of lading further among other exceptions provided that the ship owners should not be liable for loss by fire. The steamer on arriving at the port of discharge came alongside the wharf and commenced unloading at the custom house godowns without giving the consignees the option of landing the goods from the ship's tackle. The consignees however did not object to the goods being landed at the godowns and they paid also without objection a sum for the wharfage of a part of the goods in their godowns. Held that the ship-owners if the goods placed in the godowns were in their possession as carriers were protected under the clause of the bill of lading providing against fire as much as if the fire had occurred on boardship and on the other hand if the goods were in the possession of the ship-owners as wharfingers they were not liable for the loss inasmuch as the goods were destroyed by fire without any default on their part. CHEE HOON & Co v SEW MOON & Co I L R 4 Calc 738 3 C L R 585

18 ————— Charges for landing and wharfage—Liability of consignees—A bill of lading given by the defendants to the plaintiff for certain goods contained a stipulation that the goods were to be taken from the steamer's tackle by the consignees as fast as the steamer could discharge failing which the steamer's agents were to be at liberty to land the same into godowns the cost of lighters and godown rents etc thereby incurred to be borne by the respective consignees. Held that under this bill of lading the ship-owners were entitled to charge for landing and wharfage only in default of the consignees failing to take the goods from the steamer's tackle within reasonable time. Held (per POOTER J) that for the speedy discharge of their vessel the ship owners were entitled to land and wharf the goods though not to charge for landing and wharfage unless the plaintiff had had an opportunity of landing the goods himself. COSSIM HOSSAIN SOOBY v LEE PHEE CHUAN [I L R 5 Calc 477 5 C L R 157]

under the bills of lading either over the ship's side or from lighters or a store ship or custom house or warehouse at merchant's risk. Freight was prepaid in Liverpool. On their arrival at Bombay the two steamers went into the Prince's Dock belonging to the Port Trust and discharged the boilers by means of the Port Trust cranes on to the dock wharves. The plaintiff subsequently sent to remove the boilers but was not allowed by the dock authorities to do so until he had paid to them various sums amounting in the aggregate to Rs 30 on account as stated in the bill furnished him by the Port Trust of landing charges for the said boilers. The bills also contained certain additional charges for wharfage. These the plaintiff was ready to pay but the 'landing charges' he paid only under protest and in order to get possession of his goods and now sought to recover the same from the defendants who represented the ship-owners. It was the practice of the Port Trust to recover these charges in all cases from the consignees of goods discharged in their dock and the charge was said to be levied on all goods landed on the wharves of the dock whether by the dock's cranes or by the ship's own tackles. The charge was incurred the moment the goods touched the wharf. In their rates sanctioned by Government which by their Act the Port Trust were entitled to charge this charge was called not a landing charge but a dock and craning charge. Had the plaintiff been given delivery of these goods in the stream and afterwards himself landed them at any wharf belonging to the Port Trust in the Port of Bombay the Port Trust would have sought to have made the same charge for allowing the goods to be landed whether that was done by their appliances or not. Held that the ship-owner and not the consignee was bound to pay these charges they being in reality charges for work and labour done in and about the landing of the goods—an operation which under the bills of lading was within the duty of the ship-owner. Per LATHAM J.—The ship having elected to discharge in the dock it was her duty to land the goods on the wharf. Every charge which had to be incurred before that could be done was a charge antecedent to delivery and one therefore which must be paid by the ship-owner. SCOTT & FRYLAX v. I. L. R. 7 Bom 386

Measurement—Measurement at port of delivery—Discrepancy in measurements—Evidence—Burden of proof—Said by consignee for excess freight—A bill of lading consigned to the plaintiff at Bombay 135 logs of teak timber shipped on board the defendant's ship. The bill of lading which was signed by the defendant described the logs as marked A 1 and measuring tons 115 12 10 and it provided for the payment of freight thereon at Bombay at the rate of Rs 17 per ton of 100 cubic feet on right delivery. The last clause of the bill of lading was in the handwriting of the defendant and was as follows—Marks number quantity and measurement unknown all other conditions as per charter party. The charter-party was expressed to be between the owners of the ship and Messrs. B of Rangoon as charterers of the whole ship and provided for the payment of freight at the rate of Rs 18 per ton of 50 cubic feet for all timber one rate throughout except 100 tons broken stowage at half freight by intake measurement. On arrival of the ship at Bombay the plaintiff as consignee of the timber and holder of the bill of lading paid the defendant (the captain of the ship) Rs 500 on account of freight and took delivery of the 135 logs. On measuring them he found that according to his method of measurement the total measurement of the 135 logs came only to tons 58 27 11 6 and not tons 115 12 10 as mentioned in the bill of lading. He claimed therefore to be chargeable with freight only on the smaller quantity (viz Rs 990 8) and to recover from the defendant the difference (viz Rs 404 8) between that sum and Rs 1500 paid on account as for an overpayment of freight. It was proved that all the timber on board had been measured at Moulmein by an employee of the charterers acting apparently as agent of all the different shippers and that the measurements in the bills of lading were supplied by this person to the defendant as the measurements of the different consignments. It was also proved that the 135 logs received and measured by the plaintiff in Bombay were the same logs that were shipped under the bill of lading and that the plaintiff's measurement of them was correct according to the mode of measurement which he adopted. There was no evidence as to what was the mode of measurement followed at Moulmein nor except the statements in the bill of lading as to what was the actual intake measurement of the timber there. Held that the effect of the last clause in the bill of lading was to incorporate into that document the clause of the charter party which provided that freight should be payable on the intake measurement; that the burden of proving what the intake measurement actually was lay upon the plaintiff who sought to recover back money which he alleged he had paid in excess of what was due and that, in the absence of such evidence on behalf of the plaintiff the statement of quantity contained in the bill of lading was prima facie evidence of the intake measurement of the timber. *CHETTIYERSTONJI STRA v. 24. — Freight Lien for on cargo—Advances on account of freight—Master's lien for freight—Charter-party.—By a charter party made in London the ship B was chartered to carry a cargo from Liverpool to Calcutta where she was to load from the factors of the charterer a full homeward cargo to be carried by her to Europe. Freight for the whole round out and home was made payable on safe delivery of the homeward cargo but at so much per ton of the outward cargo delivered in Calcutta. The master was to have a lien on the cargo for freight etc. cash not exceeding £500 was to be advanced to the ship in Calcutta on account of freight but subject to insurance and £600 was to be advanced by the charterer's acceptance at three months or in cash under discount at charterer's option on the sailing of the vessel from Liverpool less five per cent for insurance. The charterer himself loaded the ship and the master signed a bill of lading which declared the cargo to be shipped by the charterer to be delivered at Calcutta as the agents of the charterer might direct unto order or to his assigns freight to be paid as per charter party. In the margin of the bill was written Received in advance of the within freight £600 as per charter party. The £600 had been paid in cash but by the charterer a bill at three months. The charterer became bankrupt and the bill was dishonoured and the fact of the bankruptcy and dishonour was known in Calcutta when the ship arrived there. On the ship's arrival in Calcutta J O & Co who were the holders for value of the bill of lading demanded delivery of the cargo. The master claimed a right of lien and refused to deliver unless J O & Co would pay the £600 bill which had been dishonoured and would further advance £800 for the ship's use and load a homeward cargo according to the terms of the charter party. Held that J O & Co took the bill of lading with notice of the charter party but that under the circumstances the master had no lien and was bound to deliver the cargo to J O & Co. OGLE v LASHOLM [Bourke □ C 171

25. — Freight Lien for on cargo—Advances on account of freight—Lien of owners.—Goods were shipped deliverable to the order of the shippers or their assigns. The bill of lading stated that freight for said goods was to be paid as per charter party with average accustomed reserving lien in full on cargo for full amount as stipulated thereon. The charter party showed that H & Co undertook to supply a full cargo for the ship and that R H agent for the ship agreed with H & Co that the said ship should proceed to London dock or any other suitable dock for loading salt at party's option or so near thereto as she can safely get to be at all times afloat and in safety and then I add for the charterer's agent a full and complete cargo of salt not exceeding what the master considers sufficient cargo which the charterers engage to ship not exceeding what she can reasonably carry with her stores provisions and furniture and being so loaded shall therewith proceed to Calcutta or so near thereto as she may safely get and there deliver as per bills of lading and on being paid freight at the rate of twenty three shillings per ton. The freight to be paid thus £ 00 by charterer's acceptance at two months on sailing less 2 per cent insurance; or cash on sailing less 5 per cent interest and insurance at charterer's option and the balance in cash on delivery as master requires at current rate of exchange 2 per cent commission to charterers in lieu of consignment. Held that a sum of money payable before the arrival of the ship at her port of discharge and payable by the shippers of the goods at the port of shipment is not freight in the strict legal acceptation of the term with all the incidents of freight in giving the shipowner the right of lien unless it is stipulated for. Here the owners had a lien upon the goods for freight in twelfth loading that the bill of exchange for £ 00 had been given. THOMAS v OGLE [Bourke A □ C 100

26. — Freight Lien for on cargo—Advances on account of freight—Discharge of bills.—The captain of a ship has no lien on the cargo in respect of a portion of the freight stipulated to be advanced and advanced by bills afterwards dishonoured nor in respect of a portion of the freight stipulated to be advanced at the port of discharge. A lien cannot arise in any case when the master has no right to retain the goods till the freight is paid. Such advances are not freight but advances to be made under discount and upon the security of the captain's bill on the freighter. The master has no lien at law or in equity in respect of breaches of covenants in the charter party other than those relating to the payment of freight for goods actually carried. 27. — Claim for short delivery—Place for preferring claim—Condition precedent.—Where a bill of lading contained a clause to the following effect:—Any claim for short delivery or damage done to goods and all other claims whatever to be made at the port of Calcutta and at no other port and the goods are shipped and this bill of lading granted subject to this express condition it was held by the Recorder of Pannoon to operate so as to make the preferring of a claim in Calcutta a condition precedent to a suit in this Court. Held by the High Court that this opinion was correct and that a suit for short delivery under the bill of lading could not be maintained without a claim being made in Calcutta. BILL OF LADING—continued

Burden of proof— Or otherwise meaning of— The plaintiff was the consignee of a large consignment of goods shipped from Bombay in bags on board the defendants' steamship Java for carriage to Zanzibar. On arrival of the Java at Zanzibar the goods were landed by the defendant company and placed in the customs godown where the plaintiff in due course demanded delivery. Some of the bags were not forthcoming but the evidence did not show how the loss had occurred. The bill of lading contained the following condition—The Company's liability shall cease as soon as the packages are free of the ship's tackle after which they shall not be responsible for any loss or damage however caused if stored in receiving ship godown or upon any wharf all risks of fire, dacoity, vermin or otherwise shall be with the merchant and the usual charges shall be paid before delivery of the goods. Fire insurance will be covered by the company's agents on application. In a suit brought by the plaintiff for short delivery of goods—Held that the defendants were liable. They did not show how the loss occurred and as it might have occurred from causes not covered by the exception (eg from misdelivery) they did not bring themselves within the protection afforded by the exemption. The general words or otherwise contained in the tenth clause of the bill of lading could not be read so as to cover all possible losses for that would make them include wilful misconduct on the part of the defendant's servants and general words are not read with such an extended meaning. Nor would they include misdelivery for that was provided for in the eighth clause. BRITISH INDIA STEAM NAVIGATION CO v RATANJI RAMJI

29 — Claim for short delivery—Place for preferring claim— A bill of lading contained a provision that any claim for short delivery or for damage done to goods should be made at the port of Calcutta and not elsewhere. Held that this clause did not affect the plaintiff's right of suit in the Court at Pangoon and that if the defendants meant to object that no claim had been made in Calcutta before the commencement of the suit they should have done so in proper time and in their written statement. An objection on that ground taken for the first time at the hearing of the appeal was disallowed. BRITISH INDIA STEAM NAVIGATION CO v ABRAHIM NOOSSEY

The defendants were owners of a fleet of steam ships plying periodically along the coast of British India by which they undertook to convey for freight parcels of goods for all persons indifferently from and to specified ports. They stipulated in the bills of lading that claims for short delivery should be made at the port of Calcutta only within one month after delivery, of any portion of the goods entered in the bill of lading. Held in a suit against defendants for compensation for value of goods short delivered that this was not an unreasonable stipulation and that a claim made on the agents of the defendants who were authorized only to retain the goods receive freight and give delivery was not a sufficient compliance with the condition. Held also that defendants were common carriers though not for the purposes of the Indian Carriers Act and that their character of carriers continued so long as the goods remained in their hands and undelivered. BRITISH INDIA STEAM NAVIGATION COMPANY v HAJEE MAHOMED ESACK & CO

31 — Delivery of goods to consignee—Cargo unclaimed on arrival of ship—

Rights of ship owner to land goods—Damages by rain—Madras Harbour Trust Act (Madras Act II of 1886)— The defendant's steamship arrived at Madras on 4th December 1891 bringing bags of gram consigned to the plaintiffs under a bill of lading by which the defendants were to have the option of delivering the goods into a receiving ship or landing them at consignee's risk and expense and their liability was to cease when the goods were free of the ship's tackle. The plaintiffs on the date of the arrival of the goods were not authorized to receive them. The plaintiffs set up a custom that cargo of this description ought to be landed on the beach but as this could not be done in the absence of the consignee the defendants landed it the same day on the pier and delivered it into the custody of the Madras Harbour Trust for storage pending delivery to the consignee. On the 8th of December 1891 heavy rain fell and on the same date plaintiffs learnt that the cargo had been delivered on the pier. When the plaintiffs came to take delivery on that day a considerable portion had been damaged by rain for which they now sued the defendants. Held (1) that where the consignees were unable to take delivery in the ordinary way on the beach the master of a ship has the option of landing and warehousing the goods and that delivery to the Harbour Trust for custody was not wrongful. (2) that in the absence of proof that the defendants were negligent or that they failed to deliver the goods the suit must be dismissed. BRITISH INDIA STEAM NAVIGATION COMPANY v ABRAHIM SULAIMAN

3—s 55—Construction of Statute—Or' read more—Order of confiscation—S 55 of the Bombay Abkari Act (V of 1878) provides that no order of confiscation shall be made until the expiration of one month from the date of seizing the things intended to be confiscated or without hearing any person who claims a right thereto and the evidence if any which he produces in support of his claim. Certain casks of vinegar belonging to the plaintiffs were seized by the Collector of Bombay on the 5th November 1891 and an order of confiscation was made on the 17th November 1891. The order

2 ——— Dismemberment of bhag—Narta—Bhag—Alienation previous to Bombay Act V of 1862—The principal object of Bombay Act V of 1862 is to prevent the further dismemberment of bhags or shares in bhagdari villages; it renders null and void any future alienation of any portion of a bhag other than a recognized subdivision but it does not invalidate previous alienations. A sale of a portion of a bhag previously to the passing of Bombay Act V of 1862 amounts to a dismemberment of the bhag and what remains in the bhagdar's hands continues to be a complete bhag while the portion separated from it becomes a new bhag. BHAI SHANKER v COLLECTOR OF LAHSA

In 1864 A and C sold their shares to the plaintiff B and D protested against the sale as being a dismemberment of a bhag and the plaintiff was called upon by the Collector under s 3 of the Act to deliver the deed to be cancelled but declined to do so and applied that the sale should be recognized. By an order the Collector refused to grant his prayer. The plaintiff therefore brought a suit to set aside the order. Both the lower Courts rejected his claim. On appeal to the High Court—Held confirming the decree of the lower Appellate Court that the sale to the plaintiff having been effected after the Bombay Bhagdari Act (V of 1862) had come into force was void. 2 ——— Sale of unascertained shares in an undivided bhag—Dismemberment—Physical dismemberment—Right to sue to set aside illegal sales—S 1 of the Bombay Bhagdari Act (V of 1862) does not prohibit the sale of an unascertained share of an undivided bhag. The object and intention of the Act is to prevent a physical dismemberment of a bhag or recognized subdivisions thereof and not a mere increase in the number of persons who may from time to time be owners of the bhag. S 2 of the Act does not bar the right of any person prejudicially affected by any illegal sale from suing to set aside the sale. Four brothers owned a bhag in common. In 1861 the right title and interest of three of the brothers in the bhag was sold in execution of decrees against them. The defendants were the auction purchasers. for the amelioration of the condition of talukhdars in the Ahmedabad Collectorate and for their relief from debt was intended to deal with all debts and liabilities which could possibly impose a charge upon the talukhdari estate at the end of the period of management when the estate was to be restored to the talukhdar free of incumbrance excepting the Government revenue. If debts amounted to more than the surplus of rents during the management of which the maximum period was twenty years they were not to be paid. A widow as guardian of her infant son the heir of talukhdari estate in the above district validly transferred villages part thereof and in the deed of transfer to which her ward was, by her as his guardian nominally a party contracted to indemnify the purchaser in case the Government should claim and enforce a right to revenue upon the villages which she transferred as being rent free. The deed purported to make both guardian and ward personally liable in this respect and also charged the liability upon other parts of the talukhdari estate. The infant attained majority and the estate was then placed under management within Act VI of 1862. During the period of management the Government claimed and enforced payment of revenue upon the villages. Held that there was no personal liability on the part of the talukhdar created by the above; also that if the charge on the estate had been validly made it fell at all events within the terms of s 12 of Act VI of 1862 absolving estates from liability for debts incurred not only before but during the period of management WAGHDA RAJESHWJI v MASUDJI

His personal liability for the same remains unaffected by the Act. This personal liability furnishes a sufficient consideration for a subsequent obligation so as to bind the landed estates by a contract made after the period of the management by the Talukhdari Officer had expired. From and after the expiration of that period the talukhdar becomes under s 20 the absolute proprietor

2. — and s. 33—Street—Authority of the municipality under s. 33—Civil Court's interference with the discretion given to public bodies—The word "street" in s. 17 of the Bombay District Municipal Act (VI of 1873) means and includes not merely the surface of the ground but so much above and below it as is requisite or appropriate for the preservation of the street for the usual and intended purposes. The plaintiff proposed to make a balcony projecting over a public road. The municipality objected to the work as an encroachment on a public street. He therefore sued the municipality to establish his right to build the proposed balcony. Held that so far as the column of space standing over the street was vested in the municipality the plaintiff had no right to occupy it with a balcony which by intercepting light and air would greatly impair the use of the area as a street. S. 33 of the Bombay District Municipal Act 1873 gives the municipality a discretion to issue such orders as it thinks proper with reference to a proposed building. Civil Courts cannot interfere with that discretion unless it is exercised in a capricious, wanton and oppressive manner. The plaintiff was the owner of two houses on each side of the passage of a khidki or open square containing three or four other houses. He proposed to connect the two houses by building a story across the passage at such a height as not to interfere with the passage of those who were entitled to go to and fro. He applied to the local municipality for permission to build in the manner he proposed. The municipality forbade the work on the ground that it was likely to interfere with the access of light and air to the neighbouring houses. The plaintiff thereupon sued the municipality to establish his right to build the proposed structure. It was contended for the plaintiff that the municipality ought not to have refused permission in the interests of the neighbouring house-holders who were able to protect their own rights in case of injury. Held that the suit would not lie in the order of the municipality refusing permission was not an unreasonable one under the circumstances of the case. Held further that the authority of the municipality was not in any way affected by the circumstance that the proposed erection might be an encroachment on private rights subjecting the plaintiff to an action by the persons injured. NAOAR VALAB HARSIT v. (7) and s. 32—Tax imposed by municipality—In 1891 the municipality of Surat appointed a committee to revise the taxation of the city proposing to reduce some of the existing taxes and impose others with a view (inter alia) of obtaining a better water supply for the city. A scheme of taxation drafted by the committee was subsequently adopted by the municipality and it included a new house and property tax. The municipality then issued a notice with regard to this last-mentioned tax under the provisions of s. 21 of Bombay Act VI of 1873 setting forth the particulars of the proposed tax and requiring objections to be lodged within a fortnight from the date of the notice. A number of objections were received which were laid on the table for twenty-one days for perusal and consideration by the municipal commissioners. At the end of that time a special meeting of the Commissioners was held, at which it was resolved that the objections were invalid and the scheme and the rules with regard to the levying of the tax were forwarded to Government and were sanctioned. The plaintiffs sued for an injunction restraining the municipality from levying the tax contending that it was illegal, on the ground (1) that there was no municipality desire of imposing the tax for any of the purposes allowed by the Act (inasmuch as the commissioners who passed the resolution to impose the tax did not know for what purpose the tax was to be imposed; (2) that the resolution imposing the tax was illegal.

BOMBAY DISTRICT MUNICIPAL ACT (VI OF 1873)—continued

August 1890 plaintiffs sent a notice to the town municipality of Umreth intimating their intention to erect a building on their land, and giving a rough sketch plan of the land intended to be built upon. In this notice plaintiffs did not expressly state their intention to build the wall in dispute. On the 25th August 1890 the municipality wrote to the plaintiffs requiring them to furnish a plan showing the design of the proposed building with its measurements. On the 30th September 1890 the plaintiffs without furnishing the plan as required built a wall on their land. Thereupon the municipality gave a notice to the plaintiffs requiring them to pull it down as it has been built without their permission. The plaintiffs having failed to comply with this notice the wall was demolished and its materials were carried away by the municipal servants. Thereupon the plaintiffs sued the municipality to recover damages for the wrongful demolition of the wall. Held that the plaintiffs had contravened the provisions of cl 1 of s 33 of Bombay Act VI of 1873 inasmuch as they had built the wall without giving any notice or (if they did) gave notice without affording the information required by the municipality. The municipality were therefore justified in ordering the wall to be demolished. DAYA HARI SHANKAR v. TOWN MUNICIPALITY OF UMRETH I L R 19 Bom 27

Such a suit can therefore be brought without giving previous notice to the municipality. Apart from the provisions of s 33 of Bombay Act VI of 1873 it is only if the site of a building is vested in a municipality under s 17 that this body is empowered whether by s 42 or by any other section to take steps for the removal of the building. The discretion of taking action or other wise under the 3rd clause of s 33 is vested in the municipality which alone can determine whether or not the removal of a building erected contrary to the provisions of s 33 is or is not a measure likely to promote the public convenience. — s 36—Privy power of municipality to order to be built by owner of a house—Such order not imperative—But permission—Discretion of Court—The terms of s 36 of Bombay Act VI of 1873 are not imperative in requiring a municipality to call on the owner of a house to build a privy but are permissive leaving it to the discretion of the municipality to determine when the power conferred on them shall be exercised. Accordingly where the plaintiff complains that the defendants had erected a privy so close to his house as to be a nuisance and the lower Appellate Court found it to be a nuisance but rejected the plaintiff's claim on the ground that the defendants had erected the same under the orders of the municipality issued under s 31 of the Act—Held reversing the decree of the lower Appellate Court that the municipality had no authority to order the defendants to erect the privy regardless of the plaintiff's right and that the defendants therefore could not plead that they acted under the orders of the municipality. The High Court directed an injunction to remove the privy within three months from the date of its decision. JAYI SAHYA v KADIR RAHMAT I L R 12 Bom 634

— s 42 cl (1) and ss 48 and 75—Removal of obstruction in public street—Notice of removal—Corporate bodies—Practice—Suit for injunction—Under the District Municipal Act (Bombay Act VI of 1873) a municipality has power to have all obstructions in a public street removed whether the obstructions were placed there lawfully or not. The only distinction which the Act draws is between obstructions erected or placed before the Act came into operation and those which have been erected or placed since it came into operation. As to the former s 42 cl (1) of the Act provides that notice should be given and if legally placed on the street compensation should be awarded for their removal. As to the latter the municipality can remove them under s 48 even without giving any notice. The public have a right of passing over the whole of a street if it is a public street. The second class Magistrate convicted and sentenced each of the accused to pay a fine of Rs 5. The District Magistrate, relying on the case of In re Paba Khaji I L R 9 Bom 272 reversed the conviction and sentence. Held that what the municipality had authority to direct under s 66 of (Bombay) Act VI of 1873 was that no place other than the municipal market or other places licensed as markets should be used by any body as a market but they had no authority to issue a notification affecting other places which might be used for selling vegetables etc otherwise than as a market that inasmuch as the using of the shop by the accused was confined simply to the selling of fruit and not of "vegetables in the popular sense it could not be affected by the prohibition contemplated by s 66 of the Act. After the promulgation of this order the accused gave a feast in a private house to upwards of thirty people of his caste. He was thereupon convicted under s. 188 of the Penal Code for disobedience of an order duly promulgated by a public servant and sentenced to pay a fine of Rs 5. Held (reversing the conviction and sentence) that s. 73 of the Bombay District Municipal Act (VI of 1873) did not empower the municipality to place an interdiction on people meeting together to eat and drink in their own houses. The words in the section 'take such measures as may be deemed necessary to prevent meet or suppress the outbreak' imply in themselves something actively to be done by the municipality rather than any limitation to be imposed on the private rights of the citizens in their relations of daily life. Special measures for the health of the town—such as sulphur fumigation daily flushing of sewers assistance on good house sanitation isolation of infected districts and other similar steps to be taken by the authorities themselves—fall naturally within the meaning of the terms of the section. A tax payer applied to the managing committee for a reduction of the tax but his application was dismissed. Default having been made in payment of the tax A was prosecuted under s. The part of the ground to which the public were admitted was fenced in by ropes and soldiers were stationed at intervals to prevent any persons entering or leaving the enclosure otherwise than through the passages provided for the purpose. The Inspector of Police who was present on duty in that capacity contrary to the regulations prescribed by the stewards of the races crossed over the fencing ropes into the enclosure instead of going in by the regular entrance. This was reported to the honorary secretary of the club who had general charge of the arrangements. He sent for the inspector and after an interview with him ordered two soldiers who were in attendance to keep order to put him out of the enclosure. They accordingly did so laying hands on him in the first instance but immediately at his request letting him go and merely escorting him outside. It was contended for the defendants as to these two plots of land that the plaintiffs had no right to cultivate them as they had been made a part of a village site and on that understanding they had not been numbered at the survey in 1863 and had been exempted from assessment for twenty years. As to the bed of the stream it was contended that the stream was a public stream and that the bed of the stream as it dried up belonged to Government and not to the plaintiffs. It was held by the lower Appellate Court that s. 61 of the Bombay Land Revenue Code applied; that Government were competent to set apart a portion of the lands comprised in the sanad of the plaintiffs for a village site and that as these lands had not been numbered at the survey of 1863 and had been exempt from assessment for more than twenty years the plaintiffs had lost their right to cultivate them. On appeal to the High Court—Held (reversing the decree of the lower Court) that the plaintiffs were entitled to the declaration prayed for. Held also (1) that s. 61 of the Bombay Land Revenue Code did not apply. That section relates back to s. 38 and both refer only to lands the property of Government in unalienated villages or unalienated portions of villages. They do not empower the Government to confiscate any land belonging to an inamdar and to confer it on the persons living in his village. (2) That the mere omission to number the plots of land could not have the effect of turning them into a part of the village site or take away the right of the plaintiffs. Nor did the omission of Government to assess these lands deprive the plaintiffs of them or make them the property of Government. 16th June 1893, the Collector of Satara in proceedings under s 71 of the Land Revenue Code (Bombay Act V of 1879) ordered K's name to be registered in the revenue books in place of V's. Prior to this however the plaintiff and other tenants paid B rents for 1892-93. The plaintiff in August 1893 brought this suit to restrain K from recovering the rents and to avoid the order for assistance. The Subordinate Judge granted the injunction but the District Judge reversed that decision and dismissed the suit on the ground that K was the registered occupant of the land and that the order for assistance was valid and that payment of rent to B did not discharge the tenants. When a talukhdar village is attached under s 159 of the Code for arrears of land revenue so long as the attachment subsists an order of forfeiture under s 153 is illegal. The plaintiff was the talukhdar of the village of K. At the end of the revenue year 1878-79 that is on 31st July 1879 the plaintiff was a defaulter in respect of the assessment payable to Government for that year. In November 1879 a punitive police post was established in the village under s 16 of Bombay Act VII of 1867 on account of the turbulent conduct of the inhabitants. Between April and January 1880 the Collector sold certain property of the talukhdar for arrears of revenue and realized by the sale a sum of Rs 608 a sum more than sufficient to cover the arrears due for 1878-79 as well as the assessment payable for 1879 but the Collector after deducting

the arrears due for 1878-79 applied the rest of the sale-proceeds towards the payment of the cost of the punitive post. The assessment for 1879-80 having remained unpaid the village was attached on the 1st July 1880 under s 159 of the Bombay Land Revenue Code (Act V of 1879). The attachment was followed on the 6th January 1881 by an order declaring the village to be forfeited under s 153 of the Code. In 1886 the plaintiff sued Government to recover possession of the village and for a declaration that the order of forfeiture was illegal and ultra vires. The defendant contended that it was valid and legal. Held that the village having been attached for arrears of land revenue under s 159 of Bombay Act V of 1879 on the 1st July 1880 the plaintiff had twelve years time from the date of the attachment within which he could apply for the restoration of the village under s 163 of the Act. The order of forfeiture of the 6th January 1881 was therefore null and void. Held (per BIRDWOOD J.) that the Collector had no power under s 16 of Bombay Act VII of 1867 to recover the cost of the punitive post from the talukhdar (1) as he was not an inhabitant of the village and (2) because the cost could only be defrayed by a local rate imposed on the inhabitants of the district in which the punitive post was established. *SAMALDAS BECHAR DESAI v. s 162—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882) s 244—Mortgage with possession—Default by mortgagee in payment of assessment—Sale for arrears of revenue—Certified purchasers—Purchase for mortgagee—Purchasers or mortgagee trustees for mortgagor—Suit by mortgagor for redemption—In 1872 the plaintiff's father mortgaged three plots of land (Nos 303, 304, and 305) to the first defendant with possession. In 1880 and 1881 the first defendant having made default in paying the assessment plots Nos 303 and 304 were sold by the revenue authorities and were bought respectively by defendants Nos 2 and 3. In the latter year (1881) plot No 304 was sold in execution of a money decree obtained by the mortgagee (defendant No 1) against the mortgagor and was purchased by him (the first defendant's) undivided brother without leave of the Court. In 1882 the plaintiffs (heirs of the mortgagor) brought this suit against defendants Nos 1, 2 and 3 to redeem the said three plots of land from the mortgage of 1872. Defendant No 1 pleaded that he had inherited plot No. 304 from his brother who had become the owner of plot No 304 by his purchase at the execution sale in 1881. He disclaimed all interest in plots Nos 303 and 304. Defendants Nos 2 and 3 answered that they had become absolute owners by the purchase at the revenue sales. As to these latter it was alleged that defendants Nos 2 and 3 were in possession of the said two plots for the first defendant. Defendants Nos 2 and 3 contended that by

BOMBAY LAND REVENUE ACT (V OF 1879)—cont. used

s 182 of the Land Revenue Code the plaintiffs were precluded from raising this point. Held that though s. 182 forbade the Court to entertain a suit against defendants Nos. 2 and 3 on the ground that they had bought the land for defendant No. 1 it did not debar it from entertaining a suit against them on the ground that subsequently to the sale they were holding on behalf of defendant No. 1 or against defendant No. 1 on the ground that he was himself really in possession through defendants Nos. 2 and 3 as his agents or tenants. The same principle of equity which would make defendant No. 1 a trustee for the mortgagors if he had bought in his own name would make defendants Nos. 2 and 3 trustees for them if subsequently to the sale they held the land on behalf of defendant No. 1 and would also make defendant No. 1 himself a trustee if subsequently to the sale the property came into his possession as beneficially entitled thereto owing to an agreement between him and the certified purchasers. GEVU v. It was plain that in cases falling within sub cls (a) and (c) of s 216 of the Land Revenue Code the inamdar's interest in the assessment would not be affected by the application of Chs VIII to X of that Act. He would still get the old assessment in the alienated lands in the village in the former case and the same amount of assessment in the latter and the same must have been the intention in cases contemplated by sub cl. 1 — s 8—Local cess—Landlord and tenant—Fraudulent collection of cess—The plaintiffs sued to recover back from the defendant the amount levied by him as local cess on certain wasta lands belonging to the plaintiffs, the defendant claiming to be the superior holder of the village in which the lands were situated. The amount was levied by the defendant through the assistance of the mamlatdar under Bombay Act III of 1869 s 8. The defendant contended that in consequence of a demand from Government he had paid local cess on the whole of his taluk, including the village in which the plaintiffs' lands were situated and was therefore entitled under ss 69 and 70 of the Contract Act (IX of 1872) to recover from them the amount which he had paid to Government as a portion of the cess which rateably fell upon their lands. It was found that the defendant was not the proprietor of the lands held by the plaintiffs and that the relation of landlord and tenant did not exist between them; also that defendant paid local cess for the plaintiffs' lands fraudulently and with the intention of thereby making evidence of title to their lands knowing that he had no lawful or just claim to them. Held that the defendant was not the superior holder of the lands within s 8 of Bombay Act III of 1869 and was therefore not entitled to the assistance of the revenue officers of Government to recover the cess provided by that section for superior holders as against tenants and occupants although he might have paid the local cess due on the land in the plaintiffs' possession and that consequently the aid of the mamlatdar was illegally and improperly given to the defendant for the recovery of the amount from the plaintiffs. Held also that the defendant was not a person

In December 1886 the Municipal Commissioner pursuant to s. 166 of the Bombay Municipal Acts III of 1872 and IV of 1878 required the trustees of the mosque to set back the building on the said three sides for the purpose of improving the public streets. It was contended that the amount of compensation to be paid to the trustees was to be measured by the loss of rent which they would have received for certain rooms which they had proposed to build on the land in question. Compensation becomes due under the section as soon as the Corporation takes possession which is when the owner begins to build and there being no words in the section to show a contrary intention the compensation must be assessed according to the state of things then existing and not upon the basis of what the owner may have it in his power to do towards diminishing the damage which would otherwise result to him. s. 158—Tax—Drawback—General con ditions prescribed by the Standing Committee limit ing right to drawback—Under s. 158 of the City of Bombay Municipal Act (Bombay Act III of 1888) the following general conditions were prescribed by the Standing Committee with reference to claims for draw back of the general property tax leviable in Bombay—

(1) Except with the special sanction of the Com missioner no claim for drawback shall be enter tained unless submitted to the Commissioner not less than thirty days before the commencement of the half year to which such claim relates. (2) Drawback of the one-fifth part of the general tax shall be sanctioned by the Commissioner in cases falling within either of the following classes and in no others—(a) Chawls or buildings let out for hire in single rooms either as lodging or godowns for the storage of goods. (b) Properties which in the opinion of the Commissioner are usually or frequently vacant either wholly or partially. (3) No sanction for drawback shall extend or apply to any floor on which trade or manufacture is carried on or any goods are sold. The Commissioner having refused to sanc tion a drawback of the tax leviable on certain prop erties of the plaintiff on the ground that they did not fall within the terms of the above conditions, the plaintiff filed this suit. It was contended on his behalf that the second and third of the above con ditions were bad and that the Standing Committee could not by so called general conditions limit or curtail the right given to tax payers by s. 158. Held that the conditions prescribed by the Standing Committee were not ultra vires and that the Com missioner was justified in refusing the drawback. *GOVARDHANDAS GOUDLHAS TEJPAL v. 2. — and ss 504 and 527—*Land taken by the municipality for street improvement—Compensation for land taken—Dispute as to amount of compensation—Notice of suit—Limitation—In 1891 the municipal authorities of Bombay gave notice to the plaintiffs under s 299 of Bombay Act III of 1888 that they required 23 30 square yards of the plaintiffs' land for street improvement. On the 14th December 1891 the plaintiff gave possession of the land to the municipality and on 27th January 1892 claimed Rs60 per square yard as compensation. By letter dated 23rd February 1892 the Municipal Commissioner (without prejudice) offered Rs50 per square yard as compensation and stated that on the plaintiff producing the title-deeds and papers to establish his title the necessary documents in connection with the payment would be prepared. Nothing further took place in the matter until the 14th February 1894 on which date the plaintiff wrote a letter to the Municipal Commissioner in which without mentioning any sum he requested the payment of the amount which might be due to him as compensation for his land taken by the municipality. The Commissioner refused to pay the compensation contending that the plaintiffs' claim was time-barred. The plaintiff thereupon brought this suit claiming Rs165 (being at the rate of Rs50 per square yard) as compensation for the land taken by the defendant or in the alternative for that sum as damages for the breach of contract to pay purchase money for the land. The defendant pleaded (1) that notice under s 527 of the Municipal Act (Bombay Act III of 1888) was necessary before suit filed and (2) that the suit was barred by limitation. The Chief Judge of the Small Cause Court found for the defendant with costs and dismissed the suit contingent on the opinion of the High Court. On a case stated for the High Court—Held (1) that notice under s 527 of Bombay Act III of 1888 was not necessary that action not being applicable to suits brought to enforce payment of compensation under s 301 of the Act; (2) that the suit was not barred by limitation. PER FARREN J—A suit against the municipality of Bombay for compensation for land acquired by the municipality under s 299 of Bombay Act III of 1888 is not an action of tort or quasi tort but a simple action for the price of land which the terms of s 301 of the Act impose upon the Commissioner to pay. The obligation to pay that price is of the same nature (1) whether the owner assents to the valuation of the land placed upon it by the Commissioner; (2) whether the value is determined by the Chief Judge of the Small Cause Court or (3) whether it is left undetermined. s 527 does not apply to any of these three cases. In all of them the obligation to pay is imposed by s 301 and does not arise from the manner in which the amount of the price to be paid is arrived at. s 504 prescribes the only mode in which in case of dispute the value of the land can be determined. If the owner of land disputes the Commissioner's valuation he must apply to the Chief Judge of the Small Cause Court within a year. If he does not do so the result is that he loses the power of effectually disputing the Commissioner's valuation but does not lose his right to the amount of the valuation. The owner of land has a remedy independent of the provision of s. 304. That section only deals with cases where there is a dispute as to the value of the land and leaves untouched those cases where there is no such dispute but where the Commissioner for some reason declines to pay. In such cases the owner is left to his ordinary remedy, no special mode of procedure being prescribed. Cases in which there has been a dispute but in which the owner abandons his claim to dispute the valuation of the Commissioner fall within the latter category. MANEKJI MOTILAL v MUNICIPAL COMMISSIONER OF BOMBAY

Meaning of.—One R was served with a notice under s 353 of the City of Bombay Municipal Act (Bombay Act III of 1888) requiring him to reduce the height of a building which he had erected. The building was completed in June 1893 and the notice was issued on 18th January 1894. R was prosecuted for not complying with this notice. He contended that the notice was time barred as it had not been given within three months after the completion of the building. In answer to this plea it was urged on behalf of the municipality that the building could not be said to have been completed, unless and until such accommodations as privies and cesspools had been executed in accordance with the requirements of the Health Department and that therefore the notice was within time. Held that the notice was time barred. The word completion in s 353 of Bombay Act III of 1888 must be taken in its ordinary sense and the Court cannot read into the section in accordance with sanitary regulations or sanitary officers' opinions. The notice stated that in the opinion of the Commissioner the ground accumulated water in the monsoon and caused nuisance to the tenants of two chawls situated on the premises. The owner was therefore required by the notice to fill in the low lying ground with sweet earth to the level of the road and slope it towards the new drain on the road side. Magistrate under s. 471 of the Municipal Act (Bombay Act III of 1888). Held reversing the conviction and sentence that the notice was illegal. The words used in s 381 are 'low ground' which is not the same as low lying ground. And though the section gives power to the Commissioner to require the owner of low ground to cleanse and fill up the same it does not permit him to issue an order that an indefinite extent of low lying ground shall be filled up much less that it shall be filled up to some particular level or filled up with sweet earth or that it shall be sloped in a particular direction. MUNICIPAL COMMISSIONER OF BOMBAY v HARI DWARAKJI I L R, 24 Bom. 125

Held that the latter order was illegal under s 472 of the Act. The section requires a separate prosecution for a distinct offence a prosecution in which a charge must be laid for a specific contravention for a specific number of days and for which charge if proved the Magistrate is to impose a daily fine of an amount which is left to his discretion to determine. — s 527—Suit for damages against Municipal Commissioner—Notice of suit—What is sufficient notice.—The plaintiffs were owners of a house consisting of a ground floor and upper story and measuring 77 feet in length. On the south side of the house was a gully 3 feet 8 inches wide separating it from another upper storied house. The plaintiffs in this suit complained that in January 1891 the defendant by his servants dug a trench 8 feet deep along the whole length of the gully for the purpose of laying a drain pipe and that the work was done so negligently that the plaintiffs' house was injured and became in such a dangerous condition that it had to be pulled down. The plaintiffs claimed Rs3996 as damages. The defendant denied the negligence and alleged that the work was not done by his servants or agents but by a contractor. For the defendant it was contended that the notice of action given by the plaintiffs under s 527 of the Bombay Municipal Act (III of 1888) was insufficient. The notice stated that one S L a contractor under you and as such being your agent and servant excavated a trench etc. It was argued that this was not a good notice as it only alleged s

2. — Limitation—Limitation of Act 1877 art 120—Attachment for arrears of revenue—Suit for declaration that order of forfeiture was illegal—Bombay District Police Act (Bombay Act VII of 1867) s 4—Punitive police post—The plaintiff was the talukhdar of the village of K. At the end of the revenue year 1878 79 i.e. on 31st July 1879 the plaintiff was a defaulter in respect of the assessment payable to Government for that year. In November 1879 a punitive police post was established in the village under s 16 of Bombay Act VII of 1867 on account of the turbulent conduct of the inhabitants. Between January and April 1880 the Collector sold certain property of the talukhdar for arrears of revenue and realized by the sale a sum of Rs 1603 12 8. This sum was more than sufficient to cover the arrears due for 1878 79 as well as the assessment payable for 1879 80 but the Collector after deducting the arrears due for 1878 79 applied the rest of the proceeds towards the payment of the cost of the punitive post. The assessment for 1879 80 having remained unpaid the village was attached on the 1st of July 1880 under s 159 of the Bombay Land Revenue Code (Act V of 1879). The attachment was allowed on the 6th January 1881 by an order declaring the village to be forfeited under s 153 of the Code. In 1886 the plaintiff filed the present suit against Government to recover possession of the village and for a declaration that the order of forfeiture was illegal and ultra vires. The defendant pleaded in alibi that the suit was barred under s 4 cl (c) of the Bombay Revenue Jurisdiction Act (X of 1876) that it was also barred by limitation. Held (a) that the plaintiff's claim for a declaration that the order of forfeiture was illegal was not barred by s 4 cl (c) of Act X of 1876 as the order of forfeiture could not be considered a proceeding for the realization of land revenue. The proceeding authorized by law for the realization of land revenue i.e. the attachment of the village having been taken no other proceeding could legally be taken as against the plaintiff till the expiration of twelve years from the date of the attachment. Held further that the claim for a declaration that the order of forfeiture was illegal was not time barred as it was governed by art 120 of the Limitation Act (XV of 1877) SAMAJDAS BECHAR DESAI c SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA I. 3. — Service inam land—Suit for a declaration of title to trees thereon and for damages—Jurisdiction of Civil Court—Hereditary Offices Act (Bombay Act III of 1874)—Hereditary officer—Officiator—The plaintiff complained that he was prevented from cutting the trees growing on land situate in the village of Tungarh belonging to certain persons who had sold the trees to him. He claimed damages and an injunction restraining the Collector from interfering with him. The defendant pleaded that the trees did not belong to the plaintiff's vendors being on service inam land. The lower Court dismissed the plaintiff's claim holding that the land on which the trees were growing was service inam land and that the plaintiff's vendors had no title to them. On appeal the High Court on the evidence upheld the lower Court's decision that the land was inam service land but held that it did not necessarily follow that the trees upon it were the property of Government and not of the vatandars. The latter might be the owners of the trees subject to a condition. The case was therefore remanded to the District Court for a finding on an issue as to whether the holders of service inam lands had a title to the trees on the lands, and if so whether they had the right to cut down trees without the permission of the Collector. On this finding the District Judge found in the affirmative. The case then came again before the High Court when a preliminary objection was taken that under s 4 of Act X of 1876 the Court had no jurisdiction. Held that it having been decided that land in question was service inam land the Court under s 4 cl (a) of Bombay Act X of 1876 ceased to have jurisdiction over the plaintiff's claim against Government in respect of the trees growing thereon as such claims related to property appertaining to the office of a village officer. 1 ——— Revenue survey—Entry of tenants in registers—Landlord and tenant—The mere entry of the names of the tenants of a khot in the Government registers as occupants under the Revenue Survey Act, I (Bombay) of 1863 does not constitute an injury to the landlord of a tangible kind of which the Civil Courts can take cognizance. The khot's rights as landlord if they can be established cannot be prejudiced by any proceeding under the Survey Act there being nothing in that Act or the rules framed under it which affects the rights of subjects of the Government inter se. The utmost benefit which the tenants can derive as against their landlord from being entered as occupants under the Act is a right to claim a deduction of the amount of assessment paid by them direct to the Government. If they deny his title he can sue them either to establish his title and recover the full rent due to him under his contract with them or to eject them as holding possession of his lands by a title which they themselves repudiate. BAM C SURVEY COMMISSIONER AND THE COLLECTOR OF BAYAGIRI

2 — Boundary dispute—

Boundary dispute as used in the Survey Act (Bombay Act I of 1835) means a contention between two adjoining land proprietors as to where a boundary line or boundary marks has or have been fixed by the survey officers. After the functions of the latter officers have ceased in a district the Collector acting under Act III of 1846 is the proper officer to determine such a dispute and fix the proper position of the boundary marks. But where a landholder claims to recover from a neighbouring landholder land alleged to have been usurped or encroached upon by the latter the person aggrieved must file his plaint in Court (which in the case of a claim for immovable property may be the Court of the Mawlatdar or the ordinary Civil Court) where the determination of the Collector as to the proper position of the boundary line or marks (although it of itself confers or withdraws no right of possession) affords valuable evidence in adjudicating upon the rights of the parties. PITAMBAR DHARI v. The lease and his heirs held the site from the date of the lease down to 1874 without paying or being required to pay any land tax or rent to Government. I shall not lay any claim to any payment made except in this way.' Held that though the defendant at the time of the adjustment disputed the correctness of the account yet that by having executed the bond and made payments under it he must be held to have waived his objection and in a suit on the bond could not be permitted to re-open the question of the correctness of the balance though he might possibly have been allowed to do so had he alleged that

Subsequently they agreed with the rightful heir to compromise the suit which compromise however was never acted upon partly owing it was alleged to the subsequent conduct of the heir. At the date of the compromise the heir who had just attained his majority and was without proper counsel or assistance and acted under threats from the plaintiff a powerful and wealthy banker that he would carry on the litigation against him per fas aut nefas was induced contrary to his own judgment and sense of right and without any evidence that the sum

In a suit brought by the plaintiff against the heir to enforce this last mentioned bond—Held that the said was wholly invalid and fraudulent as against the defendant and that as there was no privity of contract between the plaintiff and defendant independently of the bond, it could not stand as a security for anything which might be justly due to him the widow was demise—the transaction even if valid did not amount to a novation for the plaintiff never abandoned his claim against the widow but only agreed to abandon his remedy against them in case he obtained satisfaction of his claim from the heir. CHEDANBARA CHETTY v PERIA KRISHNA MUTHU PICHANAI NAIKAR

The latter agreed to release the tenants from payment of rent to himself and the tenants (who were parties to the arrangement) agreed to pay their rents to the creditor. No mutation of names in favour of the creditor was effected in the revenue registers. The creditor brought a suit against the debtor to recover the principal and interest agreed to be paid under the bond alleging that he had never received any rents under the jamig. Held that the effect of the jamig or mutation was that the plaintiff's right to recover interest from the defendant was gone and the plaintiff was therefore not entitled to maintain his suit against the defendant in respect of the interest which was payable under the bond. ACTU VIVON v ALPHONSA DAHL

1. ——— Demarcation of boundary line—Beng Reg X of 1822 ss 2 3 and 8—Suit for declaration of boundary contrary to survey award—Proprietary rights Exercise of—Presumption of ownership—Beng Reg XI of 1825 s 6 cl 12—At the time of the Permanent Settlement the northern boundary of the pergunnah Shooosing (situated in Mymensingh at the foot of the Garo hills) was not defined by Government from before that time and certainly for more than sixty years the zamindars of the pergunnah have always but in an irregular and uncertain manner exercised certain rights in the Garro hills and over the inhabitants who are half savages such as hunting elephants cutting wood levying cesses on the inhabitants when possible (including in some parts of the hills a tribute of one rupee per hut) and exacting occasional services from them. Government held a survey and declared the northern boundary of pergunnah Shooosing to be a line running along the base of the Garro hills. The zamindar thereupon sued to set aside the survey and for a declaration that the northern boundary lay many miles further north and that the intermediate hill country belonged to him as forming part of pergunnah Shooosing. Held (by STONE HARE J) that the acts of possession proved by the zamindar were sufficient under the circumstances to prove his proprietary right in the disputed tract and for the passing of a decree in his favour. Held (by MACPHERSON J) that they were not sufficient to entitle him to a decree being acts of mere easement independent of possession. Held by PEACOCK C J JACKSON and PHEAR JJ on appeal under the Letters Patent—The rules laid down by Regulation X of 1802 were intended to take effect only within the tract of country described in s 2 within which the administration of civil and criminal justice etc was by s 3 declared to be vested in an officer to be denominated the Civil Commissioner of the north eastern parts of Bengal. The proviso in s 3 was not intended to give statutory powers to the Governor General in Council in respect of other tracts of the country and cl 2 of the same section did not intend to take away the power of any Civil Court except within that tract. The proviso contained in s 8 does not authorize Government to separate any part of the Garro country beyond that described in s 2 from the district and from the general Regulations but merely directs the separation of such tracts from the estates of the neighbouring zamindars and the discontinuance of the collection of cesses by the zamindars from the Garros. By cl 2 s 8 the jurisdiction of the Civil Courts is taken away only in respect of acts of the above description done under the authority of the Government but that does not take away the right of a zamindar to contest a survey award drawing a line which deprives him of part of his zamindari and his permanently settled estate. Where a Rajah had exercised rights and collected dues on certain hills and in forests north of an alleged line and it was the unanimous opinion of all the revenue authorities that the forests were within his permanently settled estate the assumption by them and Government of such line as the boundary of the Rajah's estate throwing upon him the onus of proving his claim to any portion north of that line was held to be arbitrary and anomalous. If such proceedings were adopted under cl 1 s 6 Regulation IX of 1825 they were wholly irregular and the irregularity can be no ground for excluding the Court from examining them. When a man is found exercising on both sides of a boundary line without objection rights of ownership or local rights, and when it is not shown that there is any other owner of the soil or that any objection to the exercise of such rights was made during a long course of years his acts cannot be treated as the encroachments of a wrong doer. Per PHEAR J—Where acts of user illustrate all the modes of enjoyment of which a disputed property can reasonably be expected to be capable it can be rightly attributed to proprietary of the tract upon which they were exercised. A broker is entitled to his commission where he has induced in the vendor the contracting mind the willingness to open negotiations upon a reasonable basis even though a change or modification of the terms of the contract is made by the buyer and seller without his intervention. A broker sued the Municipality of Bombay for brokerage in respect of lands purchased by them. Held that if during the time that the broker was negotiating with the vendor the latter was induced to consent to the sale the broker was entitled to his brokerage. It was not material to inquire what operated upon the mind of the vendor and whether it was the advice of friends or the knowledge that his land could be acquired compulsorily by the persuasion of the broker. It was sufficient to supply the broker's claim if the vendor's acceptance of the term was brought about during his intervention; and the fact that the Municipality Commissioner stepped in at the last moment and himself actually struck the bargain did not deprive the broker of his brokerage. 2— Suit for brokerage—Contract effected by broker not carried out by purchaser—Quantum meruit—The plaintiff was employed by the defendants as broker to sell certain property. The defendants' letter dated 3rd January 1890 engaging him as broker stated as follows—It is understood that the brokerage will be paid on receipt by us of the money and that this transaction is to be completed within a fortnight from date. The plaintiff negotiated with one Pestonji Patel and his brother who eventually agreed to become purchasers but stipulated for four or five months within which to pay the purchase money. On the 1st February 1890 the defendants through the plaintiff finally closed the contract with the purchasers one of the terms of which provided that Rs 10,000 should be paid immediately as earnest and the balance (Rs 1,000) of the purchase money to be paid within four months. The purchasers were however unable to pay the Rs 10,000 earnest money and they handed to the defendants three Bank of Bombay shares as security for the performance of the contract. One of the purchasers shortly afterwards died the defendants apparently abandoned the idea of enforcing the contract, and at the end of the year they returned to the purchaser's family two of the Bank of Bombay shares having (as they alleged) paid the third to defray the expenses which they had incurred in connection with the transaction. The plaintiff sued to recover Rs 1,000 as brokerage from the defendants. Held that under the circumstances the plaintiff was not entitled to recover the Rs 1,000 but only to a quantum meruit there being no previous agreement as to the time when the brokerage was to be paid; and that he was only entitled to a percentage (5 per cent.) on the value of the shares which had been actually received by the defendants. The terms and conditions of the two agreements were the same. By these agreements the plaintiff and defendant respectively agreed to build houses up on the said pieces of land in the manner therein specified, and the agreements contained the two following clauses—(1) "The buildings to be continuous with party walls common to both adjoining houses." (2) "All disputes regarding the cost and maintenance of party walls to be decided by the Government surveyor whose decision shall be binding on both parties." In pursuance of the said agreements the plaintiff and defendants respectively erected buildings on the said pieces of land. The plaintiff caused the northern wall of his building to be built as a party wall and it was used by the defendants as the southern wall of the building erected by them. The defendants paid the builder who was employed by the plaintiff a sum of Rs 700 on account of the cost of erecting the party wall but the rest of the cost was defrayed by the plaintiff. The party wall was completed in November 1871 but in consequence of disputes which arose between the plaintiff and the building contractor the sum payable to the latter was not ascertained for some years. In March 1879 the plaintiff caused the party wall to be measured by a surveyor and on the 14th June 1879 demanded from the defendants payment of half the cost. The defendants never failing to pay the sum demanded the plaintiff after notice the defendants caused the measurement of the party wall to be ascertained by the Government surveyor who by a certificate dated the 14th February 1880 certified that the share of the cost to be borne by the defendants of the said party wall was Rs 221. The plaintiff in this action sought to recover the sum for the defendants' share of the Rs 700 which as above stated the defendants had already paid and for which the plaintiff gave them credit. The defendants in their written statement alleged that the party wall had been partly built with materials supplied by them and that in the year 1860 they had adjusted accounts with the plaintiff in respect of the said materials and the said party wall and it was then agreed that the sum of Rs 60 paid by the defendants should be treated as a final settlement. They also alleged that the plaintiff had settled disputes with the building contractors and had only paid them three annas in the rupee on the amount of their claim in full satisfaction. The defendants pleaded that they ought not to be charged with more than their due proportion of such reduced amount. It was further contended for the defendants that their obligation to pay half the cost of the party wall existed independently of the arrangement between them and the plaintiff to refer the matter to the Government surveyor that this latter covenant was only a collateral and did not interfere with the plaintiff's right to sue the defendants for their half share of the cost that the plaintiff's cause of action in this respect arose on the 14th October 1878 when the contractor's claim was finally settled and that this suit not having been brought for more than three years after that date it was barred by limitation. Held that the suit was not barred. There was no right of action independently of the valuation and award of the Government surveyor. There was no separate covenant to pay compensation to which the covenant for reference to the Government surveyor could be collateral. The rights of the parties were defined by the contracts and under those each lessee might have the benefit of a party wall in such terms and on others as he could have submitted to. Payment of a share of the cost was not one of the terms except in so far as each lessee if a dispute arose was bound by the decision of the Government surveyor. That decision was a final one serving to give greater explicitness to a matter already fully subsisting. It was essential to the suit itself and until it was made no cause of action for the moiety of the cost arose. Where a lease granted by one lessor to several lessees taken sites for buildings intended to be contiguous and to form one block or group in mutual relation there is a common covenant which is an inducement to the lessee to take the lease and which he must know is equally an inducement to his neighbour to take his lease neither can be called a stranger to the consideration. Each may be regarded as an equitable assignee of the covenants which the lessor made for his benefit as lessee. Each consequently has an equitable right to enforce against the other the obligation stipulated for in his interest and serving as a part of his inducement (as the other knew) to the contract. ## BUILDING ERECTED BY ADJOINING OWNERS

BUILDING LEASE—concluded

Liability of adjoining owners for costs of party wall.—Agreements for building—Decision of Government surveyor made final in case of dispute—Right of suit—Right of one owner over portion of party wall not used or built on by the other—Under separate agreements made by them respectively with Government the plaintiff and defendant held adjoining plots of land for building. The agreements contained the same terms and stipulations among which were the following—(a) The buildings to be continuous with party walls common to both adjoining houses. (b) All disputes regarding the cost and maintenance of party walls to be decided by the Government surveyor whose decision shall be binding on both parties. The plaintiff employed a contractor to erect a house upon his plot of land. The house was completed in 1870 the north wall of which was built as a party wall in pursuance of the condition contained in the agreement with Government. Disputes subsequently arose between the plaintiff and his contractor which were not settled until the 26th August 1878 on which date the plaintiff paid the contractor a sum of Rs 51-4-11 which included the cost of the party wall. After the plaintiff's house had been completed the defendant built his house upon the adjoining land and in so doing he used a large portion of the party wall as the southern wall of his house. He paid the plaintiff half the cost of the portion used by him. The rear portion of the said wall was not used by the defendant as his house did not extend as far to the rear as the house of the plaintiff. The plaintiff demanded payment of half the cost of that part of the wall not used by the defendants but the defendants refused to pay. The plaintiff then claimed that part of the wall as his own property and proceeded to open windows in it. The defendants objected. The plaintiff subsequently filed the present suit claiming from the defendants payment of half the cost of the said portion of the wall not used by the defendants and in the event of such payment not being awarded he prayed for a declaration that he was the sole owner of the said portion of the wall and for an injunction restraining the defendants from disturbing him in the enjoyment thereof. The plaintiff (Khatav Luddha) of the first defendant was originally made the second defendant in the suit. He however disclaimed all interest in the premises and it appeared that in 1876 the first defendant made a bill of partition with him (Khatav Luddha) who in 1879 sold it to Khasrabai the first defendant's wife. Khasrabai accordingly was made the second

defendant in the place of Khatav Luddha. Both the defendants pleaded limitation and denied their liability to pay a part of the cost of that part of the wall which they did not use. The first defendant further alleged that he had paid the whole cost of the foundation and other parts of the said wall and claimed to set off this payment against the claim of the plaintiff. At the original hearing SCOTT J held (1) that the part of the wall in dispute although not used by the defendants was a party wall having regard to the terms of the agreement under which the said wall was erected (2) that Khasrabai was liable equally with the first defendant to pay for this part of the wall having purchased the property subject to the terms of the original agreement of which she presumably had notice (3) that the suit was not barred but that there was no right of action for the cost of the party wall independently of the award of the Government surveyor in whose decision lay all disputes as to such cost and that until his decision was given there was no complete cause of action. SCOTT J accordingly on 11th December 1882 decreed that the defendants were severally liable to pay the half of whatever sum the Government surveyor might certify to be due for the cost of the disputed part of the said wall and that the defendants were entitled to set off in the calculation of what was due from them the cost of any work or materials which the Government surveyor might find had been contributed by the first defendant. The case was thereupon adjourned in order that the certificate of the Government surveyor might be obtained. The Government surveyor subsequently gave his certificate as to the cost of the unused portion of the said wall but stated that on the evidence before him he was unable to decide as to the ownership of the foundations etc. of the wall. The case came on again before SCOTT J who decided to take evidence on the points left undetermined by the Government surveyor. Witnesses were accordingly examined and on 11th December 1883 the Court disallowed the defendant's claim of set-off and gave judgment for the plaintiff for half the sum certified by the Government surveyor as the cost of the disputed part of the wall. The defendants appealed. Held that having regard to the terms of the agreements under which the plaintiff and defendants respectively held their property the Court was not competent to determine the question of the defendant's set-off or the other points raised by the pleadings. These were matters to be decided by the Government surveyor whose certificate was a condition precedent to the plaintiff's right to sue and upon which the Court might give judgment. Held also that the plaintiff was not entitled to use the portion of the wall not occupied by the defendants in any way except as a party wall. It was erected under the agreement as a party wall and that it should be used for a purpose consistent with the idea of its being a party wall would be opposed to the true intention of the parties to the agreement whether Government or the owners. The plaintiff was not entitled to the full right of ownership over it as if it had been built on his own ground; the declaration and injunction asked for in the bill were refused. Corvaji Iyappa v Mowaji Purna payer objected to the legality of such valuation on the ground that the municipality had no power to make a re valuation within six years from the date of the last valuation. The Vice Chairman overruled the objection and the rate-payer appealed under s 157 of the Act to the Judge of the Court of Small Causes at Scaldah who allowed the appeal. Held that inasmuch as the objection raised by the rate payer was an objection to the valuation within the meaning of s 130 of the Act the Judge of the Small Cause Court had jurisdiction to deal with it. CANTONMENT

1 ——— Grant of land for building purposes—Right of Government to eject grantee—Regulations and orders for the Bengal Arm—Alluvial land—Assessment of rent—Certain ground situate within the limits of a cantonment was granted for building purposes by the military authorities in 1802. In June 1873 such cantonment was abandoned and the ground comprised therein was made over to the Collector of the district in which it was situate. The Government subsequently sued P who had succeeded to such grant claiming (i) a declaration of its proprietary right to the ground comprised in such grant and to the alluvial accretions to such ground (ii) that P should be directed to pay rents for such ground and such alluvial accretions and (iii) that should P refuse to pay the rents fixed, she might be ejected and the Government put in possession. Held that inasmuch as under the Military Regulations relating to such grants such a grant cannot be resumed by the Government without a month's notice and without payment of the value of any buildings which may have been authorized to be erected and as the Civil Court had no jurisdiction in the matter of assessing rent on such alluvial accretions which were outside the original grant the Government was not entitled to the second and third reliefs it claimed but was entitled only to a declaration of its proprietary title to such ground and to such alluvial accretions.

might have been authorized to be erected. The land was subsequently resumed by the civil authorities, and the land being within municipal limits the ground rents on it were assigned to the municipality. The Municipal Committee having demanded ground rent in respect of the buildings erected on such land under such grant from the representative in title of the original grantee and the latter having refused to pay the same or to vacate the land, the Secretary of State for India in Council sued him in the Civil Court for a declaration of proprietary right to the land for its assessment to ground rent and in the event of the refusal of the defendant to pay such rent when fixed for his ejectment therefrom and for mesne profits of the land for six years. The cause of action was stated in the plaint to be the refusal of the defendant to pay ground rent or to accept a lease or to surrender the land after a notice to that effect had been issued to him by the Municipal Committee as the plaintiff's agents. Held that the Municipal Committee were the plaintiff's duly authorized agents to lease and obtain rent for the land occupied by the defendant's buildings with their compounds, that such notice was properly issued in that character on behalf of the plaintiff; and that the defendant's subsequent refusal to pay rent or to accept a lease or evacuate the premises amounted to a sufficient denial of the plaintiff's title to afford him a good cause of action that assuming that no agreement to pay rent existed the plaintiff was entitled to demand and recover reasonable compensation for the use and occupation of the land by the defendant that the suit was maintainable in the Civil Court and it had power to grant the plaintiff the reliefs sought; that by the conditions of the grant by the military authorities the plaintiff was not disqualified from demanding ground rent for the land before he had paid the defendant the value of the buildings but that looking to those conditions it would not be fair or equitable to grant the plaintiff a decree pure and simple for the ejectment of the defendant but he should be put under the condition that if in case of the defendant's refusal to pay the rent fixed he desired to eject him the value of the buildings as cantonment residences must first be determined and when determined must be tendered to the defendant and if the latter refused to accept it the plaintiff would then be entitled to eject him. SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA v JAGAT PRASAD

4. — Delivery of goods carried by sea—Landing goods—Custom of port of Bombay—Possession of goods—A carrier by sea is obliged to make an actual delivery of goods carried by him to the consignee but such prima facie obligation may be affected by the custom of the port where the goods are to be delivered. Neither by the custom of the port of Bombay nor by the provisions of the Customs Act is the master of a ship bound to wait fifteen days before commencing to land his cargo but within a reasonable time after the arrival of his ship—48 hours in the case of a sailing vessel, and somewhat less in the case of a steamer—he is at liberty to land goods if the consignee has not sent boats for them; and such landing is not unlawful nor a breach of contract as carrier on the part of the master. The landing of the goods under the above circumstances and setting them apart for the consignee do not constitute a delivery of them to the consignee; but such goods after being so landed continue in the possession of the master as carrier. Course of legislation with reference to the landing of goods in the custom house wharf reviewed. Query—Whether under the special circumstances of this case the goods when so landed remained in the custody of the master in his capacity of common carrier or as a warehouseman? HONGKONG AND SHANGHAI BANKING CORPORATION v BAKER

He is to be rewarded as a bailee for hire and the fact that he does not deliver the baggage at the end of the journey should be accepted as prima facie proof that the loss has been occasioned by negligence for which he is responsible and consequently the onus of proof lies on him that reasonable care was exercised by him. TODAL SINGH v THOMPSON 2 N. 8 ——— Passenger's luggage—Loss of—Negligence—Conditions indorsed on ticket—Foreign Steamship Company—Contract Act s 151—In a suit for damages for loss of passenger's luggage by the wreck of a ship belonging to a foreign company it appeared that the plaintiff had received a ticket in the French language which on its face stated that it ought to be signed by the passenger and that it was issued subject to certain conditions on the back. These conditions among other things stated that the company would not be responsible for loss or damage arising from accidents or risks of the sea that the ticket was delivered subject to the conditions that certain articles of a specified nature should be made the subject of a special declaration in default of which the company would not be liable; that the company would not be answerable for unregistered luggage and that luggage might be insured at any of the company's offices. It was not stated where registration of luggage might be effected. The ticket was not signed by the plaintiff. The plaintiff alleged that he did not understand the French language and that the conditions had not been explained to him by any person. Held that the company being a foreign company were not common carriers that the plaintiff was bound by the clauses and conditions on the back of the passage ticket; that none of the conditions had the effect of relieving the company from the consequences of their own negligence. that in order to establish a defence upon the ground that the plaintiff's luggage was not registered it was necessary for the defendants to prove not only that the plaintiff was bound by the conditions but also that they were ready and willing to register the plaintiff's luggage and that the plaintiff did not in fact register it. that as the contract was made in Calcutta the defendants were bound by the provisions of s 151 of the Indian Contract Act. MACKENZIE & COMPAGNIE DES MESSAGERIES MARITIMES DE FRANCE I L R. 6 Calc. 227

*(IX of 1872) ss 148 151 152—Carriers Act (III of 1865)—Insurers—Railway Acts (IV of 1879 and IX of 1890)—Bailees—That the duties and liabilities of a common carrier are governed in India by the principles of the English common law on that subject however introduced has been recognized in the Carriers Act (III of 1865). His responsibility to the owner does not originate in contract but is cast upon him by reason of his exercising this public employment for reward. His liability as an insurer is an incident of the contract between him and the owner not inconsistent with the provisions of the Contract Act and the Law of Carriers partly written and partly unwritten remained as before that Act. The Railway Acts of 1879 and 1890 reduced the responsibility of carriers by railway to that of bailees under the Contract Act but this does not affect the construction of the law relating to common carriers and the Act of 1865. Notwithstanding some general expressions in the chapter on bailments a common carrier's responsibility is not within the Contract Act 1872. The decision of the Calcutta High Court in Mothoora Kant Shaw v India General Steam Navigation Co I L R 10 Cal 166 approved and that of the Bombay High Court in Kutcheri Tulsi Das v G I P Railway Co I L R 3 Bom 109 not supported. INRAWADDY FLOTTILLA CO v BUGWANDAS I L R, 18 Cal 620*

*Loss by—Special contract—Suit for damages—The plaintiffs delivered to the defendants certain goods for carriage to Calcutta in a flat belonging to the defendants. The goods were carried under the terms of a special contract or "forwarding note" signed by the shipper. One of the conditions of the forwarding note was as follows—The Company will not be under any liability for damages as compensation in respect of loss of or damage to goods except such liability as they are or may be subject to under the provisions of any law for the time being in force or of any contract other than this for the time being in existence between the Company and the shipper. While on board the defendants flat the goods were destroyed by fire. At the trial of the case the defendants gave evidence showing the state of things before the fire occurred the circumstances leading to the discovery of the fire (but not the cause or origin of it) and the measures taken to extinguish the fire. Held that the occurrence of a fire under the circumstances disclosed in the case without any explanation as to the origin of it was of itself evidence of negligence. Held also reversing the decision of SALE J that the defendants had not discharged the onus cast upon them by law of showing that there was no negligence. Central Cacker Tea Company v Rivers Steam Navigation Company I L R 24 Cal, 767 note explained. Held on the construction of the above clause (per SALE J, in the Court below and per TRIVELLYAN J, in the Court of Appeal) that the words in any law for the time being in force must be taken to refer not to the common law but to the law as laid down in the Carriers Act (III of 1865) and that unless their liability was enlarged by express contract the defendant company were liable only for loss or damage of which under s 11 of that Act they were not allowed to relieve themselves that is only for loss occasioned by their negligence or criminal acts of themselves, their servants or agents. The Judicial Committee dismissed an appeal in the above case from the decree of the Appellate High Court which proceeded on a 9 of the Carriers Act (III of 1885) that Court having taken the non-delivery as placing the burden of proving absence of negligence on the carriers. There were facts showing that no adequate means had been provided by the defendants for extinguishing a fire on board and that the watch was inefficient. The defendants accordingly had failed to exonerate themselves

He was proceeded against under Act I of 1871 (Cattle Trespas Act) and under the provisions of s 2, ordered to pay compensation to the complainant, and in default to undergo one month's rigorous imprisonment. Held that s 22 was inapplicable to the facts of the case and that the order must be set aside. On the facts it was not a case of illegal seizure and detention of cattle but rather one of theft as all the elements of that offence were present.

has been determined between the rival claimants who is the heir of the deceased but to give full effect to the object of the Regulation the word determined must be understood finally determined. Where the Judge considered that he was bound to make an order directing administrators appointed under Regulation VIII of 1827 to make over the property of the deceased to one of the rival claimants who was judicially declared to be the heir of the deceased—Held that so long as the party against whom the decision in the matter of the rival claims was given had a right of appeal the order of the Judge was one which he could not make under the Regulation and that in exercising his jurisdiction under the Regulation he had exercised it illegally and, that being so, the High Court had power under s 623 of the Civil Procedure Code to interfere in the exercise of its extraordinary jurisdiction. ISHVAMBHAR PANDIT v VASUDEB PANDIT I L R 18 Bom. 708

10 ——— Certificate under Act XXVII of 1860—Bombay Regulation VIII of 1827 s 9—Jurisdiction to grant certificates of administration—Foreigners res di abroad—Under s 8 of Act XXVII of 1860 a certificate can be granted only for the estate of a British subject either resident within the district where the certificate is sought or else having no fixed place of residence. The Act does not make provision for administration of the effects of a foreigner domiciled abroad. While Act XXVII of 1860 has regard to the person Regulation VIII of 1827 on the other hand looks simply to the locality of the assets as the ground of the Court's jurisdiction to grant a certificate of administration. The intention of s 9 seems to be that when there are assets within a zilla and the circumstances exist which are specified in the section a certificate of administration may be granted. The authority given under s 9 must be understood to be the same as under s 7. B a sardar of Baroda, residing within the Gaskwar's territory died there leaving considerable property in the district of Surat. 11 ——— Act XIX of 1841—Summary procedure—Act XXVII of 1860—A (a Hindu) died intestate in December 1865 leaving his widow in possession of his property moveable and immovable. The descent of A's property was admittedly governed by the law of the Mitakshara. On the 19th January 1866 A's nephew presented a petition to the Zillah Court under Act XIX of 1841 denying the title of the widow. Upon this alone the Judge directed the widow to come in and show cause which she did on the 2nd February following. A's daughter of A on the 19th March presented a petition in opposition to the nephew's claim for possession. The nephew filed a reply. In the meantime the widow applied for a certificate under Act XXVII of 1860 which was opposed by both nephew and daughter. The nephew also filed a cross-petition under Act XXVII of 1860. All these petitions came on by consent together for adjudication on a state of facts admitted by all parties through their pleaders who also by consent between themselves submitted their view of the question of law to be decided on the Acts of 1841 and 1860. The questions so submitted were—(1) Did it appear on the evidence that there was a separation between A and his nephew according to the Mitakshara doctrine? (2) If the evidence per se established a legal separation was such separation negatived by certain admissions of A? The Judge refused the application of the widow under Act XXVII of 1860 and granted possession to the nephew under Act XIX of 1841. The nephew was a man of substance and able to bring a regular suit and there was no evidence of possession by force or fraud on the part of the widow the only question being her right according to the Mitakshara law. Held that the Judge was in error in proceeding summarily under Act XIX of 1841 on the declaration of the applicant alone and without other enquiry but that this defect was cured by the widow's appearing. That the Judge ought not to have tried the cases under Act XIX of 1841 and Act XXVII of 1860 together and on the same issues but the Judge having jurisdiction over the subject matter and to frame the issues his order was not open to appeal or review. JUSODA KOONTER v GOWRIE BIRJATH PRESHAD

■ ACTS XXVII OF 1860 AND VII OF 1859 AND GRANT OF CERTIFICATE

15 ————— Act XXVII of 1860—Object of Act—Trustee—The object of Act XXII of 1860 is not to enable parties to litigate questions of disputed title but to enable debtors to pay the debts due by them with safety to the representatives of deceased Hindus and others and to facilitate the collection of such debts by removing all doubts as to the legal title to demand and receive the same. In other words the objects of the Act are to enable debtors to get sufficient acquittances when they pay money due to the estate of a deceased and to preserve that estate from loss by giving some one the right to collect the debts lest they should be lost e.g. by the operation of the law of limitation. The holder of a certificate is a trustee liable to account for the money received by him to the legal heirs or representatives of the deceased. IN THE MATTER OF THE PETITION OF NOBODIP CHUNDER BISWAS FRANKISTO BISWAS & NOBODIP CHUNDER BISWAS [I L R., 8 Cal. 868]

Where a debtor of a deceased Hindu who died intestate declined to pay the debt to his widow unless she produced letters of administration to the estate of the deceased and the widow sued to recover the debt without taking out a certificate or letters of administration and it was found that there was no reasonable doubt that the widow was entitled to the debt but that the debtor refused to pay neither from any fraudulent nor vexatious motive but to avoid the risk of having to pay the debt twice over—Held that the suit must be dismissed. MUTTAMMAL & BANK OF MADRAS I L R. 7 Mad. 115

time after the institution of the suit the parties compromised the claim. The plaintiffs applied to the Court to pass a decree in terms of the compromise. The Subordinate Judge referred the question whether a certificate under Act VII of 1889 was necessary before he could pass a decree as applied for. Held that a certificate was necessary s 4 of Act VII of 1889 distinctly and peremptorily forbids any Court from passing a decree against a debtor of a deceased person for payment of his debt except on production by the person claiming of probate or letters of administration. A decree would be against the debtor when passed although he consented to it. Sax Taji BHANDARAO v. RAJJI I L R. 15 Bom., 105

*Act coming into force while suit was pending—Effect of suit—Suit for foreclosure or sale—Mortgage by conditional sale—On 28th March 1871 the defendant's father borrowed a sum of money from the plaintiff's father and placed him in possession of certain land under an instrument of mortgage which provided for the application of the usufruct in liquidation of the interest and then in reduction of the principal. The instrument also contained a covenant for the repayment in four years of the balance that might then be due by the mortgagor and a stipulation that on default, the mortgagor was to surrender the property to the mortgagee as if it had been sold to him. In 1874 the mortgagor resumed possession without discharging the mortgage debt. The mortgagee having died his sons on 14th April 1883 filed the present suit on the mortgage and prayed for a decree for foreclosure or sale. Whilst the suit was pending J died and S was allowed to be substituted in his place as plaintiff. A decree was made for sale of the property but the personal relief was not granted as it was held to be barred by lapse of time. Held that this was not a decree against a debtor for payment of his debt within the meaning of s 4 of the Succession Certificate Act (VII of 1889). Kogha Nath Saha v Poreah Nath Pundari I L R. 15 Cal. 52 and Kanchan Modi v Bai Nath Singh I L R. 19 Cal. 836 approved. ## 9 BOMBAY MINDERS ACT (XX OF 1864)

199 ——— Mother of minor—Bombay Minors' Act XX of 1864—Unwillingness to act as guardian—Default in appearance to order for issue of certificate—An order for the issue of a certificate of administration to a particular individual ought not to be made until it is ascertained whether that individual is willing to take it. A certificate of administration ought not to be forced upon the mother of a minor unwilling to take it. Where an order for the issue of such a certificate to the mother of an infant was made on the default of the mother to appear and show cause why it should not be issued to her—Held that such default in appearance ought not to have been accepted as her assent to the issuing of the certificate to her. Course pointed out where no relative or friend of a minor can be found willing to take such a certificate. BABJI BAI KUTALI ■ 11 Bom 183

200 ——— Joint Hindu family—Minor's Act XX of 1864—Where a member of a Hindu family dies leaving to his children only his undivided share in the joint family property administration cannot be granted under Act XX of 1864 nor under such circumstances can a guardian of the person of the minor children be appointed but if the deceased has left any separate property administration of such property may be granted and a guardian may be properly appointed at the same time. 201 ——— Minor—Act XX of 1864—Property—Ascertainment of share—A certificate of administration may be granted under Act XX of 1864 for the share of a minor who is a member of an undivided Hindu family. When a certificate is given in such a case the District Court has no jurisdiction to attach the undivided property

It subsequently appeared that she was incompetent to manage the property and the natural father of the minor having applied for a certificate of administration the Court granted one to him. On appeal by the widow to the High Court against the decision of the lower Court—Held that the order of the District Judge granting the certificate should be confirmed. The certificate did not alter the rights and interests of the minor or of the widow in the property. Any right of property or possession that could properly be asserted against the minor before the certificate was granted could be asserted equally after it was granted. GURUPADYA & PUTAPA

Act (VIII of 1856) did not give jurisdiction to the High Court when a case was brought before it on certiorari to enquire whether the Magistrate had come to a correct conclusion as to the guilt or innocence of the prisoner. The object of that section was to limit the objections to a conviction to some substantial meritorious ground such as want of jurisdiction or the like and to prevent a conviction from being quashed on a mere error of form or of procedure. But the section did not give the High Court any right to interfere on the ground that the Magistrate had come to a wrong conclusion on the question of the guilt or innocence of the accused person. Though affidavits may be used to show a want of jurisdiction in a Magistrate even though such affidavits contradict for this purpose the finding of the Magistrate they cannot be used as affording materials for reversing the Magistrate's decision on the merits. REG v NATHOOLAL PITAMBAR 10 Bom, 109

Held on appeal to the Privy Council as follows — Seemle—That the general and abstract doctrine laid down by the High Court at Bombay that it is beyond the power of the British Crown without the consent of the Imperial Parliament to make a cession of territory within the jurisdiction of any of the British Courts in India in time of peace to a foreign power

is erroneous. Where an objection is taken to the territorial jurisdiction of a British Court on the ground that the territory over which the jurisdiction of the Court extended has been ceded to a foreign prince such a cession must be regularly proved and cannot be established by uncertain inferences from equivocal acts. An agreement on the part of the Government of India purporting to transfer certain villages forming part of a Regulation province within the Bombay Presidency and subject to ordinary British jurisdiction to the extraordinary jurisdiction of the Political Agency of a Native State does not constitute a cession of territory. A re-arrangement of jurisdiction within British territory in India by the exclusion of a certain district from the Regulations and Codes there in force and from the jurisdiction of all the High Courts with a view to the establishment thereof of a native jurisdiction under British supervision and control cannot be carried out except by legislation under the provisions of the Imperial Statutes 3 & 4 Will IV c. 85 s. 43; 24 & 25 Vic c. 67 s. 22 and 24 & 25 Vic c. 104 s. 9. The Governor General in Council being precluded by the Act 24 & 25 Vic c. 67 s. 22 from legislating directly as to the sovereignty or dominion of the Crown over any part of its territory in India or as to the allegiance of British subjects cannot by any legislative Act (e.g. by The Evidence Act of 1842 s. 113) purporting to make a notification in the Government Gazette conclusive evidence of a cession of territory exclude judicial enquiry as to the nature and lawfulness of that cession. Where the foundation of the jurisdiction of a British Court over the subject matter of a suit and the parties thereto is territorial and the territory by a valid cession ceases to be British the jurisdiction of the Court can no longer be exercised whatever be the stage or condition of the litigation at the time of such cession. *DAMODAR GORDHAN v. 1 ——— Maintenance—Fid agreement —Alienation by Hindu widow—Waste—A Hindu widow as the heirs of her husband sued his four surviving brothers who retained the enjoyment of the whole joint estate for the recovery of her share. While the suit was pending on the 24th April 1859 she entered into an agreement with the defendant G by which, after reciting the nature of her claim and stating that she was too poor to prosecute it she assigned to him all she might be entitled to receive from the joint estate in right of her deceased husband together with all interest and accumulations thereon and all advantage to be derived from the suit about to be instituted by the defendant G and she appointed him her attorney to institute and carry on any suit in her name for recovering her right and share in the property it being agreed that he should retain one moiety of what might be recovered absolutely for his own benefit as remuneration and out of the other moiety should repay himself such sums as he might from time to time have advanced or paid for her maintenance with interest at 12 per cent per annum and also all such sums and costs as he might from time to time have advanced or been put to in carrying on the suits with interest at 12 per cent per annum and should pay over the residue to the widow herself. Subsequently that suit was withdrawn. In May 1859 the widow by G filed a fresh bill against her husband's surviving brothers for recovery of her husband's share in the estate together with accumulations and in August 1861 obtained a decree for a large sum of money out of the joint estate—the whole to be enjoyed by her as a Hindu widow in the manner prescribed by Hindu law. By a deed dated November 14th 1860 G assigned his interest under the assignment of April 1859 to H S the defendant. In a suit brought on the 22nd February 1866 by the reversionary heirs of the husband in the Court of the Principal Sudder Ameen of Hooghly against the widow G and H S the last one of whom alone resided in Calcutta which suit was on the 23rd of April 1866 removed into the High Court on the application of H and H S it was prayed that the agreement of April 1859 and all sub assignments that might have been made be set aside as void and that the money should be paid into Court and kept

there during the life of the widow defendant for the benefit of the reversionary heirs and in order to prevent waste. Held by PHILLIPS J the suit being one to prevent contemplated waste was not barred by lapse of time. The agreement of 4th April 1859 was void as being without definite consideration and being in the nature of a gambling transaction not valid against heirs under Hindu law and it was also void being of a champertous nature and contrary to public policy. The law which forbids and avoids all acts contrary to public policy and subversive of the general interests of society is in force in this country. Independent of the Charter there is a power inherent in any Court of Justice which receives its authority from the State to make the interests of private persons subordinate to those of the public and to take care that where they are in conflict the latter should prevail. Held on appeal by PHILLIPS CJ and MACPHERSON J that the suit could be maintained for the relief sought and for the protection of the property that the deed of the 4th April 1859 was far as it related to the moiety of the property assigned to the defendant G absolutely was not binding on the plaintiffs or on the persons who upon the death of the widow might succeed to the property of her deceased husband. Though not void on the ground of champerty it was an unconscionable bargain and a speculative if not a gambling contract, and there was no necessity for such an alienation by the widow. But so far as regards the assignment of the moiety as security for the advances and expenses which G or his assigns might reasonably and properly make or incur for the maintenance of the widow for carrying on the necessary proceedings to enforce her rights with 12 per cent interest on such advances, it was not void but created a charge upon that moiety, which was binding upon the reversionary heirs of the husband to the extent of such advances and expenses. There was legal necessity for such charge and it affected the moiety both of principal and accumulations. Held by MACPHERSON J the agreement of April 1859 was void by English law as being a mere gambling transaction and contrary to public policy and illegal. GROSS & AMBETAMATI DASSEE

2 ——— Assignment of debutter land in consideration of defendant ejecting by suit at his own cost the Brahmans etc.—A Hindu widow together with the next heir joined in assigning to the defendant a debutter estate in consideration of the defendant conducting at his own cost proceedings for the ejection of Brahmans and Banias then in occupation as poorias to conduct the worship of the idols and upon the condition that he should thereafter conduct such worship and out of the proceeds and offerings retain three-fourths for his own purposes and for hospitality and pay the remaining fourth for the maintenance of the widow and the heir. Held that the assignment was valid the purpose for which the lands were dedicated being provided for and that although the transaction amounted to champerty that was no ground for treating it as invalid. An assignment between Hindus of property the subject matter of litigation on conditions which constitute champerty is not on that ground invalid.

In dealing with objections to their contracts on the ground of maintenance and champerty the Court must look to the general principles regarding public policy and the administration of justice upon which

that law at present rests. To constitute maintenance improper litigation must have been stirred up with a bad motive for purposes contrary to public policy and justice. Champerty is a species of maintenance and of the same character but with the additional feature of a condition or bargain providing for a participation in the subject matter of the litigation. Specific performance decreed of a lease though the lease formed part of an arrangement whereby as a consideration for the lease the plaintiff was to lend the defendant money to enable him (inter alia) to commence proceedings against the then tenant of the subject matter of the intended lease. 10 ———— Invalidity of contract on ground of maintenance.—Agreement against public policy—A commissariat officer named M had a butler named L who was employed to put forward with the money of M or his own various large contracts. The result was that L's representatives were recommended by their attorney G to apply to one J (the present plaintiff) who was also a client of C's for the necessary funds. J consented to advance money for the purpose of the suit and on the 28th July 1869 a called deed of mortgage drawn up by C was executed between the present defendants as mortgagors and the plaintiff J as mortgagee whereby in consideration of an advance of the sum of Rs 5000 (the receipt of Rs 5000 of which was by the instrument acknowledged) to be made by J to such attorney as he should select before the 31st of December 1869 the defendants mortgaged everything which they might be entitled to recover by suit the mortgage to be defeasible on payment of 50 per cent of what they might recover by suit and a further 50 per cent upon all to which they might be entitled as the persons entitled to L's estate. They also covenanted to repay the money lent with interest. The present defendants succeeded in their suit against the Administrator General and this suit was brought by J to recover a commission of 50 per cent on the sum recovered and the sums advanced, with interest. Defendants denied that plaintiff had fulfilled his part of the agreement and alleged that in consequence of his neglecting to supply funds they had been compelled to borrow of a third party. They also pleaded that the agreement was void for champerty and maintenance. Held that by the law of England which prevailed in the present suit this contract was clearly void being contrary to the plain provision of the common and statute law against maintenance and that it was also void as being contrary to public policy. The Court further found that the plaintiff had failed to fulfil his part of the contract but allowed him to recover the sum really advanced by him viz Rs 2,200 with interest. MULLA JAFFARJI SYED ALI v. 15. — Alienation by Hindu widow.—A Hindu widow having applied to H S to aid her in leaving the family dwelling house of her late husband G C C where she alleged she was improperly treated and placed under restraint by the plaintiff her husband's sole surviving brother H S at his own cost enabled her to do so. She then applied to H S to advance funds for the payment of certain debts incurred by her in consequence of the plaintiff's refusal to pay her any portion of the family estate to allow her a monthly sum for maintenance and to manage and conduct for her a suit which she proposed to institute to establish her right to a portion of the joint estate and H S consented to do so upon certain terms which were embodied in a deed by which K D assigned to H S all her right share and interest as widow of G C C in the joint estate and in the accumulations thereof and in the separate estate of G C C and all benefit to be derived from the intended suit on trust first to repay all the costs of the suit secondly to retain by way of remuneration for managing the suit one half of what might be recovered therein and thirdly to hold the residue as security for repayment with interest at 12 per cent of the sums advanced by H S the surplus after satisfying all such sums to be paid to K D. Then K D with the aid and under the management of H S brought a suit against the plaintiff and of other members of the joint family of G C C for a declaration of her rights under the will of his father R C and for the administration of R C's share of the joint estate. The result of this suit was that K D was (among other things) declared entitled as a Hindu widow to Rs 101,302 14 10 in respect of the accumulations of the joint property between the deaths of R C's and G C C's deaths. The plaintiff paid the Rs 101,302 14 10 into Court under an order made in the suit. K D subsequently obtained an order under which she took this sum out of Court notwithstanding that the plaintiff applied for an injunction to restrain her taking it out. Upon her obtaining that order the plaintiff as immediate reversionary heir of G C C instituted the present suit against K D and H S to restrain K D from taking the Rs 101,302 14 10 out of Court and to compel her to bring back any portion thereof which she might have already received and for a declaration that the assignment to H S created no valid charge thereon. Held (following the decision in the case of Gross v. Smitham) that the assignment to H S of the Rs 101,302 14 10 was not binding on the reversionary heirs of G C C except as regards the charge on one moiety for expenses incurred and advances made by H S whether by way of maintenance or otherwise with interest thereon at 12 per cent. HISWATH CHUTTER v. of right and without any evidence that the sum claimed was really due to the plaintiff to execute a bond in his favour whereby he bound himself to pay a large sum of money claimed by the plaintiff as being due from the widows the plaintiff on his part avowed that he would treat such payment as a satisfaction of his claim against the widows but meanwhile that he would retain the securities which he held from them. In a suit brought by the plaintiff against the heir to enforce the last mentioned bond—Held that the bond was wholly invalid and fraudulent as against the defendant and that as there was no privity of contract between the plaintiff and defendant independently of the bond it could not stand as a security for anything which might be justly due from the widows. Quare—Whether the plaintiff could have recovered from the widows if they had been successful against the heir the large sums of money secured by their bond and agreement. The Indian Courts in every transaction must decide upon the fact whether it is merely the acquisition of an interest in the subject of litigation bona fide entered into or whether it is an unfair or illegitimate transaction got up for the purpose merely of spin or of litigation disturbing the peace of families and carried on from a corrupt or other improper motive. CHUDAMANA CHETTY v. 19 — Agreement against public policy—Maintenance—Vindictive prosecution—Reasonable and probable cause—Practice—Security for costs by a person not a party to the suit—In a deed dated 17th July 1867 it was recited that A was entitled to certain property then in possession of D and E and that A and B her husband having no funds to adopt or to commence legal proceedings for the recovery of the property had applied to C to assist them in commencing and conducting the necessary suits and to make all the requisite disbursements connected therewith until their final termination and that C had agreed to do so and also as A and B had no means whatever to pay to them or the survivor Rs 150 a month until the final termination of the litigation. Then followed the appointment by A and B of C to be their attorney to institute and prosecute all necessary suits to sign all papers and documents to receive all moneys and take possession of all lands etc. to which A and B might become entitled under any decree or order that might be made and to appoint attorneys and vakils. C then consented to institute and prosecute the necessary suits and to make the necessary advances and payments and to pay Rs 100 a month to A and B. Then it was agreed that out of the moneys or proceeds of lands etc. recovered C should in the first place retain and reimburse himself all advances and payments made by him with interest thereon at 12 per cent in the second place retain to himself by way of remuneration for his trouble and risk one third of the nett proceeds of the litigation and in the third place make over the remaining two thirds to A and B. A and B covenanted not to intermeddle with C in prosecuting the litigation and that they would render him all possible assistance and that the power of attorney given by them to C should be irrevocable so long as he prosecuted the litigation and paid the monthly allowance of Rs150. It was provided however that if B wished to devote all his time thereto he might have the management of the litigation but under the control of C and that A and B might revoke the power of attorney on repayment to C of all money advanced by him with interest at 12 per cent and the sum of Rs2000 by way of liquidated damages. A power was also reserved to A and B to compromise but only with the consent of C unless the sum to be received on the compromise should exceed the total amount of C's advances with interest at 12 per cent. In pursuance of this agreement a suit was instituted in the names of A and B against D and E to recover possession of the property. This suit was by the High Court decreed in the plaintiff's favour but was on appeal dismissed by the Privy Council with costs. While the suit was in the Court of first instance D and E applied to have C added as a party. This application was refused and D and E did not appeal from that refusal. Pending the litigation A and B brought a suit against D and E for wasalat and obtained a decree. On the 21st September A and B executed a memorandum of agreement whereby C purchased all their rights in the two suits brought by them against D and E. D and E now brought a suit against C alleging that they had suffered loss and damage by the litigation instituted by A and B that C was guilty of champerty and maintenance that the litigation was commenced and continued maliciously by C in the names of persons who had no legal or equitable right and without reasonable or probable cause that the agreement of 17th July, 1867 was illegal and contrary to public policy that the litigation was carried on by C at his own expense and for his own benefit and that C was the real mover in the proceedings and illegally used the procedure of the Court to the damage and injury of the plaintiffs. Held in the Court below and on appeal that there was reasonable and probable cause for the institution of the wasalat suit brought by A and B against D and E. Held by MACPHERSON J that the agreement of July 1867 was illegal and against public policy as also were the subsequent institution and maintaining of the suit against D and E by C and that the plaintiffs were entitled to recover from C the loss they had sustained by reason of the suits which he (substantially only for his own benefit) had maintained against them. Held on appeal (reversing the decision of the Court below) that the suit was not maintainable. The English statutes with regard to champerty and maintenance do not apply to India. In England champerty and maintenance were offences punishable by the Common Law and the ground on which an action is allowed in England—viz that C had been guilty of an offence by which the plaintiff

had suffered damage—does not exist in India. The only ground on which agreements which favour of champerty or maintenance are held to be void in this country is that they are contrary to public policy. Assuming that the agreement of July 1867 was a valid one and that C did thereby acquire an interest in the subject matter of the suit and supplied the means of carrying it on such acts did not entitle the plaintiffs to maintain the present suit or to recover against C the costs of the former suit. C on his part to have been made a co plaintiff with A and B in the former suit or he ought to have been called upon to give security for the costs of that suit. CHUNDER KANT MOOKERJEE v RANCOONAR KOONDAR

In the same case—Held on appeal to the Privy Council the English laws of maintenance and champerty are not of force as specific laws in India either in the mofussil or in the presidency towns. The ground on which contracts of the nature of champerty and maintenance should be held by the Indian Courts to be invalid is that they are contrary to public policy. An agreement to supply funds to carry on a suit in consideration of having a share in the property if recovered is not necessarily opposed to public policy since cases may easily be supposed in which it would be in furtherance of right and justice that a suitor who had a just title to property and no means to support it should be assisted in this way. But agreements purporting to be made to meet such cases when found to be extortionate and unconscionable so as to be inequitable or to be entered into for improper objects as for the purpose of gambling in litigation or of injuring others by encouraging unwholesome suits are contrary to public policy and ought not to have effect given to them. Since by the law of India a champertous agreement does not constitute a punishable offence an action in that country founded on alleged champerty to recover losses and costs incurred in litigation cannot be sustained on the ground that a remedy by action accrues where an indictable offence has been committed. No action will lie for improperly putting the law in motion in the name of a third party unless it is alleged and proved that it has been done maliciously and without reasonable or probable cause. In the absence of such proof an action for losses and costs incurred in defending a suit will not lie as against a person who is alleged to have been a mover in that suit and to have had an interest in it but who had not been made a party to the record since such a state of things creates no legal privy from which a premise can be implied on which an action on contract can be founded nor does it ex hypothesi constitute a legal wrong. RANCOONAR KOONDAR v CHUNDER KANT MOOKERJEE policy or merely on this ground void. But in agreements of this kind the questions are (a) whether the agreement is extortionate and unconscionable so as to be inequitable against the borrower or (b) whether the agreement has been made not with the bona fide object of assisting a claim believed to be just and of obtaining reasonable compensation therefor but for improper objects as for the purpose of gambling, in litigation or of injuring others so as to be for these reasons, contrary to public policy. In either of these cases effect is not to be given to the agreement. Here upon the facts the above case (b) did not arise and this agreement was not contrary to public policy. But this agreement fell within case (a) and the judgment of the High Court was affirmed that the agreement was so extortionate and unconscionable in regard to the excess of the reward that it was inequitable and, therefore not enforceable against the defendant. Ramcoomar Coondoo v Chaudhary Kanti Mohanji I L R 2 Cal 233 L R 4 I A 23 referred to and followed. MONKAM SINGH v LEP SINGH

22. — Assignment of a right to sue—Maintenance—In 1869 P the liquidator of the A F Co compromised for Rs 5000 the claims of the company against the fourth defendant M A which amount to Rs 61,000. P was induced to accept this compromise in consequence of representations made to him by the friends of M A to the effect that M A had no available assets and could not meet his liabilities. In 1878 the first plaintiff G J alleging that the said compromise had been fraudulently effected and that the defendant M A at the time of the compromise had been and was still possessed of ample property to pay off his liabilities induced the liquidator of the company to assign to him the company's claim against M A and from that time onwards the plaintiff G J of the claims of the A F Co against M A was effected with a view to litigation and that under the circumstances the suit was not maintainable. GODULAS JAGMOHANDAS v LAKHMIDAS KUMAR I L R 3 Bom 402

24. — Sale dependent on success in suit—Absolute sale—A sued F and S to establish his right to attach a certain house in execution of a decree obtained by him in a previous suit. In their written statement the defendants alleged that A had obtained the decree in question by fraud. Shortly before the present suit F had mortgaged the house to H for Rs 33,000. About three weeks after the suit had been filed H advanced a further sum of Rs 6000 to F on the same security and on the same day 12th December 1891 entered into an agreement with F by which H agreed to buy the house for Rs 40,000 the sale to be completed immediately after the decision of the present suit. The agreement provided that F should defend the suit but if the result of the suit should be to establish the plaintiff's right to seize the house in execution then that H should be at liberty to cancel the contract of sale. Held that the agreement of 12th December amounted to an absolute sale by F to H of the equity of redemption if the house in question and that it was not champertous. ABHEDHOY BHABHAR v VILLERHOY CASSABHOY I L R. 8 Bom 323

25. — Agreement to share property the subject of suit—Claim for payment for work done and expenses properly incurred—Agreements not opposed to public policy—The English law of champerty is not in force in India. Agreements made by claimants of property in litigation to share it with others on their obtaining decrees in consideration of funds being supplied by the latter for carrying on their suits are not in themselves opposed to public policy nor are they necessarily void. But such agreements when extortionate are inequitable and in that case should not receive effect. Although the present suit failed for this last reason still reasonable compensation under the claim for general relief for work done and expense properly incurred could be awarded as it had been by the Appellate Court below. RAGHUNATH v NIL KANTH

Maintenance—

Gambling in litigation—Agreement opposed to public policy—Contract Act (IX of 1872) s. 23—The judgment of the Privy Council in Ramcoomer Coondoo v Chander Kanto Mookenjee I. R. 41 A 23 I. L. R. 2 Cal. 233 shows that while the specific English law of maintenance and champerty has not been introduced into India and while fair agreements to supply funds to carry on litigation in consideration of having a share of the property if recovered should not be regarded as per se opposed to public policy yet such agreements should be carefully watched and if extortionate and unconscionable or made not with the bona fide object of assisting for a reasonable recompense a claim believed to be just, but for the purpose of gambling in litigation or of injuring or oppressing others by encouraging unrighteous suits should be held contrary to public policy and not enforced. For the purposes of meeting the expenses of an appeal to the High Court the appellant on the advice of his legal adviser executed a bond for Rs 20,000 in consideration of the obligee agreeing to defray such expenses. The obligor agreed to pay the Rs 20,000 within one year from his recovering possession of the property in suit and at the request of the obligor's pleader the obligee advanced Rs 700 which was applied to the expenses of the appeal. The High Court dismissed the appeal and in a deed executed by the obligor in favour of the obligee and others for the purpose of defraying the expenses of a further appeal to the Privy Council he admitted his liability under the former bond. The Privy Council decreed his appeal and he obtained possession of the property in suit but declined to pay the Rs 20,000 upon which the obligee sued upon the bond. It was found that apart from the moneys borrowed by the obligor from time to time he was without even the means of subsistence that he executed the bond with his eyes open and perfectly understood his position and the effect of both the instruments executed by him that no fraud or improper pressure appeared to have been applied to him that his legal advisers had acted honestly and to the best of their ability in his interests that there was nothing to show that having regard to the risks of the litigation he could have obtained the assistance necessary for the prosecution of his appeal on better terms than those contained in the bond that without such assistance he could not have appealed to the High Court and that the obligee gave him such assistance upon his application. Held also that the obligee could not under the circumstances have considered both that the obligor's claim was a just one and reasonably likely to succeed and that the Rs 20,000 was a reasonable recompense in the event of success for the advance of Rs 700 and the bond was therefore a gambling in litigation which it would be contrary to public policy to enforce. The Court gave the plaintiff a decree for the Rs 700 actually advanced with simple interest at 20 per cent per annum from the date of the bond to the *inadequate consideration—Speculative suit not necessarily champertous—A suit having been dismissed on the ground that a sale upon which it was based had been made for a consideration so inadequate as to support the belief that it was in the nature of champerty—Held that the elements required to bring the case within the authorities on the law of champertous transactions in this country were wanting. It was not a case in which an improper interest had been acquired in the unrighteous litigation of other people. The fact that a suit may be speculative does not render it champertous. SIR RAMAYYA & ELLAKKIA

Mortgage—

*Equity of redemption Assignment of—Suit on such assignment—Public policy Assignment not opposed to—The plaintiff sued as the assignee of the equity of redemption for account and redemption alleging that the lands in dispute had been mortgaged to the defendant in 1844 by the ancestor of his (the plaintiff's) assignor. The defendant admitted the mortgage but set up an unregistered deed of release (release) of the equity of redemption dated 1845 alleged to have been passed to him by the father of the plaintiff's assignor for a consideration of Rs 200. He also contended that the plaintiff's assignment was champertous and made with the view of depriving him of the property. The Court of first instance held that the assignment was a gambling transaction and entered into with the object of gaining the spoils of an unrighteous litigation and null and void as opposed to public policy and that the release set up by the defendant could not be given in proof of want of registration and therefore rejected the plaintiff's claim. On appeal to the High Court—Held reversing the decree of the lower Court that although the transaction might not be a precisely one in foro conscientiae it was null and void in regard to a Civil Court as one entered into with the object of gaining the spoils of an unrighteous litigation. 44 ————— Omission to specify precise offence—Penal Code s 467—The prisoner was charged under s 471 of the Penal Code with fraudulently using as genuine a forged document and having been tried before a Sessions Judge and jury was convicted of that offence. The Sessions Judge considering the forged document to be of the nature of those specified in s 467 sentenced the prisoner to ten years transportation. On appeal the High Court held that the charge should have distinctly set forth the offence as that of using a forged document of the nature of those specified in s 467, and that that not having been done the trial by jury was illegal. charges against each of the accused under ss. 323 and 324 of the Criminal Code recorded the statements of the accused and the evidence for the defence and on the 10th September convicted the accused on all the charges passing upon each of them in respect of each charge sentences which he could pass as a Magistrate of the first class but could not have passed as a Magistrate of the second class. The jury having considered their verdict were asked by the Clerk of the Court if they were agreed. The foreman replied that they were and that their verdict was guilty and when further asked he said guilty of abetment—of abetment generally. On the application of counsel for the prosecution a charge was then added of abetment of murder committed by some person or persons unknown. The additional charge was read aloud to the jury but was not specially explained to the prisoner. The prisoner was called upon to plead to it. Counsel for the prisoner was asked by the Judge if he desired to have a new trial on the charge as amended but he declined. The three charges (i.e. the two original charges and the additional charge) were then read to the jury who after deliberation returned a verdict of not guilty on charges Nos 1 and 2 and of guilty on charge No 3 i.e. of abetment of murder by a certain person or persons unknown. On the application of counsel for the prisoner the following points were reserved:

(1) whether under the circumstances the Court had power to add a new charge (2) whether the verdict returned on the new charge was valid, the prisoner not having been called on to plead to it. Held (SCOTT J dissentiente) that the Judge was wrong in framing a new charge in addition to the original charges. The error however was one of form and not of substance and under s 537 of the Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1882) the Court declined to interfere with the conviction. Held also that having regard to ss 228 229 and 230 of the Criminal Procedure Code the charge of abetment of murder by B might have been changed into one of abetment generally. Held also that in any case the conviction was good under ss 236 and 237 of the Criminal Procedure Code. It was doubtful whether the evidence would establish the offence of murder abetment of murder by B or abetment of murder by some one unknown. Even if there had been no charge properly framed the Judge might under s 237 have accepted the verdict returned by the jury and entered it on the record. The fact that the Judge framed a charge which ex hypothesi was beyond his authority and accepted a verdict on that charge did not affect the legality of the conviction. Held that the omission to read and explain the charge to the prisoner did not under the circumstances prejudice the prisoner and was therefore immaterial. In the Criminal Procedure Code generally the word charge is used as the statement of a specific offence and not as indicating the entire series of offences of which a prisoner is accused. There is nothing in the Code to indicate that the word is to have a different construction in ss 226 and 227 from what it has in other sections. The words without a charge in s 226 of the Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1882) will properly apply not only to a case in which there is no charge at all but also to a case in which there is no charge of such an offence as the Sessions Judge or Clerk of the Crown may think the prisoner ought to be tried for. If the word alter in s 227 is to be taken to include addition as it does in s 226, the addition permitted must be an addition to some specific charge in the nature of an alteration and not the addition of a new charge. The words return of the verdict in s 227 mean the return of the final verdict which the Judge is bound to record. Per SCOTT J.—The test of the admissibility of proposed amendments to a charge is whether such amendment will prejudice the prisoner. The word charge is used in the Code both as indicating the whole series of counts or heads of charge and also as indicating a charge of one specific offence. In s 227 it is used in the former sense. The word alter in s 227 must be taken to be equivalent to the words add to or otherwise alter which are used in s 226 and consequently the addition of a new head of charge is an alteration within the meaning of s 227. QUEEN EXPRESS v APPA SUBHANA MENDE I L R. 8 Bom. 200

At the trial the Sessions Judge added a charge against all the accused of causing hurt to C and convicted them upon both the original charges and the added charge. The assault upon C took place either at the same time as or immediately after the attack which resulted in the death of J. Held that the case did not come within the terms of s 226 of the Criminal Procedure Code and the adding of the charge was an irregularity which was not covered by ss 236 and 237 those sections having no application to such a state of things but that, inasmuch as the Sessions Judge was addressed by the pleader who appeared for the accused and heard all the objections raised and written and might have been called for the defence upon the added charge the provisions of s 537 were applicable to the case. QUEEN EXPRESS v HARAO [I L R. 8 All. 665]

81 ——— Power of Sessions Judge to withdraw a charge framed by him—Criminal Procedure Code ss 226 227—The word alter in s 227 of the Criminal Procedure Code includes withdrawal by a Sessions Judge of a charge added by him to the charge on which the commitment had been made. DWARAKA LAL v MANABENDRA PRASAD I L R. 12 All. 561

82 ——— Vagueness of charge—Penal Code s 217—The accused was charged under s 217 of the Penal Code; but the charge did not distinctly state what the direction of the law was which he disobeyed and how he disobeyed it. Held that when the accused has been convicted on a charge expressed in vague terms the prosecution on appeal should be limited to the particular sense in which the charge has been understood at the trial. EXPRESS v BABAN KIAN [I L R. 2 Bom. 143]

in British India. The Magistrate who held a preliminary inquiry into the matter, committed the accused to the Sessions Court on a charge under s. 35 of the Penal Code (XIV of 1860). The Sessions Judge amended the charge to one under s. 30 on the ground that as the accused had been extradited on a charge under s. 30, they could be tried and convicted only under that section and no other. At the end of the trial, the Sessions Judge held that the accused were guilty of theft, but not of dacoity as alleged. Held reversed. The Sessions Judge altered the charge under s. 22 of the Code of Criminal Procedure (Act X of 1892) and under s. 235 to convict the accused of the offence of which the Sessions Judge held. Held also that the Code of Criminal Procedure was applicable as lex fori. QUEEN EMERALD & KHODA LMA

84. — Power of Appellate Court to alter charge or finding—See also to the accused—See is for a retrial on the altered charge—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1892) s. 223 and 223—The accused gave his pleader a copy of a document which had been falsified by an entry late in the trial of his case. It led that he was guilty of an attempt to commit an offence under s. 471 of the Penal Code, but of the offence itself. If the prosecution establishes certain facts constituting an offence and the Court misapplies the law by charging and convicting an accused person for an offence other than that for which the facts have been properly charged, and if notwithstanding such error the accused has by his defence endeavoured to meet the accusation of the commission of the acts, then the Appellate Court may alter the charge or finding and convict him for an offence which the facts properly constitute provided the accused be not prejudiced by the alteration in the finding. Such an error is one of form rather than of substance and the alteration by an Appellate Court if the charge or finding would not be material a retrial expressly on a charge of that offence. LALA OSHA & QUEEN EMERALD

In appeal the District Magistrate held that no theft had been committed but he convicted the accused of being members of an unlawful assembly. Held that on the trial the accused were called upon to answer only a charge of theft, they were never called upon to answer any other charge and they therefore could not fairly be convicted on their answer of an offence of an entirely different character. It is on the proceedings taken before the Magistrate that the facts constituting an offence for which a trial is held are made known to the accused, and the law is applied by the Magistrate to the facts established, so as to constitute the charge which the accused is called upon to answer. It therefore cannot be said that sufficient notice was given to the accused, because mention of s. 147 of the Penal Code (relating to theft with theft) was made in the final report of the police as the offences considered to have been established and that the accused must have been made acquainted with such report. JAY SING & MANAR SINGH

On appeal the Sessions Judge not only found that the common object was not the taking of the manures, but that the dispute between the parties was as to certain land. He, however, dismissed the appeal and confirmed the conviction. Held that, as the accused were convicted on a different finding of fact from that to which they were called upon to plead and to defend themselves at the trial, they were entitled to an acquittal. RAMCHAND & ASGAR ALI

If the word alter in s 227 is to be taken to include addition as it does in s 226 the addition permitted must be an addition to some specific charge in the nature of an alteration and not the addition of a new charge. The words return of the verdict in s 227 mean the return of the final verdict which the Judge is bound to record. Per SCOTT J—The test of the admissibility of proposed amendments to a charge is whether such amendment will prejudice the prisoner. The word charge is used in the Code both as indicating the whole series of counts or heads of charge and also as indicating a charge of one specific offence. In s 227 it is used in the former sense. The word alter in s 227 must be taken to be equivalent to the words add to or otherwise alter which are used in s 226 and consequently the addition of a new head of charge is an alteration within the meaning of s 227. QUEEN EMPRESS v APPA SUBHANA MENDRE I L R 11 Bom. 200

At the trial the Sessions Judge added a charge against all the accused of causing hurt to C and convicted them upon both the original charges and the added charge. The assault upon C took place either at the same time as or immediately after the attack which resulted in the death of J. Held that the case did not come within the terms of s 226 of the Criminal Procedure Code and the adding of the charge was an irregularity which was not covered by ss 236 and 237 those sections having no application to such a state of things but that inasmuch as the Sessions Judge was addressed by the pleader who appeared for the accused and heard all the objections raised and witnesses might have been called for the defence upon the added charge the provisions of s 537 were applicable to the case. QUEEN EMPRESS v KHARGA [I L R. 11 All. 665]

in Bhoj India. The Magistrate who held a preliminary inquiry into the matter committed the accused to the Sessions Court on a charge under s 4 of the Penal Code (Act V of 1860). The Sessions Judge amended the charge to one under s 302 on the ground that as the accused had been extra-judicially charged under s 302, they could be tried and convicted only under that section and no other. At the end of the trial, the Sessions Judge found that the accused were guilty of it, but not of the offence charged. Held reversing the order acquittal, that it was competent to the Sessions Judge to alter the charge to s 302 of the Penal Code (Act V of 1860) and under s 216 to convict the accused of the offence which he had committed. Held also that the Code of Criminal Procedure was applicable as lex fori. QUEEN EMERALD v. ANOHA LMA.

84. — Power of Appellate Court to alter charge or finding—See supra to the accused—Necessity for a retrial on the altered charge—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898) ss 216, 217, 218 and 223.—The accused gave his plea of guilty of a document which had been falsified by an interpretation being made in favour of the law on the trial of his suit. Held that he was guilty not of an attempt to commit an offence under s 471 of the Penal Code but of the offence itself. If the prosecution establishes certain facts constituting an offence and the Court in applying the law by charging, and convicting an accused person for an offence other than that for which he should have been properly charged, and if he is withdrawing such error the accused has by his defence endeavoured to meet the accusation of the commission of these acts then the Appellate Court may alter the charge and finding and convict him for an offence which those facts properly constitute provided the accused be not prejudiced by the alteration in the finding, such an error is one of form rather than of substance and the alteration by an Appellate Court of the charge or finding would not constitute a retrial expressly on a charge of that offence. 86. — Conviction of offence of different character—Legality of—Charge of theft—Conviction of a member of a lawfully constituted Criminal Procedure (Act V of 1898) s 423—Penal Code (Act V of 1860) s 143 and 479—The accused were convicted of theft that was the only charge which they were called upon to answer. In appeal the District Magistrate held that no theft had been committed but he convicted the accused of being members of an unlawful assembly. Held that on the trial the accused were called upon to answer only a charge of theft they were never called upon to answer any other charge and they therefore could not fairly be convicted on their appeal of an offence of an entirely different character. It is on the proceedings taken before the Magistrate that the facts constituting an offence for which a trial is held are made known to the accused and the law is applied by the Magistrate to the facts established as to constitute the charge which the accused is called upon to answer. If therefore cannot be said that sufficient notice was given to the accused because mention of s 147 of the Penal Code (rioting) together with theft was made in the final report of the police as the offences considered to have been established and that the accused must have been made acquainted with such report. On appeal the Sessions Judge not only found that the common object was not the taking of the mangroves but that the dispute between the parties was as to certain land. He however dismissed the appeal and confirmed the conviction. Held that as the accused were convicted on a different finding of fact from that to which they were called upon to plead and to defend themselves at the trial they were entitled to an acquittal. The prisoners pleaded guilty and were convicted on their plea. The charge was not explained to the prisoners. 1 SUMMING UP IN GENERAL CASES

1 — Mode of summing up evidence—Duty of Judge—In charging a jury a Judge is entitled to do more than lay carefully and plainly before them the evidence as recorded by him stating discrepancies and inconsistencies and pointing out generally the way in which it is favourable or unfavourable to accused. QUEEN v. CHANDER KR. SEAR MUZOOMDAR 25 W. R. Cr 64

2 — Criminal Procedure Code (Act 1 of 1882) s 298—Duty of Judge when the jury are uncertain as to the offence committed—A jury after retiring returned to the box and after unanimously finding both prisoners not guilty of the charges framed against them stated to the Judge that they thought an offence had been committed by one of the prisoners but were uncertain as to the section of the Penal Code applicable to his case. The Judge thereupon made over to them a copy of the Penal Code leaving them to decide under what section the offence fell. Held that he had failed in his duty and that he should have asked the jury what doubts they had as to the crime which had been committed, and should have explained to them the law and informed them what offence the facts would prove against the prisoner if they believed those facts. JASFATH SINGH v. QUEEN EMPRESS 1 L. R. 14 Calc. 164

3 — Omission to point out legal bearings—Pleading evidence to jury in important cases—On a trial by jury a Sessions Judge in summing up should give a full and detailed statement of the evidence on both sides. He should point out the legal bearing of it and what weight the jury ought to attach to its several parts. His omission to do so if the accused is thereby prejudiced, amounts to such an error in law as would justify a Court of Appeal in setting aside the verdict. No general rule can be laid down as to when a prisoner is prejudiced by a defective summing up but in general if the finding of the jury in such a case is one that an Appeal Court would set aside if the trial had taken place with the aid of assessors the Court will interfere and set the verdict aside. In capital cases and all cases of a serious or complicated nature the Judge ought to read over the evidence in extenso to the jury. REG v. FATTCHAND VASTACHAND

[5 Bom. Cr. 85]

4 — Duty of Judge in charging jury—In delivering a charge to the jury it is the duty of the Sessions Judge to call the attention of the jury to the facts and then to leave it to them to consider whether from the facts they conclude that a particular criminal act was done and if they so conclude then to direct them that the case comes within a particular section of the Code. *SAT PRASAD MISSEER v. Where facts are so consistent with a prisoner's innocence as with his guilt, innocence must be presumed; and criminal intent or knowledge is not necessarily imputable to every man who acts contrary to the provisions of the law. QUEEN v. The Judge while charging the jury omitted to explain the law by which they were to be guided. The jury returned a verdict of guilty on all counts except one and the Judge agreeing with the verdict convicted the accused. Held that the omission to explain the law to the jury amounted to a misdirection vitiating the verdict within the meaning of s. 423 (d) Criminal Procedure Code. *Wafadar Khan v. CHUNDER MOOMAN MOZOOMDAR 24 W. R. Cr. 77

33. Erroneous direction as to corroboration of accomplice's evidence—Held* in a case of murder that the Judge had not given a proper direction to the jury in telling them that it was for them to consider whether the evidence of the accomplice was strictly corroborated as to the prisoners that it was not enough that the evidence would disclose a state of facts consistent with the possibility of the truth of the accomplice's story; and that the Judge ought to have gone through the history of the crime as detailed by the accomplices to point out any independent evidence proving facts showing that the prisoners were or must have been present at or cognizant of the murder. QUEEN v. The accused being upon his trial at the local sessions for murder the two principal witnesses for the prosecution were G and H to whom pardons were tendered by the committing Magistrate under s. 337 of the Criminal Procedure Code and who had accepted the same. The Judge read to the jury statements (which had not been admitted in evidence) by G and H purporting to have been taken under s. 361. Held that the improper reception of such evidence vitiated a decision erroneous in point of law calculated to prejudice the prisoner. The Judge further charged the jury that they were not to convict upon the evidence of G if satisfied that he was an accomplice and uncorroborated but coupled the direction with a strong expression of opinion that G was not an accomplice. Held that this constituted a misdirection in fact though not in form calculated seriously to prejudice the prisoner's case. QUEEN EMRESS v. 39 ————— Confession of accused—Subsequently retracted—Criminal Procedure Code s 103—Search by police of stolen property—It cannot be laid down as an absolute rule of law that a confession made and subsequently retracted by a prisoner cannot be accepted as evidence of his guilt without independent corroborative evidence. A jury should be asked with reference to such confessions not whether they were corroborated by independent evidence but whether having regard to the circumstances under which they were made and retracted and all the circumstances connected with them it was more probable that the original confessions or the statements retracting them were true. Criminal Procedure Code s 103 does not justify the view that the persons called upon to witness a search are to be selected by any person other than the officer conducting the search. If the Sessions Judge considers that the evidence of an Inspector of Police is necessary he ought not to annul it on his absence in charging the jury but he should intimate his opinion to the Public Prosecutor and give him the opportunity of calling that official. It is wrong for a Judge in charging the jury to say that a head constable committed a breach of the police regulations in conducting a search with a loose shirt on without examining him on the matter and taking evidence as to whether or not his body was examined before he began the search. QUEEN EMPRESS v RAMAN

40 ————— Retracted confessions—Misdirection as to admissibility of such confessions without corroborative evidence—Error in mode of treating evidence—The accused were tried for murder. The Sessions Judge in his charge to the jury discussed the evidence generally describing it as very poor evidence which standing alone amounted to nothing. He also told the jury that as regards retracted confessions the law is that you are to look for a corroboration in independent evidence. If that supplies such corroboration that you can confidently say the confessions must be absolutely true you can act upon them otherwise not. Held that the charge was defective. The Sessions Judge ought to have summed up the evidence to the jury calling their attention to the material parts of it and leaving them to form their own opinion on it in treating it generally. Held also that the Judge misdirected the jury as there is no law that a retracted confession cannot be taken unless it is corroborated in material parts by independent reliable evidence. QUEEN EMPRESS v GANGA

No evidence was adduced to prove that the prisoners had signed it. The Judge drew the attention of the jurors to this document and adverted to it in these terms. If the written statement was drawn up on an earlier date than the date it bears it could not have been prepared earlier than the day on which the principal stamp was bought—i.e. 18th. Held that the document should not have been received in evidence and that there was a misdirection which contributed materially towards the jury finding the prisoners guilty. QUEEN v GAJRAJ

Failure to do so amounts to misdirection. Queen Empress v. Balga Ramya I L R., 35 Bom 369 followed. Statements by some of the accused persons which do not amount to a confession and which do not in any way incriminate them are not admissible in evidence against any persons other than those making them. Omission to direct the jury that in dealing with the evidence against the accused other than those making the statements they are not to take into consideration such statements also amounts to misdirection. If the verdict of the jury is set aside on any of the grounds mentioned in cl (d) of s 423 of the Criminal Procedure Code (Act 1 of 1882) then there is no restriction on the powers of the Appellate Court to deal with a case of which it has complete control in any of the manners provided in that section. The charge concluded with these words—'I now leave the case in your hands. If you believe the charge of dacoity to be false then you shall find the prisoner guilty under s 211 Penal Code otherwise you shall acquit him.' Held that the charge was erroneous and defective. Held further that the Judge was in error in not putting before the jury all the elements which constitute the offence under s 211 of the Indian Penal Code. Held also that the Judge should in the operative part of the charge instead of directing as he did have prominently placed before the jury one of the most essential elements of the charge under s 211 namely that in instituting the false charge of dacoity there was no just or lawful ground for the charge and the jury should have been asked to say whether the charge was false and whether in instituting that charge there was no just or lawful ground. TOMIL RAMANICKA v. It was proved that the endorsement of registration which appeared on the document was a forgery. In his charge to the jury the Sessions Judge omitted to deal with the fact of the accused being in possession of the property. He also directed that the registration endorsement having been proved to be a forgery it was for the accused persons to establish the genuineness of the document. As to this it is sufficient to say that no other inference is possible under the circumstances. When a man carries off a young girl at night from her father's house the presumption is that he did so with the intent indicated above. There was no evidence on the record to prove the alternative common object it being based solely on a portion of the statements of some of the accused and the Sessions Judge put it to the jury that it was an inference that could possibly be drawn from the evidence but it was for them to draw that inference or not. The jury convicted all the accused without specifying which common object they relied on and were not asked under a 303 of the Code of Criminal Procedure any questions for the purpose of ascertaining what their verdict was based on. Held that the Judge had misdirected the jury and that the verdict of the jury leaving it uncertain what was the common object which actuated the accused, was bad in law and that the conviction must be set aside and the case retried. Held further that it was unfair to use a part of the statements of some of the accused put forward in their defence as justifying the use of force by them in repelling the attack of the opposite party for the purpose of showing a common object as against them and that the statements should have been taken in their entirety and could not in any event be used as against the rest of the accused. WAYADAB KHAN v QUEEN EXPRESS

1 — Nomination of ship's agents by freighters—Right of agents to sue on charter-party—Ships going seeking Meaning of—A charter party made between the defendants (the owners of the Seafork) and H & Co (the freighters) provided that the owners should employ at the ports of discharge the consignee nominated by the freighters to transact the ship business there inwards and outwards on the customary terms, not exceeding 2½ per cent. on an amt of freight payable inwards and 5 per cent. outwards. If H & Co nominated the plaintiffs to transact the ship business in Bombay (a port of discharge) with the knowledge and consent of the master of the Seafork and the plaintiffs accepted and acted under such nomination. The defendants refused to pay the plaintiffs commission on the outward freight of the Seafork on the ground that under the circumstances under which such freight was procured the plaintiffs were not under the charter party entitled to receive commission on it. It is that the plaintiffs were sufficiently within the operation of the charter party to maintain a suit for breach of such clauses (if it was inserted for their benefit) meaning of the mercantile expression "going seeking" discussed. BLACKWALL & Co Jones & Co 7 Bom O C 144

on unloading and right delivery of the cargo; one third by M's acceptance at three months from the sailing of the ship (the same to be returned if the cargo were not duly delivered) and the remainder by like bill at three months from the date of delivery in London of the certificate of right delivery of the cargo. The charter party provided for payment of a commission on the contract ship lost or not lost that the £150 should be advanced in cash at the port of discharge on account of the freight against the captain a draft on M. The cargo was loaded accordingly a bill of lading was given for the same and the ship sailed from Cardiff on the 8th October 1863. M having consigned the cargo to A & Co who carried on business at Madras. On the same day the owners drew a bill on M at three months for £261 1s 10d, being one-third of the freight. On the 10th October 1863 the general agents in London of A & Co advanced to M on A & Co's account and out of their funds £700 received as security for such advance the bill of lading blank and endorsed and forwarded the bill to A & Co. On the 20th October 1863 M accepted the bill for £261 1s 10d and in the following December he suspended payment and the bill was protested. On the 14th January 1864 the ship arrived at Madras and thereupon A & Co as holders of the bill of lading applied for the delivery of the cargo and offered to advance the £150 in cash pursuant to the charter-party but the captain claimed to retain the cargo for the value of the dishonoured bill and the balance of freight due. Held that the terms of the contract were at variance with the right of lien so claimed and that it was not suspended by the bill nor revived by the freighters' insolvency. ABUTHNOT & DAIGRE 3 Mad., 88

3 — Freight—Bill of lading—Liability of master where quantity signed for is more than cargo shipped—The plaintiff chartered a ship of which he was master to one C H C of Calcutta, under a charter party by which it was agreed that the ship (which was then M Melbourne) should proceed to certain ports and there load a cargo for Calcutta, the cargo to be delivered to the charterer at Calcutta on being paid freight at and after the rate of the lump sum of £1 150 for the full reach of the ship; the said freight to be paid on the unloading and right delivery of the cargo as customary law any advances that may have been made. On the arrival of the ship at Calcutta C H C requested the plaintiff to deliver the cargo to the defendants as his agents, which the plaintiff agreed to do having payment of the freight guaranteed by the defendants. The defendants were bona fide holders of the bills of lading which had been signed by the plaintiff in respect of the cargo. They sent to the agents of the plaintiff in Calcutta the following letter: As it will be necessary for us for the protection of our interests to get delivery of the cargo, and as we do not care about further trouble in the matter we agree to guarantee payment of the balance of freight due on the charter party less any claims for short delivery etc. On an loading there was found to be a deficiency in quantity between the goods mentioned in the bills of lading and those actually shipped and delivered. Held that notwithstanding this the plaintiff was entitled to the whole of the freight specified in the charter party and was justified in keeping the cargo until the freight was paid. DONS v. STEWART

4 — Conditions precedent— Now on her passage—Breach of warranty—Principal and agent—Undisclosed principal— The plaintiffs entered into a contract of charter party with the defendants whereby it was agreed between them and the defendants acting for the owners that the steamer Atholl now on her passage to Calcutta being tight staunch and strong etc. shall receive on board from the charterers a complete cargo of merchandise to consist of 700 tons dead weight and being so laden shall therewith proceed to London with liberty to call for any legal purpose at any intermediate port or ports freight to be paid on the above cargo on right delivery of the same at and after the rate of £4 7s 6 per ton; charterers to have the option of cancelling the charter party if the steamer has not arrived in Calcutta on 15th April 1871. The defendants signed the charter party as agents of steamer Atholl. The steamer was not at the time the charter party was entered into on her way to Calcutta being then in the port of London and she did not start for some days after the date of the charter party. She touched at Madras and Colombo on her way and did not arrive in Calcutta until 11th April. Rates of freight having declined since the middle of March at which time it was alleged the steamer ought to have arrived the plaintiff sued the defendants for damages. Held the defendants were liable. The statement in the charter party that the steamer was on her passage to Calcutta was a condition precedent. SCHILLER v. FINLAY

5 — Ship unable to enter port or lie there without previous lightening— Safe port or at near thereto as she may safely get always afloat—Rights of parties— Where a vessel is chartered to load a full and complete cargo and being so loaded to proceed therewith to a safe port or so near thereto as she may safely get and deliver the same always afloat the master is not bound to sign bills of lading for or to sail to a port where the vessel cannot by reason of her draught of water lie and discharge always afloat without being previously lightened even if the cost of the requisite lightening would by the charter party fall on the charterers. By the terms of a charter party a vessel was to take in a full cargo at Bombay and therewith proceed to a "safe port in the Mediterranean (Spanish ports excluded) as ordered on signing bills of lading or so near thereto as she may safely get and deliver the same to the said charterers or their assignees always afloat. Marseilles was at first named as the port of discharge but subsequently the vessel was ordered to Cette a French port a little to the west of Marseilles and bills of lading made out for Cette were tendered to the master for signature. The master refused to sign the bills of lading or sail for Cette. The vessel's draught of water when loaded was such that she could not have entered or lain afloat in Cette harbour without discharging a portion of her cargo. The cost of lightening the vessel by lighters outside the harbour would under the charter-party fall on the charterers and they were willing to incur the expenses necessary for that purpose. Held that it was no breach of the charter party by the master to refuse to sail to Cette or to sign bills of lading for that port. GRAHAM & Co v. 6 — Principal and agent—Charter party signed by agents for master and owner—Parties to suit—Liability of master—Liability of Agents—Master of ship the agent of charterer to sign bill of lading—Right of master to recover from charterers sums paid by master as damages for short delivery of cargo—Appropriation of payments—Contract Act (IX of 1872) ss 69 230 235— By a charter party dated 10th September 1880 F M & Co as agents for master and owner let the steam-ship Hutton to E for a term of not less than three and not more than four months for the sum of Rs 15,000 per month payable in advance. By subsequent agreement the term was extended to 30th March 1881 and the charterer was to pay at the rate of Rs 18,000 a month for the extended time. On 21st February 1881 the ship being about to proceed on her last voyage to Calcutta and thence to Bombay E finding himself unable to pay more than Rs 600 out of the sum of Rs 18,000 which was then due as hire for the month ending 9th March 1881 requested the plaintiff to pay F M & Co on his behalf the remaining Rs 12,000. The plaintiffs did so in consideration of an agreement whereby E assigned to them all the freight payable to E and all benefits under the said charter-party in respect of the then intended voyage of the Hutton. It was also agreed between the plaintiffs and E that the said ship should be consigned to the plaintiffs at Calcutta and also to them at Bombay and that the plaintiffs should receive all the freight passage money etc. to be recovered for the said voyage the plaintiffs charging two per cent commission on the gross value of the freight shipped in Calcutta and two per cent on the amount of freight collected by them in Bombay and interest on the said sum of Rs 12,000 at the rate of nine per cent per annum. Due notice of this agreement was given to F M & Co. On the 11th March E being unable to pay the Rs 600 requested the plaintiffs to pay that sum to F M & Co on his behalf which the plaintiffs did—E agreeing that the said payment should be on the same terms as those on which the Rs 12,000 had been paid. The ship having proceeded to Calcutta returned with cargo to Bombay where she arrived on 2nd April 1881. F M & Co, as agents for master and owner refused to allow the plaintiffs to collect the freight payable in Bombay and collected it themselves. The plaintiffs brought this suit in the first instance against the owner and the master of the Hutton (first and second defendants) praying for an account of the moneys received by the defendants or their agents in respect of the freight and for payment of the balance found due after deducting the sums properly payable to the defendants for hire of the ship and for R400 damages sustained by the plaintiffs by reason of the wrongful act of the defendants whereby the plaintiffs had been deprived of the two per cent commission. The plaintiffs alleged that the balance due to them would be about R19 500. The first defendant did not appear. The second defendant (the master) contended that he was not liable that F M & Co had been especially appointed as agents of the owner; that they were not his (the master's) agents, and that they had no authority to sign the charter party for him. He admitted that the sum of R12 000 had been paid to F M & Co by the plaintiffs as agents for the owner but as to the R6 000 he denied that it had been paid to F M & Co on his account or on account of the owner. He further alleged that there was a large sum due by E in respect of hire of the ship and other proper claims against him under the charter party and that the defendants were therefore justified in refusing the demands of the plaintiffs as assignees of E until the whole of their claims against E were liquidated. He alleged that F M & Co had received the freight of the ship amounting to R20 426 and he claimed a lien on this sum in respect of the sum of R19,283 due for hire and other charges on the said ship and R605 for money paid for short delivery of goods. The plaintiffs subsequently made F M & Co defendants to the suit. In their written statement F M & Co stated that they had signed the charter party as agents only and not as principals and they contended that the plaintiffs could not proceed simultaneously against the first defendant and the second defendant but must elect to proceed separately against either and further that the plaintiffs could not proceed simultaneously against themselves (F M & Co) and the second defendant but should elect to proceed separately against either. They admitted the receipt of the R12 000 as agents for the first defendant and not as agents of the second defendant. As to the R6 000 they alleged that it had been paid to them not on account of the Hutton but in respect of claims which they had against E in connection with the Clan Gordon, another ship which had been chartered by E. They admitted the receipt of the freight of the Hutton amounting to R20,426 but claimed a lien on this sum in respect of hire and other proper charges due under the charter party. Held that the second defendant (the master) was not liable on the charter party. He had given no authority to F M & Co to sign it as his agents and his conduct in acting under the charter party being referable to his character of and duty as master did not amount to ratification. But inasmuch as he claimed to deduct from the freight received in Bombay sums which were paid either by him or to F M & Co for him he was so far a proper party to the suit. Held also that under s. 230 of the Contract Act (IX of 1872) F M & Co were not liable as principals on the charter party as they appeared on the face of the charter party to have signed merely as agents. But they were liable under s. 235 of the Contract Act

for having untruly represented themselves to be the authorized agents of the master to enter on his behalf into the contract therein contained. Their liability was limited to the amount which could have been recovered from the master if he had really been their principal. No difference was made in their liability by the fact that the owner was also liable. As to the R6 000—Held on the evidence that the plaintiffs at the time of the payment had specifically appropriated this sum to the hire then due for the Hutton. Held further that the charter party was one of the class known as locatio navis et operarum magistri; that under such a charter party the master would as between owner and charterer sign bills of lading as agent of the charterer; that as between the owner and the charterer the latter was liable to defray the damages for non performance of the contracts contained in the bills of lading including damages for short delivery of cargo; and that such being the liability of E as charterer the plaintiffs as his assignees were bound by all the equities affecting him so that the defendants might set off as against the plaintiffs whatever the owner of the Hutton might have set off against E if he had been the plaintiff. The second defendant (the master) alleged that he had paid in Bombay certain sums of money to consignees as damages for short delivery of cargo and he claimed credit for such payments as against the plaintiffs. Held that he had no power to bind E by making such payments on his behalf in Bombay where both E and the plaintiffs were resident without the consent either of E or of the plaintiffs. In order to establish these charges against E and his assignees (the plaintiffs) it was necessary for the defendants to prove either that they were in fact due in which case the master would be justified in paying them under s. 69 of the Contract Act or that their correctness had been admitted by E or his agents. The defendants having failed to produce the required proof the claim of the second defendant was disallowed.

7 — Misdescription of tonnage of ship—Misrepresentation in contract—Contract Act (XI of 1872) s. 10 13 14 18 19—Condition precedent—The defendants in Bombay chartered a ship from the plaintiffs which was described in the charter party as of the measurement of about 2 700—2 800 tons nett register. The ship had never been in Bombay and was wholly unknown to the defendants. Evidence was given that in the negotiations for the charter party the plaintiffs stated to the defendants that the ship was certainly not more than 2 800 tonnage register. She however turned out to be of the registered tonnage of 3 045 tons and the defendants refused to accept her in fulfilment of the charter party. Held by PARSONS J. that the defendants were entitled to treat the contract as void by reason of the erroneous statement of the plaintiffs with regard to the size of the ship (Contract Act IX of 1872 s. 10 13 14 18 19). Held on appeal by SARJEENT C.J. and FARRAN J. (1) that the representation in the charter party as to the tonnage of the vessel was intended to be a substantive part of the contract between the parties (2) that the statement in the contract was a condition precedent of which the defendants were entitled to avail themselves whether or no they would have suffered loss had they accepted the ship (3) that the facts justified the defendants in repudiating the contract OCEANIC STEAM NAVIGATION COMPANY v SOONDERDAS DRUMSEY

8 — Optional clause—

Choice of ports to load cargo—Election of port—The plaintiff chartered the defendants ship to proceed from Bombay to Jeddah and thence carry a cargo of pilgrims to Calcutta. The charter party contained the following clause—Owners to have the option of requiring the charterer to ship salt at Ras Rawayah or at Aden to fill up the lower holds of the steamer at a lump sum of Rs 12,000 payable before delivery at the port of discharge Rs 2,000 to be deposited by the charterer on account of the above freight, out of which Rs 1,500 to be paid here (Bombay) 48 hours before sailing and Rs 600 before departure of the steamer from Jeddah. Before the ship left Bombay the plaintiff was called upon to pay and paid the Rs 1,500 advance freight. On the ship's arrival at Jeddah the plaintiff was required by the defendants' agent to name the port where he intended to load the salt and pay the Rs 500 named in the charter party. The plaintiff in reply named Aden and paid the Rs 500 which the defendants' agent acknowledged as received for filling up salt to Aden. This was on the 22nd July. The captain, however, believing that the plaintiff would not find salt at Aden for Calcutta, refused to sail to Aden to load the salt unless the expense of going there and returning to Jeddah for the pilgrims was guaranteed by the plaintiff, which the plaintiff refused to do. Subsequently on the 30th July the captain on the instructions of the defendants, informed the plaintiff that the choice of the port to load salt was with the defendants and that they named Ras Rawayah as the port where the plaintiff was required to load his salt and refused to go to Aden. The plaintiff refused to go to Ras Rawayah. There was to the defendants' knowledge no salt at Ras Rawayah. There was plenty of salt at Aden though none offering for Calcutta owing to the prices ruling at the latter port. The captain refusing to load the pilgrims unless the balance of the Rs 1,000 salt freight was paid in advance the plaintiff paid it and brought this suit to recover the whole of the said sum. Held that the plaintiff was entitled to succeed (i) because by the true construction of the contract the choice of the port must be taken to be with the plaintiff who had to do all that was necessary to provide the salt the option given by the contract to the owners being as to whether they should require salt to be loaded or not; and (ii) because if the election of the port was with the defendants they through their agent at Jeddah, conclusively determined their election in favour of Aden at latest on the 22nd July when they accepted the Rs 500 for filling up salt to go to Aden. ABDUL RAHMAN ALLARAKHIA v HASANADHOT VISRAM

9 — Mistake in date—

Mistake mutual or unilateral—Rectification or rescission of contract—The plaintiffs required a steamer to sail from Jeddah fifteen days after the Haj in order to convey pilgrims returning to Bombay. They chartered a steamer from the defendants in June 1891 for that purpose. The defendants chartered their steamers by English dates. The date inserted in the charter party was the 10th August 1892 (fifteen days after the Haj). The 10th August 1892 was given or accepted by the plaintiffs in the belief that it corresponded with the fifteenth day after the Haj. The defendants had no belief on the subject and contracted only with respect to the English date. The 19th July 1892 and not the 10th August 1892 in fact corresponded with the fifteenth day after the Haj. On finding out the mistake in March 1893 the plaintiffs brought this suit for rectification of the charter party by the insertion of the correct date the 19th July 1892 instead of the erroneous date the 10th August 1892. Meanwhile the defendants had let all their steamers and could not give the plaintiff one for the 19th July 1892. Held that the agreement was one for the 10th August 1892 and that as that date was a matter materially inducing the agreement there could be no rectification but only cancellation even if both parties were under a mistake. Held further that the mistake was not mutual but on the plaintiffs' part only and therefore there could be no rectification. A plaintiff seeking rectification must show that there was an actual concluded contract antecedent to the instrument sought to be rectified, and that such contract is inaccurately represented in the instrument. 10 — Bill of lading—

Freight—Rate of freight in charter party—Contract by sub-charterer with shipper for freight at lower rate—Refusal by captain to sign bills of lading at lower rate than rate a charter party—Payment by shipper of difference under protest—On 3rd March 1898 A. D. & Co. a firm of freight jobbers in Bombay contracted to provide the plaintiffs with freight for 3,000 tons of cargo to Liverpool at 15s 6d per ton in a steamer to be subsequently named and on the same day handed to the plaintiffs three shipping orders addressed to the captain of the ship the name of which was to be afterwards inserted. In these shipping orders the higher and lower rate clause was as follows—"Bill of lading if required at lower or higher rate difference payable here as customary. This clause the plaintiffs struck out from each of the shipping orders according to their usual practice. On 11th May 1898 the defendants chartered the steamship Padd given of which they were also the owners."

agents in Bombay and on the 12th May assigned a half share of their interest under the charter party to K D & Co. By the charter party a full and complete cargo was to be loaded and the freight was to be £1 10 per ton. The captain however was authorized to sign clean bills of lading at any rate of freight required by the charterers without prejudice to the charter-party but at not less than the chartered rate unless the difference was paid in cash before sailing. K D & Co having thus sub-chartered the Paddington declared that steamer to the plaintiffs for 2747 tons of cargo under their contract of the 3rd March 1898 and the name of the steamer was then entered in the shipping orders for that amount of cargo. The plaintiffs thereupon commenced to load a cargo of wheat. By the 21st June 1100 tons had been put on board; mate's receipts were given to the plaintiffs and bills of lading were prepared by them stating the rate of freight to be 16s 6d per ton as per the shipping orders and were presented for signature to the captain. He refused to sign them unless the difference between 16s 6d and the chartered rate of £1 10 was paid to him as provided in the charter party. The plaintiffs thereupon refused to ship any more cargo and demanded the return of the cargo already shipped on board the Paddington. On the 4th June the Paddington sailed from Bombay the captain having previously authorized the defendants to sign bills of lading for him after his departure provided they were in accordance with the charter party. After some delay the plaintiffs on the 29th June accepted bills of lading for the 2100 tons at £1 10 and paid under protest the difference between that rate and their contract rate (16s 6d) and certain other sums for which the defendants as agents for the owners claimed a lien. The plaintiffs now sued to recover from the defendants the amount so paid under protest. The defendants contended that as agents for owners they were justified in refusing to give bills of lading until the sums due and for which they claimed a lien were paid. Held that the defendants had no lien for the sums paid and that the plaintiffs were entitled to recover the amount claimed. Per CANNY J—The plaintiffs were entitled upon demand to have the said 2100 tons re-delivered to them by the captain. On 29th June the plaintiffs were entitled to clean bills of lading at 30s and the sum paid by them under protest in order to obtain such bills of lading was recoverable by them. Under the circumstances the defendants had no lien for freight and demurrage. Per STARLING J—The captain was justified in refusing to re-deliver the said 2100 tons. The plaintiffs were entitled to clean bills of lading at 30s and there was no lien for freight and demurrage in respect of which the plaintiffs had paid under protest the sum claimed by defendants. RALLI BROTHERS & CHARILDAS LALLUBHAI I.L.R. 23 Bom 551

ss 2 3 (c) 4 12—Meaning of the words holder and heir—Capacity to mortgage—The words holder and his heir are used throughout the Chota Nagpore Encumbered Estates Act in the sense of the holder of the property at the time of the determination of the debts and liabilities under § 8 of the Act and his heir. The word heir in the Act always applies to the person who is the holder's heir at the time of such determination of the debts and liabilities and to no other heir nor to the heir's heir. The estate of F came under management under the Chota Nagpore Encumbered Estates Act in 1880. He had several sons of whom B was the eldest and J the next in age. F died in 1884 and according to the custom of the family B succeeded him to the estate and on B dying in 1892 without leaving a male issue J succeeded him. On the 8th June 1891 J mortgaged a village which had been granted to him by his father for his maintenance and which never came under the management of the Encumbered Estates. Held that there was nothing in § 3 cl (c) of the said Act to incapacitate J from mortgaging the property. The object of Act VI of 1876 explained. KOKA MANTON v. MANKE JAGAR NATH SARI I. L. ss 3 7 and Act V of 1884—Deo Estate Act IX of 1886 § 1 cl 4—Debts and liabilities—Meaning of—Process including summons—The Chota Nagpore Encumbered Estates Act VI of 1876 as amended by Act V of 1884 (which by Act IX of 1886 is applied to the Deo estate in the district of Gaya subject to certain modifications) is intended to afford relief to holders of land in Chota Nagpore (and in the Deo estate) in respect of all debts and liabilities to which they were (immediately before the publication of the vesting order) subject or with which their property was (at the time of the publication of the vesting order) charged other than debts due or liabilities incurred to Government. The effect of the second portion of § 3 is to bar all suits instituted after the vesting order is made and whilst it is in force. § 7 of the Act applies mutatis mutandis to create a bar in respect of the debts dealt with in § 1 cl 4 of the Deo Estate Act 1886. The result of ss 3 and 7 of Act VI of 1876 when read with regard to the whole scope of the Act, is that suits or proceedings to enforce such debts or liabilities as are contemplated by the Act that is other than debts due or liabilities incurred to Government are if pending at the time of the vesting order barred if instituted after it in respect of such debts and liabilities, null and void in their inception. *KAMESHAR PRASAD v. The proceedings in a suit instituted before Act X of 1877 came into force including a special appeal if the old Code allowed one go on to the end of the suit notwithstanding the repeal of the old Code. 3 ——— Decree Meaning of—The effect of the proviso to s 3 of the Civil Procedure Code of 1877 taken in connection with the definition of the word decree in s 2 is that all suits pending when that Code came into force the practice and procedure to be followed down to the final result of such suits (i.e. when nothing remains to be done but to execute the decree or to appeal from it) are the same as previously existed but that in all subsequent proceedings in execution of the decree or in appeal from it the practice and procedure provided by the Civil Procedure Code of 1877 are to be observed. The word decree in s 3 of the Civil Procedure Code 1877 means an order final in its nature and does not include an interlocutory order such as an order of reference to take accounts although such order may in general be properly termed a decree and therefore a suit which has been referred by the Court to the Commissioner to take accounts is still in a stage prior to decree within the meaning of s 3 of the Civil Procedure Code of 1877. RUSTOMJI BUNJORJI v KESROWSJI DAIK

4 ——— Effect of change of law on proceedings already commenced—Attachment—Enforcement of decrees—Political pension—On the 28th of September 1877—i.e. three days before the new Code of Civil Procedure (Act X of 1877) came into operation—an application was made for the enforcement of a money decree by attachment (inter alia) of a political pension enjoyed by the defendants. Under s 216 of the former Code (Act VIII of 1859) a notice was issued on the same day to the defendants calling upon them to show cause why the decree should not be executed. The defendants accordingly appeared on the day fixed at which date the new Code had come into force and contended that under s 266 cl (g) of the new Code the pension was no longer attachable. Held that all proceedings commenced and pending when Act X of 1877 became law were under the General Clauses Act (I of 1860) s 11 to be governed by the Code theretofore in force the general rule of construction contained in that section not being affected or varied by ss. 1 and 3 of Act X of 1877; and that a bona fide application for enforcement of a decree in a particular way coupled with an order of the Court in furtherance of that object as much constitutes a proceeding in execution commenced and pending as the actual issue of a warrant of attachment. VIDYARAM v CHANDRASEKHARAM

CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, ACT XIV

5 — Effect of repeal of Civil Procedure Code 18—Proceedings commenced before repeal— Cl. 3 of s. 3 of the Civil Procedure Code (XIV of 1882) provides that nothing in that Code shall apply to any proceedings after decree that had been commenced and were still pending on the 1st June 1882. In case of any question connected with proceedings commenced prior to that date the applicability of the Code of 1882 depends on whether the new proceeding subsequent to that date out of which the question has immediately arisen is so intimately connected with the proceedings prior to that date as to be regarded as part of them. A decree was passed in 1882 by which the suit was referred to the Commissioner to take accounts. On the 21st June 1882 the Commissioner in the course of taking the said accounts issued a warrant ordering the defendants to show cause why they should not give inspection of certain books. Held that the question as to inspection was so intimately connected with the taking of the accounts that it should be regarded as part of the same proceedings and as these had commenced and were still pending on the 1st June 1882 the question whether the order refusing inspection was appealable or not was (under s. 3 of Act XIV of 1882) to be determined by the Civil Procedure Code (Act VIII) of 1859 and not by the Code of 1882. *RUSTOMJI BURJORJI v. 8. — Agent's right to execute decree obtained by him as agent—Waiver—Execution of decree—P filed a suit in the second class Subordinate Judge's Court at Mahad. As P resided at Thana outside the jurisdiction of the Mahad Court she authorized her agent under a general power of attorney to conduct the suit on her behalf. The agent carried on the litigation up to a final decree passed by the High Court on appeal in P's favour. The agent then sought to execute the decree. The Court at Mahad passed an order upon his draft granting only partial execution. Against this order the agent filed an appeal in the District Court at Thana. Then for the first time the judgment debtors challenged the agent's right to represent P who was residing within the District Court's jurisdiction. This objection prevailed and the appeal was dismissed. Held that the agent could not be prevented from executing the decree which he had obtained as agent. No objection had been taken to the agent's right to represent P at any stage of the litigation prior to the final decree. That objection must therefore be deemed to have been virtually waived and could not be raised after the defendants had had their chance of success in the litigation. PARVATIBAI v VINAYEK PANDURANG

The ground upon which the petition was based was that the appellant was not pecuniarily in a position to pay the costs of the appeal if it should be dismissed. An order was passed directing the appellant to show cause why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted. When the petition came on for hearing no one appeared to support it or to show cause against it and it was accordingly rejected. An application was subsequently made on behalf of the petitioner praying that the case might be restored to the register on the ground that counsel for the petitioner was absent on the occasion of the hearing for fifteen minutes only and that no one on behalf of the appellant had appeared to show cause the petitioner should have been granted and the absence of petitioner's counsel was immaterial. Held that the matter was decided by s. 98 of the Civil Procedure Code and that s. 647 of the Code prescribing that the proceedings in down for suits should be followed as far as it could be made applicable in proceedings other than suits made s. 99 the rule by which the Court was to be guided. Held also that although no general rule could be laid down that the absence of counsel when a case has been called on should be treated as by itself a sufficient reason for restoring to the register either a regular suit or an appeal or a miscellaneous application but each case of the kind must be dealt with according to its own particular circumstances in the present case taking the circumstances into consideration an absence of counsel for fifteen minutes was not enough to preclude the Court from restoring the petition to the register. It is not necessary before proceeding to hear and determine a suit ex parte under s. 100 that all the process prescribed by law for compelling the attendance of the defendant as witness should be exhausted. Prior suit before the date of the gift brought by two of the plaintiffs for a declaratory decree and an injunction restraining the widow from alienating the same estate had been dismissed under the provisions of ss 102 and 103 (Act X of 1877) Civil Procedure Code Held that the causes of action in the two suits were not identical and the fresh suit was not precluded by s. 103 the gift having afforded the new ground of claim which also had subsequently arisen CHAND HOUER v. The adjournment was refused and B said he withdrew from the case Both suits were then and there disposed of the claim of the plaintiffs in the first suit being decreed the second suit being dismissed for non appearance On the 7th May following an application was made for a rehearing of both suits The Court regarding the decrees as ex-parte decrees granted a rule for a new trial which was made absolute On appeal to the Full Court the matter was referred to the High Court Held that under the circumstances the suits were to be considered as having been disposed of under ss 100 and 102 of the Civil Procedure Code respectively and that whether or not they or either of them fell within the category of contested suits as defined by s. 38 of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act the remedy under s. 103 of the Civil Procedure Code was open to the plaintiffs in the cross suit Where on the day fixed for hearing a party is present in person merely for the purpose of applying for an adjournment which is refused he must be taken to have appeared within the meaning of Clasp VII of the Civil Procedure Code The party has appeared in person The purpose for which

be appeared or the action which he took on appearance are immaterial. But where the party is absent and an application for adjournment is made on his behalf by a pleader who has no other instructions and whose functions are at an end when the adjournment is refused in the case the party has not appeared within the meaning of the chapter. Where the pleader who applies for an adjournment is accompanied by a recognized agent of the party but the latter neither makes any application nor does any act the question is whether he intends to appear and in fact does appear for the party in the exercise of his powers under s 56 of the Civil Procedure Code. That action is merely permissive and enabling. If the recognized agent although able to do so does not think proper to conduct the case on behalf of his principal his mere presence in Court is not an appearance in the suit. An appearance may be made by a pleader or a recognized agent but the concurrence of the pleader or agent is essential. As soon as he ceases to intend to represent the principal the latter is unrepresented. s 38 of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act does not preclude a plaintiff whose suit has been dismissed for default from applying under s 103 of the Civil Procedure Code to have the order of dismissal set aside. There is no inconsistency between the two sections. A plaintiff whose suit has been dismissed for default has two separate remedies under different enactments. If he chooses to apply for a new trial under s 38 he must do so within eight days. If he professes to apply for an order setting aside the dismissal under s 103 of the Civil Procedure Code he can do so within thirty days (Limitation Act XV of 1877 sec II art 163). DOONDERLAL v GOORPRASAD

the Court gives of its action and apart from the actual fact of the plaintiff's appearance or non-appearance the real meaning and substance of the Court's action is that it dismisses the suit on the view whether right or wrong that the plaintiff appears and the defendant does not appear. Where his suit having been dismissed for default of appearance under s 102 of the Code the plaintiff applies for its restoration the defendant cannot contest the application as if it were as one which cannot be entertained at all under s 103 by showing that at the time of the dismissal there was an appearance by the plaintiff in fact or in law but as an answer to the application on the merits the defendant can raise the contention that the plaintiff was not prevented from appearing because in fact he did appear. 14 ———— Appearance by pleader—When a duly authorized vakil of the defendant under a vakalatnamah filed in Court appears for his client on the day fixed and the case comes on for hearing the decree passed on such hearing is not an ex parte decree even though the pleader be not sufficiently instructed to proceed with the case. DEAN BHAGUT v RAMESH DUTT SINGH [20 W R 53]

15 ———— Decree ex parte—Pleader retained in suit but not instructed—A party defendant retained a pleader to defend the suit against him and the pleader filed a vakalatnamah and did certain acts for the defendant. However when the suit came on for hearing the pleader came into Court and stated that he had no instructions and could not go on with the case. The Court proceeded with the suit and made a decree in favour of the plaintiff. Held that this decree was a decree ex parte within the meaning of s 109 of the Code of Civil Procedure. Bhagwan Das v Hira 1 L R 19 All 355 and Jonirdan Doley v Ramdhone Singh 1 L R 23 Cal 739 referred to. Zain ul Abidin Khan v Ahmad Pa a Khan 1 L R 2 All 67 L R 51 A 233 distinguished. SHANKAR DAT DUBE v RADHA KRISHNA 1 L R 20 All 195

19 ———— Written statement Tender of—Ex parte decree—Appeal—Appearance of defendant—The Court of first instance refused to receive the defendant's written statement because it had been tendered after the day on which the Court had ordered it to be filed and the delay had not been satisfactorily explained. The Court however framed the issues in the presence of the defendant's pleader who was also allowed to cross examine the plaintiff's witnesses. The Court made a decree in favour of the plaintiff. In appeal the District Judge held that the decree of the first Court was ex parte under s 119 of the Civil Procedure Code and that therefore no appeal lay. Held by the High Court in special appeal that the decree of the first Court was not ex parte under the circumstances. RAGHAVA BIN HANMATA v PARAPA BIV SHIVAPA 1 L R 1 Bom. 217

earlier than fifteen days after service of process and sworn that no summons had been served on him in the case which led to the ex parte decree and that the contract under which the case had been decreed against him had been broken by the plaintiff himself it was held that good and sufficient cause was shown for defendant's previous non appearance and a prima facie case had been made out to lead to the conclusion that there had been failure of justice. Held that as this evidence was given in the presence of the mooktears on both sides the Court's order that the case should be entered on the register of cases was a proper order admitting the review. AYUNP MOYEE DASSEE v. ANUP SOODPUR MOZOOKDAR

[13 W R 237]

44 — Defendant showing no sufficient cause for non appearance—Appearance by vakil—Ex parte case—One of several defendants in a suit did not enter appearance until nearly a month after the date fixed for the first hearing when he applied by a vakil for leave to be heard in answer under the last part of s 111 Code of Civil Procedure. In the absence of good and sufficient cause for previous non appearance his application was rejected and an ex parte judgment given against him. After this he applied at the instance of the Appellate Court for a new hearing on the ground that the summons had not been duly served upon him. This application was rejected and the order of rejection was upheld on appeal. In special appeal he contended that the case did not fall within s 119 and that he was entitled to have the regular appeal previously preferred determined upon the record as it stood notwithstanding his prayer had been rejected under s 118. Held that the mere fact of the special appellant having appeared by a vakil in the way mentioned above could not be taken as an appearance within the meaning of s 119 and was not sufficient to prevent the Court from passing a judgment ex parte against him. MAHOMED HOSSEIN v. MUNTOZUL HUE

[18 W R 400]

45 — Cause for non appearance at adjourned hearing—Appearance at first hearing—Where a defendant was prevented by the fraud of the plaintiff from appearing on the last day of hearing the suit was held to have been decided ex parte notwithstanding that the defendant had been represented on the first day of hearing and the first Court was held to have done right in restoring the case to the file under Act VIII of 1880 s 119. DESOO LAROTE v. CHINTA MOYEE CHOWDHRY

[18 W R 457]

46 — Prevention from appearing by sufficient cause—Ex parte decree—Appeal—An ex parte decree having been granted in a suit against A personally and as guardian of his infant sons the infants subsequently applied under s 119 of Act VIII of 1880 to set aside the decree on the ground that the summons had not been duly served upon A and the application was dismissed. On appeal to the High Court—Held

CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE ACT XIV OF 1882 (ACT X OF 1877)—continued

that although so far as the decrees made A personally liable the Court had no power to interfere yet as the infants were not responsible for their non appearance it might be said that they had been prevented by sufficient cause from appearing and that the decrees might be set aside under s 119 of Act VIII of 1880 (Act X of 1877 s 108) as against them. KESHO PERSHAD v. HIRDOY NARAIN

47 — Dismissal for default of prosecution—Absence of witnesses—The plaintiff's witness not being present on the day fixed for the hearing of the plaintiff's suit it was dismissed for default of prosecution under s 114 of the Code of Civil Procedure and was afterwards re-admitted under s 119. Held that the default not being of the nature described in s 114 the suit was wrongly dismissed under that section and for the same reason that the suit was improperly dismissed under that section it was also improperly re-admitted under s 119. MAHOMED AZEEMULLA v. 50 — Procedure on grant of new trial of ex parte case—Where the lower Appellate Court admitted an application under s 119 for re-trial of a case which had been decided ex parte by the Munsif it was held to have done right in sending for the record in order that the case as a suit should be heard and tried by the Appellate Court; the object of the law being that a suit should assume a complete form and go to a full trial and not be divided between different Courts. KHOON LALL SANOOL v. 51 — Ex parte decrees passed on appeal—Procedure—A sued A and others on a bond debt and obtained a decree against A alone. He appealed to the District Judge who passed a decree declaring all parties to be liable jointly. On the decree holder taking out execution two of the defendants applied to the Subordinate Judge under Act

§ 111 of 1852 = s. 119 and their application being rejected, it was applied to the District Judge who referred them to the High Court. Held that the Subordinate Judge had no jurisdiction = but the proper course for the parties was to apply to the District Judge under s. 119. *ZIMTUNJI SA BIKER v. § 52. — Appearance of defendant under Civil Procedure Code ss 100-101—Ex parte decree—The first hearing of a suit was fixed for the 14th December 1853 on which day the defendant did not appear and the case was adjourned to the 15th December and as the defendant did not then appear a decree was passed in favour of the plaintiff. A vakalatnama had been previously filed on the defendant's part and he had also objected to an application filed by the plaintiff for attachment of the defendant's property before judgment. Held that these acts on the part of the defendant did not constitute an appearance by him within the meaning of s. 100 of the Civil Procedure Code which referred to an appearance in answer to a summons to appear and answer the claim on a day specified issued under s. 64 that the decree was therefore ex parte within the meaning of ss 100 and 103 and an appeal consequently lay to the High Court under s. 255 cl. § 53. — Reversal of Judge's order by High Court—Appeal—A suit having been decreed ex parte defendant applied for a reversal thereof under s. 119 Code of Civil Procedure. The application having been rejected defendant appealed, and the first Court was directed to enquire whether there was sufficient cause for the non appearance of the defendant. This was done and the defendant was allowed to defend the suit. The plaintiff then appealed to the Judge who reversed the last order. Both parties then went back to the Munsif who on 26th April 1867 recorded a proceeding that the original ex parte order was to stand. In the meantime the defendant appealed to the High Court which reversed the Judge's order. Held that the effect of the High Court's order was to render valid the Munsif's order admitting the defendant to defend the suit and that no application for review was necessary on the part of the defendant. Held that the High Court's order being a final decision by way of appeal on a question which arose in the suit could not be

MEHARAJ SINGH* [12 W R. 207]

1. — s. 120—Dismissal of suit on inability to answer material questions—The plaintiff's mooltear being unable to answer certain questions necessary for the statement of the proper issues the plaintiff was called upon either to appear personally and reply to the Court's queries or to send some one who could reply. Having done neither—Held that the lower Court was competent to dismiss the suit under s. 127 Act VIII of 1859. NILMOYEE SINGH DEO v. RAM HURZ MISHRA 2 W R. 161

2. — Inability of pleader to answer material questions—Materiality of absent witnesses—Instead of dismissing plaintiff's suit on account of his pleader's inability on the day of trial to prove which of his absent witnesses against whom he had applied for further processes to be issued were material the proper course for the Judge was to allow the plaintiff a certain time to produce evidence upon this point upon payment by him of all the costs of adjournment. PEARZ MONTY ROSE v. HURSH CHUNDER GHOSH 17 W R. 141

3. — Refusal of a plaintiff to attend as a witness—A plaintiff who was represented by a pleader was summoned at the instance of a defendant to attend the Court and to give evidence on his behalf on the day fixed for final hearing. The plaintiff refused to attend on the ground that he was a person of rank and was exempted from personal appearance in the Courts of a Native State. The first Court considering the personal appearance of the plaintiff necessary issued an order under s 120 of the Civil Procedure Code that he should attend and on his failure to do so passed a decree against him. On appeal the Judge reversed the decree and remanded the case for trial. Held confirming the order of remand that the order and decree of the first Court were alike illegal as the plaintiff having appeared by a pleader the Court had no power to issue an order under s 120 unless the pleader had refused or was unable to answer a material question. SATU v HANMANTRAO GOPALRAY NIMBAKAR

8. ——— The main object of s. 123 was to prevent parties from manufacturing evidence pending the trial to meet unexpected exigencies and not to shut out true good and valuable evidence merely because the party had with it

9. ——— Production of

1. ——— Opportunity for Court to inspect evidence.—A Court cannot be said to have received documents as admissible in evidence
when for want of time to inspect and consider them
it orders them to be filed nor would it be wrong in law in rejecting or returning them after proper inspection the object of s. 129 Act VIII of 1859 being that papers should be produced in a regular manner
and inspected by a Court at its convenience. SOONDY
KUTHA CHOWDERY v. RAJ MOHUN BOSE
[11 W. R. 350]

2. ——— Reception on record of irrelevant and inadmissible documents.—
Attention drawn to the neglected provision of the Code of Civil Procedure 1859 (s. 1 9) which prohibits Courts from receiving on the record of a case without restriction and without discrimination documents which are either irrelevant or inadmissible.
ISSUR CHUNDER GHOSH v. RUSSEER IAL MUNDUL
[11 W. R. 576]

3. ——— Admission and rejection of documents.—At the stage of a suit referred to in Act VIII of 18 9 s. 128 129 and 132 the Court ought to sort the documents tendered into two classes those relevant and admissible and those irrelevant and inadmissible and to reject in limine all documents which are evidently such as cannot be used as evidence in the suit. The admission of a document at this stage does not imply that it is evidence but merely declares that it may if properly treated be used as evidence in the suit and bring it as a part of the record does not confer any authority on such document or operate to dispense with any proof of genuineness. Courts of first instance ought to specify what portions of the documentary evidence on the record they have accepted and what portions they have refused to listen to. All the proceedings of the parties in respect of the use of documentary evidence are matters to be recorded on the proceedings of the Court by the Judge's own note. TRIMZODDY v.

CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE ACT XIV OF 1882 (ACT X OF 1877)—continued

3. — Dismissal of suit for a sufficient Court fee on plaint—The Court of first instance being of opinion that the plaint bore an insufficient Court fee and the plaintiff not making good the deficiency dismissed the suit after recording evidence but without entering into the merits. On appeal the lower Appellate Court held that the Court fee was sufficient and remanded the case for trial on the merits. Held that s. 158 of the Civil Procedure Code was not applicable to the case MUHAMMAD BAKIR v. MUHAMMAD JAY

4. — Adjournment for final disposal—Dismissal of suit after adjournment—Non-appearance of plaintiff—In a suit issues having been settled, the final hearing of the suit was adjourned to a fixed date for final disposal. On that date plaintiff did not appear and the suit was dismissed under s. 148 of Act VIII of 1859. Held that, as this was not a case which had been adjourned in favour of either party to enable him to produce his proofs or cause the attendance of his witnesses, the order was not one which could properly be made IYALL v. SHERMAN

I. L. R. 1 Mad. 287

5. — Dismissal of suit after adjournment—The first hearing of a suit took place on the 16th November when issues were settled and the final hearing of the suit was fixed for the 22nd January following. On the 22nd of January the plaintiff changed her vakil and applied by the new vakil for a summons for a witness and on the 23rd, the new vakil stating that owing to the absence of his witnesses he was not prepared to go on with the case the Judge dismissed the suit. Held that under s. 148 of the Civil Procedure Code the Judge was justified in dismissing the suit COMALAKMAL v. RANGASAWMY IYENGAR

[4 Mad. 56]

6. — *The first hearing of a suit was fixed for the 10th July 1867. Neither of the parties nor their vakils appeared. Thereupon the Court dismissed the suit under s. 148 of the Civil Procedure Code but afterwards upon the application of the plaintiff's vakil restored it to the file for hearing under s. 119. Plaintiff obtained further adjournments to produce witnesses the last being an adjournment to the 28th September. On that day the vakils of both parties appeared but no witnesses and the Court again dismissed the suit under s. 148 for failure to produce witnesses. On the 22nd of October the suit was again under s. 119 restored to the file on the application of the plaintiff's vakil and a decision was afterwards come to for the plaintiff upon the merits. On appeal the last mentioned decree was reversed and the decree passed under s. 148 (whether the first or second decree was not specified) upheld upon the ground that as s. 119 was inapplicable to a decree passed under s. 148 the Court of first instance had acted without jurisdiction in restoring the suit to the file. Held on special appeal reversing the decision of the lower Appellate Court that the first decree of dismissal being a decree which might have been made under*

CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE ACT XIV OF 1882 (ACT X OF 1877)—continued

s. 147 was one to which s. 119 might be applied. That the second decree of dismissal was one to which s. 148 alone applied consequently one subject only to review or to an appeal and the proceeding had in October 1867 being substantially an application for review was one which the Court had power to grant AMBALAVANA PADAYATCHI v. SABBAMANIA PADAYATCHI

6 Mad. 282

7. — Application for succession certificate—Order for costs of adjournment against opposing party—Effect of non-compliance with such order—A widow applied for a succession certificate to her late husband. The application was opposed by his brother who claimed to have been undivided from him. The matter came on for hearing but was adjourned on his application he being ordered to pay the costs. He failed to pay the costs and the certificate was issued to the widow. Held that s. 158 of the Civil Procedure Code was inapplicable to the case in the absence of a specific order making the payment of costs a condition precedent to the hearing of the evidence of the party in default VIJAYADHARAPPA CHETTI v. CHIDAMBAMMA

I. L. R. 21 Mad. 403

8. — Refusal to allow examination of defendant as a witness—Dismissal in default of other evidence—The Court of first instance refused to grant plaintiff's application to be allowed to examine second defendant as a witness on her behalf thinking the grounds of such application insufficient for the exercise of its discretion under s. 162 of the Civil Procedure Code. On the adjourned date of hearing plaintiff failed to produce any other witness and the suit was dismissed under s. 148. On regular appeal the Civil Judge considered that the Court of first instance ought not to have refused plaintiff's application but held that the refusal was a final order not open to question in appeal. On special appeal—Held that the Civil Judge was wrong on the latter point; that if the plaintiff had been prevented from examining the second defendant on sufficient grounds she had not committed default under s. 148; that the decree on the finding of the Civil Court was not maintainable without enabling plaintiff to examine second defendant and that that finding was conclusive in the special appeal. The decrees of both the lower Courts were consequently set aside and the case remanded LATCHMANA RAU SAIB v. ROOYNATHA RAU

[8 Mad. 299]

9. — Dismissal of suit for non attendance of witnesses—The plaintiff upon whose application the Court of first instance adjourned the hearing of the suit failed to cause the attendance of his witnesses on the day fixed for the further hearing and the Court of first instance threw out the suit stating that it did so under s. 110 Act VIII of 1859. Both parties to the suit were represented on that day by their pleaders. The Court of first instance subsequently entertained and rejected an application under s. 119 for a rehearing. The lower Appellate Court admitted and allowed an appeal against the order of the Court of first instance

1 ————— s 177 (1859 ss 126 170)—Order of Court requiring party to attend Disobedience to—subsequent decree in his favour—The plaintiff was ordered to attend and give evidence under s 170 Act VIII of 1859 but failed to do so The Court however being satisfied with the evidence in support of his case gave a decree in his favour Held that the decree was valid. MISSOURATH MOJUMDHUR v KASTUR CHUNDER SEN Marsh. 467

2 ————— Defendant bonâ fide requiring evidence of plaintiff—Non attend-ance of plaintiff—A defendant who bonâ fide and for a substantial reason requires the evidence of the plaintiff to be taken ought not in ordinary circumstances to have a decree made against him until that evidence has been given ROY DHUMPAT SINGH v PREM SINGH 24 W R, 72

summoned and did not appear DOORGA DUTT SINGH v KALIKA SOOKUL GIREEDHARE SINGH v KALIKA SOOKUL 7 W R 46

5 ————— Non attendance of witness—The discretion which a Court had under s 170 of Act VIII of 1859 of passing judgment against a party for non compliance with the Court's order to attend and give evidence or produce documents in a suit was not confined to cases where the party summoning him could not prove his case otherwise than by the evidence of such other party or where the fact to be proved was solely and exclusively within the knowledge of such other party KASHINATH BHANA v DWARKANATH SINGH KAR 9 B L R 215 17 W R 550

6 ————— In a suit for contribution in respect of Government revenue the defendants co-sharers were on the application of the plaintiff ordered to attend to give evidence but they failed to appear The Principal Sudder Ameen thereupon dismissed the suit on the ground that as the plaintiff's case had not been established he was not entitled to a decree simply by reason of the defendants failure to enter appearance Held the suit should not have been dismissed. In a case where a party summoned to attend as a witness refuses to attend and give evidence and the party who requires the evidence is unable to make out his case without it his suit should not be dismissed for want of proof when the points on which he fails depend upon matters of fact which may reasonably be presumed to be peculiarly in the knowledge of the defaulting parties as for instance in the present case the extent of their own shares and the amount they had paid on account of revenue HEMANGIRI DAS v PANNIDHI KUNDU

7 ————— Default of defendant to attend—Examination of parties to the suit—When a plaintiff alleges that the defendant has a personal knowledge of the matters in dispute and the defendant denies that he has such knowledge the Court before exercising the discretion of decreeing the suit as upon default should be satisfied on evidence as to the existence of such knowledge on the part of the defendant. LAITH NARAIN DRO v BOLAKEE CHOWDHRY W R., 1864, 24

8 ————— Dismissal of suit on plaintiff's non appearance when summoned as witness by defendant—A Court is not bound to dismiss a case on account of the non appearance of a plaintiff summoned by the defendant to attend as a witness when the defendant did not petition for attachment or other legal process to be made by the Court to compel the plaintiff's appearance BUSTEE NARAIN ROY v SHAM GOONER NAYDEE 1 W R., Act X 43

12 ———— Defendant as witness for plaintiff refusing to produce documents.—In a suit to recover the balance due on a partnership transaction the first defendant who was examined as a witness for the plaintiff refused to produce certain accounts relating to the partnership which he was directed to produce by the Civil Judge. Thereupon judgment was given against the defendant under s 170 of the Code of Civil Procedure. On appeal the High Court holding that the accounts were relevant and material evidence in the suit and that the Civil Judge was justified in requiring the first defendant to produce them and being satisfied that the accounts were in possession or control of the first defendant affirmed the judgment of the Civil Judge. 13 ———— Waiver of default by Court.—The provisions of s 170 of the Code of Civil Procedure ought to be exercised with the most temperate discretion. 14 ———— Order to one plaintiff in suit to attend and give evidence.—The Civil Judge on appeal reversing the decree of the District Munsif dismissed a suit brought by two plaintiffs under s 170 of the Code of Civil Procedure on the ground that the first plaintiff had with out lawful excuse failed to comply with the order of the Court requiring his attendance to give evidence. There was no order or summons to the first plaintiff to attend to give evidence in this suit but a summons was issued to the plaintiff to attend to give evidence in another suit to which the second plaintiff was no party and which was heard together with this appeal. Held (reversing the decision of the Sessions Judge) that in compliance with the summons to give evidence in the other appeal was not enough to warrant the exercise of the power in this case. S 10 requires that there should be a failure to comply with an order to attend to give evidence in the particular suit. ARUNACHELLA MUDALI v. VENKATACHELLA MUDALI

15 ———— Discretion in enforcing penalty under the section.—In a case which Act VIII of 1859 s 170 is provided to meet the Court ought not to take everything for granted against the party in fault but to require the other party to prove his case so far as he can without the assured evidence to consider well the effect of the default or refusal with reference to the rules of evidence and to hear what evidence the defaulting party adduces before imposing upon him the penalty of default. MAHOMED AMMOOLLA v. DURESH SHAIKH

24 W R. 314

16 ———— Non attendance of defendant when cited as a witness.—The non attendance of a defendant when cited as a witness to give evidence is not alone sufficient to justify the decision of the suit against him under s 170 of the Civil Procedure Code. His absence may be an unfavourable circumstance but the Court will not always be disposed to attach to it such weight as to regard it as justifying a decree in the plaintiff's favour. 20 ——— Default of plaintiff to appear—Reasons for summoning witness—In a suit for the right of pre-emption on the ground that plaintiff was a shafce khalit defendant who alleged that plaintiff was only a benami shareholder offered to establish his case on the deposition of the plaintiff alone. The latter not appearing on summons the suit was decreed against him under s 170 Code of Civil Procedure. On this he appealed and the Judge ordered the Munsif to give him further time to appear.
This was granted and then extended again and again
by the Munsif who on the plaintiff failing to appear again gave a decree against him under the same law
as before. The case was then appealed to the Judge who ordered the case to be tried on its merits remarking that the presence of the plaintiff was not necessary. Held that as the plaintiff's liability to appear and give evidence had been already determined by a competent Court and never denied by himself he could not take advantage of a technical objection to ask that he was not bound to come because the formalities of the law had not been observed or his evidence shown to be necessary JHOOVUCK SINGH v.

21 ——— Failure to produce evidence—In a suit by the jattidar for rent due under a dar patni defendant was summoned to produce the dar patni jettih and a dynamah which he had produced on a former occasion in a different suit.
On his representing that they were lost plaintiff put in a certified copy of the dynamah obtained from the office of the Registrar of Deeds. Held that as the defendant failed to produce the dynamah or to prove that it was lost it was his power to do so the Judge might have passed judgment against him at once
under s 170 Act VIII of 1859 TARA CHAND
DANDEJ v. BOISTIA CHURY BUDRO 16 W R. 186

22 ——— Defendant not appearing when summoned by plaintiff—Where the plaintiff gave no evidence at all in support of his case it was held not just to put in force against the defendant who when summoned to appear and give evidence deliberately declined to do so the stringent provisions of s 10 Act VIII of 1859. The exercise of the discretion conferred by that section
must be reasonable and judicial. ALEX ANAND SAJJADANSHER v. NERSEJ 17 W R. 583

23 ——— Refusal to answer material questions—Dismissal of suit—A plaintiff not appearing to a plaintiff under s 12C of

question relating to the suit KRISHNAJI ANIKAR
v. VISHNU ANIKAR 2 Bom., 360 2nd Ed. 340

24 ——— Discretion of Court to summon party as witness—Where the law allows a discretion to any Court it presumes that such discretion will be soundly and properly exercised and where it is shown that the discretion was not so exercised the omission will be a ground for interference by the superior Court. Accordingly the Subordinate Judge's order under s 170 was set aside
on the ground that he had not exercised his discretion at all inasmuch as he had ignored the fact that plaintiff had given very substantial reasons for his inability to attend and give evidence when summoned to do so and as the subordinate Judge had held substantially that there was sufficient evidence to prove plaintiff's claim plaintiff was entitled to a decree
his failure to give evidence notwithstanding ISHAN

ISHAN CHUNDER SEN 18 W R. 18

25 ——— Default of party to appear when summoned as witness—Insistence to attend—Lawful excuse—A defendant saying that he was willing to attend when he did not attend and showed no reason why he could not is no
lawful excuse for his non attendance when summoned to attend. What is or is not a lawful excuse must depend on the circumstances of each case DOORZA
DOTT SINGH v. JHEEVGOOR JIA 18 W R. 63

26 ——— Refusal of applicant for certificate to attend—The appellant having applied to the Judge for a certificate to collect the debts of one R whose adopted son he claimed to be referred in evidence to an ikramamah of ad ptn of which he filed a copy procured from the kazi's book alleging that the original had been made away with
by an agent who had been bought over by his opponent. In the course of retrial of the case on remand the Judge required the petitioner to attend for the purpose of examination and as after being warned he did not do so and assign no good cause for his absence upheld his former decision and rejected the application. Held that the Judge exercised the powers conferred by s 10 Civil Procedure Code and that it was a proper exercise of discretion to take the course which he did take at that stage of the proceedings. SEETARAM SAHOO v. SUREO GOLOM SAHOO 18 W R. 183

27 ——— Receipt of order to attend—Non attendance—Materiality of evidence
—A Court is not justified under either s 1 or s 170
of Act VIII of 1859 in imposing penal consequences upon a party who fails to appear by passing a verdict against him unless it is clearly and manifest first that he had been ordered or directed to attend and wilfully refused to obey the order or direction; and secondly that the evidence which he was taken all the evidence in a suit before him and having completed the hearing of the suit except for the arguments of counsel on both sides was removed

and the case came on for hearing before his successor.
The new subordinate Judge took up the case from the point at which it had been left by his predecessor and proceeded to judgment and decree. Held that the only power given by the Civil Procedure Code in such cases is to allow the evidence taken at the first trial to be used as evidence at the second trial and not to allow the two hearings to be linked together and virtually made one; that the Subordinate Judge should have fixed a day for the entire hearing of the suit
before himself and should first have heard the opening statement on behalf of the plaintiff, the evidence produced by both sides and the arguments on behalf of both and then finally decided the case which he had himself heard and tried that he might in accordance with the provisions of s. 191 of the Civil Execution of decree*—Where a decree is made under

s. 197 of Act VIII of 1859 proceedings taken after proceedings in continuation of the original suit and until those proceedings are brought to a close and an assessment of the mesne profits come to it cannot be said that a decree for any specific amount of money exists. The wording of s. 197 is quite consistent with the view that where a decree for possession is given and an enquiry as to the amount of mesne profits is reserved the decree for possession of the land is only a partial decree in the suit and that there is to be a further enquiry and a further decree in respect of

under s 230 of Act X of 1877 and the application was granted. Within three years after the passing of Act XIV of 1882 by which Act X of 1877 was repealed he applied for the first time under s 230 of the former Act for execution of the decree. At the time this application was made more than twelve years had elapsed from the date of the decree. Held by STRAIGHT BROUGHTON v TINKELL JJ, that the application might be granted it being the first made under s 230 of Act XIV of 1882 and the first made after the expiration of twelve years from the

8. Former application for execution under Act VIII of 1859—An application under Act VIII of 1859 for execution of a decree was rejected by the District Judge on the ground that the judgment creditor had withdrawn from the former application. This order was reversed on appeal and the case was sent back for disposal on its merits. The Judge then held that Act X of 1877 which had just come into force applied and on the ground that the decree holder had failed to get execution upon his former application dismissed the petition. The Judge referred the case to the High Court upon the question whether he was under the circumstances at liberty to grant the application. Held that he was. The application should have been dealt with under the law which was in force at the time execution was sought. The effect of the provisions of s. 230 of Act X of 1877 considered. BR. 9. Effect of striking off execution proceedings—Procedure—A decree was obtained on the 10th July 1868 and applications to execute it were made in June 1869 and January 1866. The last application prior to the coming into operation of the Civil Procedure Code of 1877 was on the 10th January 1877. This proceeding was struck off. The decree holder on the 13th June 1879 again applied for execution the decree was transferred to s. 230 for execution where on objection that it was more than twelve years old and therefore barred by s. 230 of Act X of 1877 the execution proceedings were again struck off on the 17th January 1880. This order was applied against and eventually on the 26th April 1881 the application was re-admitted. In June 1881 an application was made to the District Court for transfer of the case for execution to D which was granted and the case transferred but no steps having been taken by the decree holder in the District Court it was struck off by that Court on the 19th August 1881. On the 4th March 1882 (the judgment holder having died meanwhile) an application was made to the District Court to restore the proceedings for execution against his representative. Notices were issued and the 2nd June was eventually fixed for the hearing. On that day no one was present on behalf of the decree-holder (whose pleadings had died in the meantime) and the case was again struck off. On the 11th July 1882 application was made to restore the proceedings, notices were issued and a day fixed for hearing and after numerous adjournments the objections of the judgment-debtor were overruled on the 17th March 1883 and execution of the decree granted. On appeal the Judge found that the execution proceedings had been continuous throughout and that there had been no unreasonable delay in the prosecution of the execution proceedings. Held that execution of the decree was not barred by s. 230 of the Code of Civil Procedure. BISWA SONAR CHATTERJEE v. 18 ----- Application for execution not made under the Civil Procedure Code 1882—Decree—Application for execution—Limitation—On the 1st June 1880 several decree holders applied to the Subordinate Civil Court of Iarnar for execution of their decrees. They had taken out execution several times previously the date of their last preceding applications being 1st June 1877. The subordinate Judge was of opinion that the applications were barred under the last clause of s. 230 of the Civil Procedure Code Act X of 1877. On his referring the cases to the High Court—Held that the applications were not barred inasmuch as the previous applications for execution had not been made under s. 230 of Act X of 1877 that Act not being then in force. 32. — Decree—Execution—Limitation.—An application for execution of a decree obtained against the judgment-debtor in 1860 was presented by the applicant on the 26th January 1885. Several previous applications for execution had been made and the last two viz. on the 20th July 1881 and 20th June 1882 had been granted. The judgment-debtor was arrested and brought before the Court. He contended that execution of the decree was barred. Both the lower Courts were of opinion that the decree was not barred and allowed execution to issue. On appeal by the judgment-debtor to the High Court—Held that the application for execution was too late. As there had been an application made and granted on the 20th July 1881 under the Code of 1877 and twelve years from the date of the decree would have elapsed before June 1885, the application in question was barred and was not saved by the concluding clause of s. 230 of the Code (Act X of 1877). Varadachari v. Krishna Narayana Ganesu. I. L. R. 11 Bom. 524

33. — Execution proceeding—Limitation.—An application was made in 1886 for execution of a decree dated 1873. In the interval viz. in October 1879 the judgment-debtor was arrested on an application in execution by the decree-holder but execution was not proceeded with further. Held that an application made in 1886 was time barred under s. 230 of the Code of Civil Procedure. Patunna v. Mose Bhai. [I. L. R. 11 Mad. 132]

34. — Finality of order made in execution proceedings—Decree payable by instalments.—In 1868 a decree was obtained for Rs. 100 which provided that the amount should be paid in instalments the first instalment being Rs. 20 to be paid at the end of the first year and that the other instalments should be Rs. 100 at the end of each subsequent year and that in the event of failure to carry this out and 24 months after the falling due of the instalment the whole amount should be payable in a lump sum with interest at 8 annas per cent per mensem. In 1877 the decree holder applied for execution of the decree asserting that Rs. 100 had been paid up to first time by five instalments one of Rs. 20 and four of Rs. 100 each and that default had been made in payment of the fifth instalment of Rs. 100 and he asked to recover the whole amount due on the decree. No order was passed on this application and eventually the case was struck off. In 1880 the decree-holder again applied for execution of the decree upon the same grounds as those upon which the previous application was made. Notice was issued and served and a warrant issued for the arrest of the judgment-debtor but eventually the case was struck off. In 1883 the decree-holder on the same grounds made another application for execution. It was contended by the judgment-debtor that execution was barred by s. 230 of the Civil Procedure Code inasmuch as no instalments had been paid and even if they had been paid they could not be recognized not having been certified. Held that the proper time from which to reckon the limitation of twelve years was the fifth year from the date of the bond the whole claim from the beginning and the order passed in 1880 having gone upon that basis that the Court could not go behind that order and that consequently the decree holder was within time and might take out execution. *Kanji Lal v. 35. — Interlocutory decree.—A decree for possession and wasilat having been made in 1864 it was by an order in January 1881 directed upon the report of an ameen that the decree-holder should recover a particular sum for wasilat. On the 14th March 1881 the decree-holder filed a petition praying that certain properties of the debtor might be attached and sold and the proceeds applied in payment of the wasilat. Held that under s. 230 of Act X of 1877 the application of 14th March 1881 was not barred. The decree of 1864 so far as the wasilat was concerned might be taken to be merely interlocutory and did not become final until January 1881. Haroda Sundari Daria v. Fergusson. [I. C. L. R. 17]

36. — Order directing payment of money at a certain date—Decree payable by instalments—Execution of decree.—The parties to a decree presented a petition to the Court executing the decree stating that it had been agreed between them that the amount of the decree should be paid by ten monthly instalments of Rs. 500 each. The Court made an order directing that such petition should be filed. Held that this order did not amount to one directing payment of money to be made at a certain date which would give a fresh period of limitation under s. 230 (b) of the Civil Procedure Code. Bal Chand v. Raghunath Das. [I. L. R. 4 All. 155]

37. — Limitation—Execution of decree.—A judgment-debtor on being arrested in execution of a decree presented a petition asking for fifteen days time to pay the amount of the decree and the decree-holders consenting the Court made an order in the terms. Let the petition be filed. Held that this order did not amount to one directing payment of money to be made at a certain date within the meaning of s. 230 cl. against the husband of the petitioner since deceased. The decree was kept alive till 13th December 1876 when the decree holder brought a suit to set aside certain alienations made by the judgment debtor and alleged to be fictitious and fraudulent. Having succeeded in the suit and in rendering the property alienated available for attachment under his decree, the respondent again applied for execution in 1879 but not against the property fictitiously alienated. Lastly the respondent applied on September 28th 1880—more than twelve years after decree—for execution against certain immovable property of the judgment debtor other than the property fictitiously alienated in the petitioner's possession. Held that having regard to the fraud of the judgment debtor the application was not barred by s 230 of the Code of Civil Procedure. VISALATCHI AMMAL v SIVA SANKARA PALEK I L R. 4 Mad. 292

39.—Evading service of warrants—Staying execution—Fraud—A judgment debtor who though able to pay his judgment debt dishonestly evades payment for more than twelve years by eluding service of warrants and making applications to the Court (which has the effect for the time of staying execution) as guilty of fraud within the meaning of s 230 of the Code of Civil Procedure. PATTAKARA ANNAMALAI GOVINDAN v RAVASAMI CHETTI I L R. 8 Mad 365

40.—Decree Presented on execution of judgment—Judgment debtor not seeing the Court a bailiff approaches his house to attach his property left the verandah went inside the house chained the door and refused to open it when called on to do so by the bailiff Held that the conduct of the judgment debtor amounted to a prevention by fraud of the execution of the decree within the meaning of s 230 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1882. SHANU JATHA v MALEE BAWASANER [I L R. 8 Bom. 318]

41.—Execution of decree presented by fraud or force of judgment debtor—Period of limitation—Where a judgment debtor knowing that a warrant of attachment had been issued against his movable property locked up his house and so prevented the movable property therefrom from being attached—Held that his action amounted to fraud within the meaning of s 230 of the Code of Civil Procedure In order to obtain the benefit of the proviso in that section it is not necessary that a judgment creditor should prove that the fraud of the judgment debtor continued so as to prevent execution of the decree at any time. Fraud in the whole part of a judgment debtor gives a new period of limitation for the period of limitation and an appeal against a judgment on execution of a decree may be granted at any time within twelve years after the date on which a judgment is entered in as by fraud or force of execution of a decree. VEERAYYA v ADRA v CHALUP [I L R. 23 Mad. 230]

Subsequently the decree holder having attempted to execute the decree against the share so purchased the appellant in order to protect the share which he had bought purchased the decree himself and proceeded to execute it against the remaining share in the hands of the judgment debtors. Held that the appellant as the transferee of the original decree holder was entitled to execute the decree personally against the judgment debtors and also in the event of their making default in paying the amount due under the decree to proceed against the share of the mehal still in their hands and further that if by reason of it being necessary to sell the remaining share of the judgment debtors any equity should arise between them and the appellant to have the decretal money distributed over the whole property mentioned by the decree that equity must be enforced by an independent suit. NAZIR CHUNDER MUNDUL v. Omission to give notice of application for substitution of names—Title of assignee—The holder of a decree for the sale of mortgaged property having transferred the same to M by registered instrument M transferred the decree to other persons and the co-transferees applied under s. 232 of the Civil Procedure Code to have their names substituted for those of the original decree holders. The judgment debtor opposed the application on the ground that M's name had not been substituted for the names of the original decree-holders who had transferred to him. It appeared that no notice had been issued to M under s. 232 of the Code that he was dead and that his legal representative had not been cited as required by law. The application was allowed by the Courts below. Held that even assuming that the judgment debtor had a locus standi to raise the objection that notice had not been issued to the applicants' transferor he had no possible interest in the question and could not be prejudiced by the passing of the order that it was not necessary to cite the representatives of the transferor and that the order not being one upon which execution of the decree could issue but merely for a transfer of names the objection that the transferor had not been cited under s. 232 was not a substantial one. Held that it could not be said that where a decree has been assigned by one assignor to another the substitution of his name on the record in lieu of that of the original decree holder was a condition precedent to the assignor's passing title under the assignment. GULZARI LAL v. Plea by defendant that he has paid to the insolvent overruled on the ground that payment to insolvent pending insolvency cannot bind the official assignee and decree made. Subsequently the insolvent entered into a composition with his creditors and executed an assignment of his estate effects and assets in favour of B in consideration of B's becoming surety to the creditors for the payment of the composition. Accordingly an order was made setting aside the adjudication and giving liberty to the official assignee to make over to the insolvent his estate and effects. B now applied for execution of the decree in this suit against the defendant. Held that the order setting aside the adjudication did not have the effect of annulling the decree in any way. It operated in passing the benefit under the decree from the official assignee as representing the creditors to the present applicant and made the latter by operation of law an assignee under s. 232 Civil Procedure Code. It was held to be unnecessary to consider whether there was in fact pending the insolvency a payment to the insolvent in discharge of the claim. MILLER v. ABINASH CHUNDER DUTT 4 C W N 785

4. — Property of deceased debtor claimed by her as self-acquired.—Where an application is made and granted under s. 210 Act VIII of 1859 and property is attached which is claimed by the heir as his self-acquired property the Court should proceed under s. 103 without requiring any fresh application to be made under that section. I AM CHAND CHUCKERBITTY v. MADHUB NARAYAN ROY 1 C. L. R. 359

5. — Liability of son as representative of father's debts.—The entire interest in an impartible zamindari passes upon the death of the father to the son there is nothing in the estate itself which can be attached as assets of the father and a decree against him or which can be made available in execution of the decree against his son as his representative. Though a son is bound under Hindu law to pay his father's just debts from any property he may possess yet when he is made a party to a decree as representative of his deceased father for the purpose of executing it his liability is limited to the amount of assets of the deceased which may have come to his hands and have not been duly disposed of. ZAMINDAR OF SIVAGIRI v. ALWAR AYYANGAR SANGILI VIRAPANDIA CHETTIYAR v. ALWAR AYYANGAR 1 C. L. R. 43

6. — Decree against karnavan.—Tarwad property in hands of successors.—Share of deceased father of joint family.—Assets.—In a suit by the trustees to remove the defendant from the management of certain temples a decree for mesne profits was passed against the defendant who was the karnavan of a Malabar tarwad. Held that the tarwad property in the hands of the deceased defendant's successor was not assets of the deceased. The liability of his successor is liable to satisfy the decree under s. 246 of the Code of Civil Procedure

1. QUESTIONS IN EXECUTION OF DECREE

1. Meaning of section—
S 244 of the Civil Procedure Code contemplates that there must be some question in controversy and conflict in execution which has been brought to a final determination and conclusion so as to be binding upon the parties to the proceedings and which must relate in terms to the execution or discharge
or satisfaction of the decree *HULAS PAI v LIRTHI
SINGH* I L R. 11 All. 500

2. Proceeding in execution—Suit—Civil Procedure Code 1882 s 12—Semi—That a proceeding under s 244 is not a suit within the meaning of s 12 of the Code
of Civil Procedure VENKATA CHANDRAPPA NAY-DURU v VENKATARAMA REDDI

[I L R. 22 Mad. 256

3. Question raised for first time in execution—Held that a question raised for the first time between the parties to a decree at the time of its execution although not expressly reserved in that decree for determination at the time of its execution may be enquired into and determined by the Court executing the decree under s 11 of Act XXIII of 1861 *JASOJI BAYAJI v
YANKATESH SHRINIVAS*

[2 Bom 393 2nd Ed. 371

4. Decree subsequently modified—Question as to execution of—
Where it is intended that the decree that has been executed is not the decree that was passed between the parties but a decree modified by a subsequent court order s 11 Act XXIII of 1861 does not apply the question is not binding on the parties to the execution of the decree and between the parties to the

—conts. ad

5 ——— Suit to enforce liability imposed by decree of Civil Court in mosufsil.—A suit does not lie to enforce a liability specifically imposed by the decree of a Civil Court in the mosufsil the right of suit in such case being taken away by s 11 of Act XIII of 1861. SANJEVITAH v. NASSITAH 4 Mad., 453

6 ——— Transfer of decree for execution.—Procedure of Court passing and Court executing transferred decree—Civil Procedure Code s 243 645.—The provisions of s 244 of the Civil Procedure Code govern equally the procedure of the Court which passed the decree when executing such decree and the Court to which the decree is sent for execution. Cooke v. Hirsteeds Beebe & W. 181 referred to. GUARDIAN v. FAKIR DAKSH I L R. 7 All. 73

7 ——— Question after Court has executed decree and become functus officio.—See an.—Where a judgment debt pending the execution proceedings was granted permission to examine the state of the accounts but failed to do so and then made a fresh application to the Court for the same purpose after the execution proceedings had been struck off and the decree declared to be satisfied.—Held that the question must be determined with reference to the provisions of s 647 of the Civil Procedure Code and the only course open to the judgment-debtor would have been to apply for a review of the order which declared the decree to be satisfied and struck off the execution proceedings. Held also that the words the following question shall be determined by order of the Court executing the decree of s 244 of the Code of Civil Procedure must be interpreted to mean the Court executing the decree at the time when the application is made and that they do not include the Court which has executed the decree and has therefore become functus officio. BAKARUDDIN MAHO MED AHSEN v. OFFICIAL TRUSTEE OF BENGAL [I L R., 10 Cal. 538

8 ——— Suit brought under circumstances where the proper remedy was by application under s 244.—Discretion of Court to treat the plaint as an application under s 244.—Where certain judgment debtors whose property had been sold in execution of a decree brought a suit to have the sale in execution set aside under circumstances in which their proper remedy in law if any was by means of an application under s 244 of the Code of Civil Procedure it was held that it was not an improper exercise of the discretion of the Court in which such suit was brought to treat the plaint as an application under s 244 of the Code. *Dina Mahata v. ## 1 QUESTIONS IN EXECUTION OF DECREE

■ ——— Applications made by judgment-debtor.—Applicability of section.—The provision in s 244 of the Code of Civil Procedure that questions arising between the parties to the suit and relating to the execution discharge or satisfaction of a decree shall be determined by order of the Court executing the decree relates not only to proceedings initiated by the decree holder but also to applications made by the judgment debtor. LEU SAFFA MUDALIAR v. COMMERCIAL AND LAND MORTGAGE BANK I L R. 23 Mad. 377

10 ——— Loss or destruction of decree.—Regular suit.—A decree passed for money was lost or destroyed the decree-holder on suing out execution was referred to a regular suit. Held that the existence of the decree and of its terms might have been enquired into in the execution department and that the order of the Court to which application for execution was made could not confer jurisdiction on a Court to entertain such a suit. PANJEET CHOOWEE LALL 1 Agra 78

11 ——— Suit to remove buildings found on land for which decree is given.—Where in execution of a decree for land the plaintiff found that buildings had been erected by the defendant on the land alleged by him to be comprised in the decree and an application to the Court executing the decree was refused on the ground that the decree was silent as to the demolition of the buildings.—Held that his remedy was an appeal against that order and not a fresh suit to get the buildings removed. RADHA GOBIND SHAKA v. BROJENDER COOMAR ROY CHOWDHRY 7 W R 372

12 ——— Question of title between decree holder and third person.—Separate suit.—The plaintiffs in a suit for money obtained a decree against all the defendants except P and among them K. On appeal the Court of first appeal gave them a decree against P. In execution of this decree they attached and were paid as belonging to P certain money deposited in the Government Treasury in A's name. On appeal by P the Court of second appeal reversed this decree and restored the decree of the first Court dismissing the suit as regards P. P thereupon applied in execution of his decree for a refund of the money. The plaintiffs objected on the ground that the money belonged to K. Held that the Court executing P's decree was not competent to decide the question whether the money belonged to P or to K such question not being one between P and them only but involving and raising a question of title between him and K and to their conflicting claims inter se to the money. PRASAD v. MAHADEO PRASAD I L R. 6 All. 1.

13 ——— Alleged fraudulent execution of decree.—Separate suit.—Certain property in the 21 Pergunnas having been seized and sold in execution of a decree of the High Court application was successfully made to the District Judge to set aside the proceedings on the ground that the execution was fraudulent and not warranted by the decree. Held that the Jn's had no right to enter into such an application or to reopen at the instance of a third party execution proceedings which had come to an end. The question could only be determined in a regular suit. ITCHHEPPEE SINGH v. ADORIO CURRY MELLICK 31 W. R., 453

14 ——— Suit to set aside sale—Fraud—Sale under Act X of 1859—Act XVIII of 1861—Set aside sales partly decrees for arrears of rent—Sale under Act X of 1859 and in execution of that decree—In the tenure to sale. At the sale the tenure was purchased by A. A then brought a suit against B and C to set aside the sale on the ground that the rent-decree and all execution proceedings taken thereon were fraudulent and alleging that B was the actual purchaser in the name of A. An objection was taken that the suit would not lie and that the questions in the suit were such as could have been determined and were determined by the Court executing the decree. Held that under s. 214 of the Civil Procedure Code now the corresponding s. 11 of Act XVIII of 1861 had any application to proceedings in execution of a decree under Act X of 1859 and that the suit being one to set aside the sale on the ground of fraud was maintainable. Suits: Charn Chuckerbutty v. Mahomed Isuf Meek 1 L. P. 11 Cite 35 distinguished DRAGO GORAL BARKAR v. HIRSHANWISSA HIR [L. L. R., 15 Cal., 170]

15 ——— Question as to whether purchase-money has been paid within time—Court to set aside decree.—The plaintiff in a suit to enforce a right of pre-emption obtained a decree to the effect mentioned in s. 214 of the Civil Procedure Code. On payment by him of the purchase-money into Court the defendant objected in the execution department to such payment on the ground that it had not been made within time. The Court which made the decree disallowed the objection. The defendant appealed from the order dissolving the objection. They had previously appealed from the decree. The Appellate Court in both appeals together and finally held that the purchase-money had not been paid into Court within time, reversed the decree and allowed the objection. The plaintiff preferred a second appeal to the High Court from the Appellate Court's decree which was admitted. He also preferred an appeal from the appellate order allowing the objection but this appeal was rejected as being beyond time and such order became final. Held that inasmuch as the question whether the plaintiff had paid the purchase-money into Court within time was not one relating to the execution of the decree within the meaning of s. 214 of the Civil Procedure Code, but was one which should be decided in the suit itself and therefore the proceedings in the execution department touching that question were finished, such order was not a bar to the hearing of the second appeal preferred by the plaintiff. MUHAMMAD ALI v. DEBI DIAL SAH 1 L. R., 4 All., 420

16 ——— Suit to set aside order in execution of decree—Was the object of the suit to set aside the order passed in the miscellaneous department relating to execution of decree—Held that such suit was untenable. 11 Act XXIII of 1861 has distinctly prohibited all remedy by separate suit and the remedy provided being an appeal from the order complained of. AMER KHOOSAN v. LITCHEE NABAIN 1 Agr., 63

17 ——— Regular suit to set aside summary order—Application in summary suit—A person who, in the course of executing a decree, had been turned out of possession by an order under a 322 Act VIII of 1859 and who was compelled to pay the costs of that order brought a regular suit for its reversal and obtained a decree which was set aside as to the costs of the summary order in consequence of the plaintiff not having demanded them; subsequently the plaintiff made an application in the summary suit that the costs of the summary order should be repaid to her. Held that the Court had no power to entertain an application under s. 11 Act XVIII of 1861. TURBOY v. MAHOMED WAJID 2 C. L. R., 504

18 ——— Resistance to execution as being cultivators—Decree for limited possession—Separate suit.—In a suit to recover possession of land the defendant raised objection on the ground that they were cultivators and that the decree only authorized the plaintiff to recover possession as proprietor. The objection was overruled and the defendant was set aside. They then sought to set aside the order in the execution proceedings and to recover possession. Held that the suit was barred under s. 214 of the Civil Procedure Code. NARAYAN v. MAHOMED TAKI KHAN alias LEEH MEH KHAN

19 ——— Liability of property for debts—Separate suit—Debts of father—Whether property seized by a judgment creditor in the lands of his deceased judgment creditor's son is held by the son under such circumstances as render him liable for the father's debts is a question which cannot be tried in execution proceedings but must form the subject of an independent suit. 11 Act XXIII of 1861 KHOOSRO SINGH v. pay a certain sum by yearly instalments and hypothecated certain lands as security. A memorandum of this decree was registered under s. 42 of Act XX of 1866. The last instalment fell due in February 1870. The decree was kept alive against the zamindar up to his death in 1873. Upon the death of the zamindar proceedings in execution were taken against his son who succeeded to the zamindari but were set aside on appeal. In January 1882 a suit was brought against the son to recover the amount of the last instalment due by his father under the decree of 1867. Held that the suit was neither barred by the provisions of s. 244 of the Code of Civil Procedure nor by limitation. ARUNACHALA c. ZAMINDAR OF SITAGIRI. I L R. 7 Mad. 323

21. — Hindu law—

*Obligation of son to pay debt of deceased father—Nature of obligation—D obtained a decree against the father of A and B Hindus on a hypothecation bond whereby certain land was pledged as security for repayment of a loan. The decree declared the land liable to be sold for repayment of the debt. The judgment-debtor having died before the decree was executed A and B were made parties to the proceedings in execution and the land was attached. A and B objected to the attachment on the ground that their shares in the land were not liable to be sold in execution of the decree as they were not parties to the suit. This objection was allowed and D brought a suit for a declaration that the property was liable to be sold. That suit was dismissed, on the ground that a suit for a declaration would not be. D then sued to recover from A and B the balance due under the decree against their father after crediting the amount recovered by the sale of their father's share. It was objected that the suit was barred by s. 244 of the Code of Civil Procedure. Held that the duty of a son under Hindu law to pay his father's debts out of his own share of ancestral estate is not a matter which can be decided under s. 244 of the Code of Civil Procedure. The questions contemplated by s. 244 are those which relate to the enforcement of the obligation created by the decree. The obligation to pay the father's debts out of the son's share of the ancestral estate is not an obligation created by a decree against the father. ARIABUDRA c. DONASAMI. I L R. 11 Mad. 413

22. — Suit against

sons of a deceased judgment debtor—Decree for money against father to be discharged by instalments—Separate suit—Liability of son for father's debt—A personal decree on a mortgage was passed against a Hindu (the mortgagor) and his two sons on 10th October 1877. The decree provided for payment of the secured debt in various instalments by May 1895. The mortgagor died in 1883 leaving discharged part of the debt. The decree-holder having attached certain family property in execution the mortgagor's two younger sons who had not been born at the date of the above decree objected that their shares were not liable to attachment. This objection prevailed the Court expressing the opinion that the matter in controversy should be determined in a regular suit. The other defendants in the suit of 1877 had both died in the interval one of them leaving infant sons. The decree holder (in whose sole name the mortgage stood) now sued the sons of the mortgagor and their infant nephews for payment out of the family property of all unpaid instalments and objection was taken that the question whether ancestral property is liable or not for the father's debt in the present suit was one which related to the execution of the decree in the former suit and that the order whereby the attachment was raised was an order under s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code and no fresh suit could be brought. Held that the plaintiff was not precluded from maintaining the suit against the sons of the mortgagor by Civil Procedure Code s. 244. RAMAYYA c. VENKATASWAMY. I L R. 17 Mad. 123

23. — *Execution of decree against son in Hindu joint family as representative of his father—Question as to legality of debt for which decree was obtained—Where a son against whom a decree which has been obtained by his father in a joint undivided Hindu family is sought to be executed as representative of his father takes the objection that the debts are tainted with immorality he can do so under s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882). ARIABUDRA v. 24. — *Mode of redeeming mortgaged lands in execution of former decree—A mortgagee was put into possession of the mortgaged property under a decree obtained by him against the mortgagor to the effect that the mortgagee should remain in possession until the mortgage debt was paid. The mortgagor subsequently paid into Court the money due under the mortgage decree and applied to be restored to the possession of the mortgaged property. Both the lower Courts granted the mortgagor's application. On special appeal—Held (following the decision of the Full Bench in RATY, Shivram Joshi v. Kaluram Malukchand. 12 Bom. 161) that such an application was not the proper mode for the mortgagor to redeem the property and to recover possession from the mortgagee, the previous decree for possession having been fully executed when the mortgagee was put into possession. RAMCHANDRA DALLAL c. 50. — Retention by the Court of property not the subject-matter of a decree in the course of its execution—Dismissal of petition for delivery of possession—Appeal from order of dismissal—A decree having been passed awarding to a plaintiff in a suit a moiety of certain jewels which were stored in family boxes in the possession of the defendant the boxes containing the jewels were taken possession of by an officer of the District Court and a division was effected by a commissioner appointed for that purpose by that Court. After the division certain jewels remained which had been set aside by the commissioner as not forming part of the subject-matter of the decree and these continued in the custody of the District Court. The defendant thereupon presented a petition to the District Court praying that the jewels so remaining undivided might be returned to him. Plaintiff resisted the application but both parties were agreed that the said remaining jewels were not part of the subject-matter of the suit and were not dealt with by the decree. The petition was dismissed whereupon the petitioner appealed. On objection being taken that no appeal lay against the order of dismissal on the ground that since the jewels in question were not part of the subject-matter of the suit and were not dealt with in the decree the question was not one relating to the execution of a decree and was not governed by s. 244 of

The plaintiff appealed from the decree obtained by the defendant and on appeal it was set aside on the plaintiff depositing the rent due and the plaintiff recovered possession of his tenure. Held that a suit for the value of the crops carried away by the defendant while in possession under his decree was not barred by s. 11 of Act XXIII of 1861. SHUBCHOMYER v. PATABIR SIKHAR. [I. L. 52. — Decree for costs—Sale of immovable property in execution—Reversal of decree on appeal—Suit for recovery of means profits—Suit for value of crops wrongfully appropriated—Right of suit—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882) s. 593—A brought a suit against B for compensation but it was struck off and B obtained a decree for costs. A appealed but pending the appeal B executed his decree and in execution thereof purchased a certain immovable property of A and took delivery of possession. The Appellate Court remanded the case for retrial on the merits and a decree was passed by the Court of first instance in A's favour which was confirmed on appeal and he got back his property. A then brought a suit for the value of crops wrongfully appropriated by B during the period he was in possession. It was contended on second appeal that such a suit was barred by the provisions of s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code. Held that the question to be decided in this suit did not relate to the execution, discharge or satisfaction of the original decree within the meaning of s. 244 because it did not arise till all until that decree had ceased to exist and such a suit was not barred by the provisions of that section. *Lati Koer v. ever was never executed. The defendant in 1870 ob-

in execution of another decree against G D. The present suit was instituted by plaintiff in 1871. Held that not only was the remedy on the cause of action which accrued in 1864 and the decree of 1866 barred but also that Act XVIII of 1861 s 11 prevented
the plaintiff from bringing a new suit on the fresh

Munsif of the Adawlat Court to eject the defen-gistrar found that the defendant was a tenant under the plaintiff at a monthly rent and the Court decreed that defendant should remain in possession so long as he should continue to pay the rent regularly and that in default of payment the plaintiff should be placed in possession. An attempt to obtain possession in execution of that decree in 1861 failed and the plaintiff brought a suit to recover possession with arrears of rent. Held that s 11 of Act XVIII of 1861 pre-and that if he failed to manage the lands properly or alienated them by sale or mortgage the plaintiff and his younger brother should enjoy the lands and apply

the proceeds towards the maintenance of the devasthan.
In execution of this decree plaintiff presented an application on the 25th November 1894 praying that he should be put in management of the devasthan lands on the ground that the defendant was guilty
of mismanagement and misapplication of the devasthan property. This application was rejected by the Court of first instance on the ground that the question of mismanagement did not fall within s 244 cl (c) of the Code of Civil Procedure. This order was confirmed on appeal on the ground that the decree
was a declaratory decree and therefore incapable of

TOTTENHAM and PIGOT JJ (GHOSE J dissenting) —that when circumstances affecting the validity of a sale in execution have been brought about by the fraud of one of the parties to the suit and give rise to a question between these parties such as apart from fraud would be within the provisions of s 244 a suit will not lie to impeach the validity of the sale on the ground of such fraud Sarada Chunder Chuckerbutty v Mahomed Isuf Meah I L R 11 Cal 376 Vira raghava Ayyangar v Venkata Charyar I L R 6 Mad 217 Paranyer v Kanade I L R 6 Bom 149 and Sakharam Govind Kole v Damodar Akharam Gujar I L R 9 Bom 468 approved Gobind Chandra Majumdar v Uma Churn Sen I L R 14 Cal 679 discussed from in part Held that in such a case the judgment-debtor is entitled whether the sale has been confirmed or not to make as against the person guilty of the fraud or accessories thereto such application (if any) under s 311 as he may be entitled to make his time for making it being computed from the time when the fraud first became known to him Held further that in cases in which the decree or the purchase is made benami s 211 does not apply and a suit may be held to lie to set aside the sale Per GHOSE J—An objection under s 311 or upon the ground of fraud raised by the judgment debtor after the sale has been confirmed under s 312 cannot be dealt with under s 244 In such a case the judgment-debtor is entitled upon the ground of fraud to bring a suit to set aside the sale or at all events to have it declared that the sale passed no title to the purchaser or that the purchaser is a trustee for him There is no special provision in the Code for setting aside a sale on the ground of fraud when it has once been confirmed MOHENDRO NARAIN CHATURAJ v GOPAL MONDUL

67 — Suit to set aside sale on ground of fraud—Sale in execution of mortgage decree directing the sale of the mortgaged property under ss 88 and 89 of Transfer of Property Act—Decree was not absolute—Right of suit—Civil Procedure Code ss 311 and 312—Where a suit to set aside a sale in execution of a decree was brought on the ground that by the fraud of the judgment creditor the proclamation of sale had not been duly made and the facts were that the sale was not an ordinary sale of attached property in execution of a decree but a sale in execution of a mortgage decree which directed the sale of the mortgaged property in accordance with the provisions of ss 88 and 89 of the Transfer of Property Act but that there was no such decree in existence as only a decree nisi and not a decree absolute directing the sale had been made and it was contended that until a decree absolute was made for the sale the right to redeem existed and that the suit might be regarded as a suit to redeem—Held that there was nothing in these facts to distinguish the case from the Full Bench case of Mohendro Narain Chaturaj v Gopal Mondul I L R 17 Cal 769 and that the suit was therefore

68 — Application to set aside sale on ground of fraud—Question between decree holder or auction purchaser and judgment debtor—Where a judgment debtor applies to have an execution sale set aside alleging circumstances which if found in his favour would amount to fraud on the part of the decree-holder or the auction purchaser the case comes within s 244 of the Civil Procedure Code Proshanoo Kumar Sanyal v Kali Das Sanyal I L R 19 Cal 633 Chand Monie Das v Santamonee Das I L R, 24 Cal 707 and Aemas Chand Kanji v Denonath Kanji 2 C W N 691 referred to ROJOVIKANT BAGCHI v HOSSEN UDDIT AHMED 4 C W N 538

69 — Sale in execution of decree for arrears of rent—Fraud—Suit to set aside sale on ground of fraud—Civil Procedure Code 1962 s 311—Right of suit—A and B were two tenants whose names were registered in the landlord's sherista B died leaving C, D and E his sons and heirs but no application for mutation of names in the sherista was made Disputes as to rent having arisen A and C proceeded to make deposits in Court in respect thereof and the landlord instituted a suit against A joining C as a party defendant to recover the amount of rent he claimed and obtained an ex parte decree which inter alia directed that it should be satisfied out of the amount so deposited in Court That amount according to the landlord's case proving insufficient to satisfy his demands he proceeded to execute the decree and brought the holding to sale and purchased it himself A and C then applied under s 311 of the Code to have the sale set aside alleging that the decree had been fraudulently executed, the sale proclamation suppressed and that the decree was incapable of execution in the manner adopted and contending that it could only be executed against the amounts so deposited in Court which were more than ample to satisfy the full amount justly due under it That application was unsuccessful A C D and E then instituted a suit to have the sale set aside on the ground of fraud Held as regards A and C following the decision in Mohendro Narain Chaturaj v Gopal Mondul I L R 17 Cal 769 that the questions as to the propriety of the execution of the rent-decree by sale and as to the suppression of the sale proclamation were questions which could and ought to have been decided under s 244 and that so far as they were concerned the suit would not lie Held however as regards D and E that as they were not parties to the rent suit or proceedings had thereon and although as heirs of a deceased tenant who had not got their names registered in the landlord's abstracts, they might not be able to question the decree obtained for arrears of rent they were not thereby precluded from contesting a sale on the ground that it had been fraudulently obtained under colour of such a decree and that it was competent to them at any rate to sue for a declaration that the sale in question did not in any way affect their rights. *JAGAN NATH GORAI v. 70 ——— Suit to have an execution on sale of land set aside—Purchaser at sale sought to be set aside—Fraud allegation of— Where questions are raised between the parties to a decree relating to its execution discharge or satisfaction in the fact that the purchaser at a judicial sale who is no party to the decree of which the execution is in question is interested and concerned in the result has never been held to prevent the application of s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code limiting the disposal of these matters to the Court executing the decree. The plaintiffs in a suit to have the judicial sale of a zamindari set aside alleged that the decree-holder in part satisfaction of his decree had received from them and other co-sharers in the zamindari their proportionate amounts of the debt decreed and had agreed that their shares should be exempt from the execution sale about to take place that the sale took place subject to that exemption that the decree-holder however with whom some of the co-sharers and the purchasers colluded, fraudulently had the sale set aside revived the attachment and caused a second sale at which all the shares in the zamindari were sold. Held that the question besides that the charge of fraud was not sufficiently specific was determinable in virtue of s. 244 of the Code of Civil Procedure only by order of the Court executing the decree. *PROSUNNO KUMAR SANYAL v. Held that the questions thus raised were questions arising between the parties to the suit within the meaning of s. 244 of the Code of Civil Procedure and that the suit would not lie. *Bansi Ram v. ment debtor in his own right disallowed—Order reversed on appeal—Claim under s 278 rejected—S mortgaged four parcels of land to M M obtained a decree against S directing the sale of the lands mortgaged. S died and K was brought in as his representative under s 234 of the Code of Civil Procedure M applied for execution against the lands mortgaged as assets of S K objected to the sale of three parcels on the ground that one parcel belonged to himself (K) and two to the family to which S belonged and of which K was the manager. The District Munsif investigated these questions and r s 241 of the Code of Civil Procedure and directed that execution should proceed against all four parcels. The District Court on appeal reversed the order of the Munsif on the ground that he had no power to decide these questions under s 241 and that the proper course was for M to attach the properties and for K to make a claim. This course was adopted and K's claim was rejected and the four parcels were sold and bought by F K thereupon brought a suit against M and F to cancel the sales to F Held that by virtue of s 241 of the Code of Civil Procedure the suit would not lie KURITALE v MAYAN [I L R 7 Mad. 255]

81. — First suit — In a suit for redemption of a mortgage a decree was passed for possession by redemption on the plaintiff paying the sum of Rs 43 (Rs 7-0 the amount of the mortgage) and 1 lb. Prior to the institution of the suit the defendant had taken proceedings in the Judge's Court to foreclose the mortgage and the plaintiff paid the above mentioned sum into that Court for the defendant who took it. The plaintiff appealed to the High Court from the decree directing him to pay Rs 43-0-0 as the mortgage debt, and obtained a decree by which the decree of the first Court was modified and the amount payable on redemption was reduced to Rs 15-0-0. The plaintiff then brought an execution of the decree to recover from the defendant the difference between the two sums with interest. Held that the effect of the Appellate Court's decree was to direct restitution of any sum paid under the first Court's decree which was disallowed by the Appellate Court's decree and that the question was clearly one for determination by the Court executing the decree and not by separate suit being expressly provided for by s. 553 of the Civil Procedure Code. Held also that the decree holder was entitled to restitution of the amount with interest. I ger v Comptoir d'Escompte de Paris L R 8 I C 465 referred to. Ram Ghulam v Diarka Rai L R 7 All 170 distinguished by *MAHMOOD J. 82. — Question arising after sale — On a sale as to interest taken by purchaser — Per MAHMOOD J. — The scope of s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code is limited to matters connected with the execution of the decree between the decree holder and the judgment debtor and covers all the questions which may arise between the decree holder and the judgment debtor relating to the execution etc. of the decree. Questions that may arise after the sale are not strictly speaking questions relating to the execution discharge or satisfaction of the decree within the meaning of cl (3) s. 244, but as soon as there has been a sale the execution of the decree so far as the decree holder is concerned is over and the question whether the purchaser has purchased anything by the sale is not a question as to the execution of the decree holder's decree. RAYCHHAIBAR MISR v BECHU BHAGAT L R 7 All 641

83. — Refund of purchase money — Separate suit — Adjudication of judgment debtor as bankrupt and order not to deal with property — A sale on the 4th March 1871 of certain property sold in execution of a decree obtained by A having been confirmed on the 6th May 1878 notice was on the 31st May received that the judgment debtor had been adjudicated a bankrupt in London and an application was made to the Court to abstain from dealing with his property. All proceedings were thereupon stayed and on the 6th of July 1878 the purchaser applied to the Court for a refund by the present plaintiffs who were the administrators of

A of his purchase money and on the 10th of the same month an order was made for such refund. The amount was refunded without protest by the plaintiffs who then sued the purchaser and the original judgment debtor to recover the amount paid by them. Held that the suit would not lie but that the question was one to be determined under s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code by the Court executing the decree. SOLANO v ALEXANDER 10 I L R 573

84. — Compromise as to possession after decree — Procedure — B sued his brother C for possession of certain lands. B and C came to an amicable settlement one of the terms of which was that C during his life should retain possession of certain of the lands and that after his death they should pass to B. A decree was given in accordance with the terms of the compromise. On C's death, his widow refused to put B in possession of the lands. B sought to obtain possession of the lands with mesne profits by executing the decree under the compromise against C's widow. Held that he ought to proceed by regular suit. TABA MANY DASI v RADHA JIBAN MUKTAVI [6 B L R. 85. — Agreement to give time — Suit on agreement — The parties to a decree presented a petition to the Court executing the decree in which they stated that they had agreed that the principal amount of the decree was to be paid within eight years, that a sum of Rs 50 was to be paid annually as interest on the principal amount, and that upon default of payment of the interest the whole amount due should be realized by execution of the decree. On this petition being presented the Court struck the case off its file. Held that upon default being made the decree holder's remedy was by execution of the decree and not by suit to enforce the terms of the agreement. CHAMPAT PAI v PITAMBAR DAS [L R 6 All 16]

86. — Compromise of decree — Effect of compromise — Mode of enforcing agreement of compromise — Right of suit — A decree for partition having been compromised by an agreement made by the parties and communicated to the Court which passed the decree — Held that the effect of the decree was extinguished by the agreement which could only be enforced by a fresh suit and not by an application for execution of the former decree. HARI RAJUNATH JOSHI v KISHINJI ANANT JOSHI [L R 19 Bom. 546]

87. — Contract superseding decree — Separate suit — In the course of proceedings in execution of a decree by which a simple mortgage of immovable property was enforced the judgment debtor made an application to the Court executing the decree dated in April 1877 stating that the decree had been partially satisfied by the sale of a part of the mortgaged property that the decree-holder had remitted a portion of the decree that the balance should be paid by a certain date and that a certain banker had given a note of hand for the payment of interest on the balance at a certain rate. The judgment debtor then stated as follows: So long as the petitioner does not pay the money to the decree holder — i.e. during the term fixed above — the banker shall pay interest to the decree-holder the decree holder shall not have power to take out execution within the said term but after the expiry thereof he shall be at liberty to realize his money together with interest from the petitioner and his property by executing the decree excepting the property sold all the property mortgaged and attached under the decree shall continue so mortgaged and attached the decree holder's pledge has affixed his signature at the foot of this petition showing that he consents to it the petitioner therefore prays that the case may be struck off as partially executed. The decree holder subsequently sued the judgment-debtor to recover the balance of the decree claiming under the arrangement set forth in the petition of April 1877 as a contract superseding the decree. Held having regard to the terms of that petition that no new contract superseding the decree was either intended or effected and the suit was consequently not maintainable. Billings v Uncorepanated Service Bank 1 L R 3 All 781 distinguished. Ganga v Murli Dhar 1 L R 4 All 240 S A No 25 of 1882 Weekly Notes All 1883 p 93 and Chamapat Rao v Istambar Das 1 L R 6 All 16 followed. MAKUND RAM v MAXEND PAM

88. — Compromise effected by fraud—Separate suit—Practice—Power of Court to vacate any judgment or order procured by fraud—The plaintiff held two decrees against the defendant for Rs 490-1-6 and applied for execution. The defendant by misrepresentation induced the plaintiff to receive Rs 900 only in full satisfaction of those decrees and to withdraw the application. The plaintiff on discovering the misrepresentation brought this suit to recover the difference. Held that the suit was barred by s. 11 of Act XVIII of 1861 (which corresponds with s. 214 of Act X of 1877) the question between the parties being a question relating to the execution of a decree. It is always competent to any Court to vacate any judgment or order if it be proved that such judgment or order was obtained by manifest fraud and in the case of orders made in execution s. 11 of Act XVIII of 1861 excludes all other remedy. PARANJPE v KANADE 1 L R. 6 Bom 148

tion for larger amount—Suit for amount of compromise—The parties to a suit agreed upon a compromise the result of which was that the plaintiff obtained by the decree a greater quantity of land than he had originally claimed and a decree was drawn up in accordance with the compromise. In the execution proceedings the defendant raised an objection that the plaintiff could not have execution for a greater quantity of land than he had claimed originally and the Court executing the decree allowed the objection. No appeal from the Court's order was made but the plaintiff brought a suit to recover possession of the larger amount of land mentioned in the compromise. Held that the order of the Court executing the decree was erroneous in law and might properly be reconsidered upon an application for review but that the present suit came within s. 214 of the Civil Procedure Code, and therefore could not be maintained. MORI BULLAH v IMAMI 1 L R. 9 All, 229

Pending an appeal against that decree execution was stayed on the present plaintiff depositing a note for Rs 15,000 as security. The decree was affirmed on appeal and the present defendant had the note sold in execution and drew out of the proceeds a sum for mesne profits for subsequent years; but an appeal was preferred in the execution proceedings to the High Court which set aside the execution so far as concerned the mesne profits for the years subsequent to that to which the original decree related. The present plaintiff thereupon attached and sold the village to recover the balance before that amount was paid to the present plaintiff, the present defendant brought a suit against him in the District Court, and there obtained a decree for means profits for the subsequent years and an execution drew the amount of the decree out of Court. In second appeal however the High Court on 26th September 1881 reversed the decree of the District Court whereupon the present plaintiff applied for restitution under Civil Procedure Code s. 593 which application was ultimately disallowed. The present suit was brought to recover the amount to which that application related. Held that the suit was not barred by the provisions of Civil Procedure Code s. 244. NARAYANA c NARAYANA I L R. 13 Mad. 437

04. — Excess sum retained by decree holder after satisfying decree—Separate suit*—A suit brought to recover the amount to which plaintiff was entitled under a decree passed in favour of himself and defendant as co plaintiffs in a former suit. It appeared that defendant purchased the property sold in execution of the decree and that the price for which the asset took place was sufficient to satisfy the decree. Instead of paying the purchase-money into Court defendant with the knowledge and assent of plaintiff retained the whole sum upon the understanding that he should give the Court a receipt for himself and on behalf of plaintiff and afterwards pay to plaintiff his portion of the amount decreed. Accordingly defendant presented a petition to that effect, and obtained a certificate confirming the sale. Defendant having failed to pay plaintiff his portion the present suit was brought. Upon these facts it was held, in special appeal that the decree was satisfied by sale of the judgment debtor's property and that the execution proceedings were completely at an end the defendant having been by the assent of the plaintiff made his agent for the acknowledgment of the satisfaction of the decree. No subsequent application under the decree could have been entertained by the Court which executed it. Therefore plaintiff's claim was not a matter determinable under s. 11 of Act XXIII of 1861. BANANADAN CHETTI c KUNNAFFU CHETTI 6 Mad. 304

He subsequently applied for execution of the decree against S claiming the costs which it awarded S thereupon paid the amount of such costs into Court and, having obtained stay of execution, sued M for such decree, claiming by virtue of such assignment. The lower Court held that the suit was barred by the provisions of s. 244 of Act X of 1877 and also treating such assignment as an uncertified adjustment of such decree that it was barred by the terms of the last paragraph of s. 258 of that Act. Held that the suit was not barred by the provisions of s. 244 of Act X of 1877 or of s. 258 of that Act. The last paragraph of s. 258 means that the Court executing the decree shall not recognize an uncertified payment or adjustment out of Court. It does not prohibit a suit for money paid to a decree holder out of Court and the payment of which, not being certified, could not be recognized and which the decree holder had not returned but had misappropriated by taking out execution of the decree a second time and securing the amount in full through the Court. SHADI v. He claimed on the ground amongst others that the decree of 1879 had been wholly adjusted. The alleged adjustment had not been certified under s. 258 of the Civil Procedure Code. Subsequently by a registered ekramamah the decree-holder having received from the judgment debtors (the plaintiffs) the amount due on account of mesne profits and also a further consideration of Rs 166 relinquished an 8 anna share of the jote in favour of them. The remaining 8 anna share of the jote was also sold by the decree holder by a registered kholala to the judgment-debtor. The heirs of the decree holder on his death applied for execution of the decree but not withstanding the judgment debtor's objection that the decree could not be executed it having been satisfied by virtue of the aforesaid ekramamah and kholala they obtained possession of the jote. The adj. judgment not having been certified was not taken into account by the Court executing the decree. On a regular suit by the judgment debtors for a declaration of title to as well as for the recovery of possession of the jote the defence mainly was that under s. 244 of the Code of Civil Procedure no separate suit would lie. On a sale of property in execution of a decree the defendant who was sued as the representative of her deceased brother objected under s. 244 of the Code of Civil Procedure to the attachment of certain lands to which she set up independent title. 133. — Objection raised
On a question of title between parties added as representative and the person whom he represents—Order of sale following objection—G brought a suit against I for the establishment of her rights as purchaser of certain immovable properties sold in execution of a decree obtained against I and for possession of the same. The suit was decreed it being held that G was the purchaser. In execution of this decree under which G sought to obtain possession J objected that he was entitled to a half share of same and to the entire sixteen annas of the other properties and that his brother I had no right whatever in the same. This objection was disallowed by the Court executing the decree on the ground that it had not been raised in the original suit and that as the decree had been passed in the presence of J he was not entitled now to urge it. Thereupon J brought a suit against G to establish his rights. Held that the order passed in the execution proceedings disallowing J's objection was no bar to the suit under s. 244 of the Code of Civil Procedure. Kanas Lal Khan v Shashi Bhushan Dutt I L R. 6 Cal. 777 8 C L R. 117 followed. GOURMONT DABEZ v JUGUT CHANDRA AUDHIKARI I L R. 17 Cal. 57

On a question of title between parties or their representatives—Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV of 1882) s. 244—Full Bench—Where a judgment debtor dies after the execution of a decree and his legal representatives are not on the record in execution proceedings to raise an objection to the execution of the decree questions which they may raise in respect of the decree which they may not have taken in their hands and as such is not a question taken in execution are questions which are not (c) of the Civil Procedure Code and are not within the execution department and not within the jurisdiction of the Court. There is no distinction in this respect between the position of legal representatives added before and those added after the execution of the decree. In the last paragraph of s. 231 the Court may try the decree and determine the rights of the parties in the property in the legal representative's hands. It is a part of the deceased judgment-debtor's estate and this fact for the purpose of the Civil Procedure Code is not material.

of the judgment debtor—Claims to attached property where representative judgment debtor claims to hold the attached property as trustee of third party—Civil Procedure Code 1882 ss 26 287—The plaintiffs sued for a declaration that certain property was liable to be attached in execution of a decree obtained by them in suit No. 591 of 1888 against the estate of one M deceased who had been the head of a math situate in the Dharwar District. The property had been attached in execution but the defendant, who was G's successor in office had obtained the removal of the attachment on the ground that the property belonged to the math and not to M personally and was not therefore liable to satisfy the decree. The plaintiffs thereupon brought this suit. The lower Appellate Court passed a decree for the plaintiffs and granted the declaration. On second appeal it was contended that under s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code the question ought to have been decided in execution of the decree in suit No. 591 of 1888 and that a separate suit would not lie. Held on the merits that the decree of the lower Appeal Court should be reversed and the suit dismissed. Per RANADE J—Where the representative of a judgment-debtor puts forward a personal claim to property which is attached as assets of the judgment-debtor in his hands the investigation of the claim must be made in execution under the provisions of s. 244 of the Code of Civil Procedure. But where he asserts that he holds the property in trust for or on behalf of or as manager of some third person or body of persons or of a religious charity or institution the claim must be investigated under the provisions of ss 248 to 253 and the order passed therein cannot be challenged by an appeal but must form the subject of a separate suit. Per PARSONS J—Ss 248 to 253 of the Code of Civil Procedure have no reference to any claim preferred or objection made by any person who is on the record as a party to the suit. Whenever a question arises between the representative of a judgment debtor on the record (whether originally sued as such or added before or after decree) and the decree holder as to whether property in the hands of the representative was of the assets of the deceased or not that question must be determined by order of the Court executing the decree under the provisions of s. 244. MURRAY & HAYAT SAHIB I L. 144 ——— Claim to property attached in execution of decree—Parties to the suit—Subsequent suit by a defendant who had been exonerated in a former suit—Maintainability of such suit—A family consisted of plaintiff's father first defendant's father and second defendant's grand father. Plaintiff's brother died leaving a widow. Plaintiff's father then died and also left a widow (plaintiff's mother) him surviving. The brother's widow brought a suit for maintenance against the representatives of the first and second defendants, branches of the family plaintiff's mother being joined as third defendant. A decree was passed against the two first mentioned defendants but plaintiff's mother was exonerated on the ground that being a female she was not liable. In execution of the decree certain lands were brought to sale and purchased by the brother's widow who transferred them to another person. At the death of plaintiff's mother which occurred subsequently the said lands would have vested in the plaintiff who now brought this suit claiming that the sales referred to were not binding on her (plaintiff) inasmuch as her mother had not been a party to the decree under which they had taken place. Held that where a party defendant in a suit is exonerated from such suit the suit being dismissed against him and decree passed against a co-defendant in the suit and in execution of that decree property belonging to and in the possession of the defendant who was so exonerated from the suit is attached and sold the latter is not entitled to maintain a suit for recovery of possession of the property and the question of his claim to and to recover possession of the property is a question falling within s. 244 of the Code of Civil Procedure as to debar him from maintaining such suit. Gadicherla Chinnaswamy v Gadicherla Setayya I L. On objection being taken that the suit was not maintainable the matter being one for determination in execution proceedings under s. 244 of the Code of Civil Procedure—Held (1) that although the sale was contrary to the provisions of s. 99 of the Transfer of Property Act that section being for the benefit only of a particular class of persons namely those concerned with a right to redeem mortgaged property such a sale was not void, but voidable (2) that the question being one arising between the parties to the suit wherein the sale was made and relating to execution could not be raised and decided in a suit but should be raised and tried only in execution proceedings taken under s. 244 of the Code of Civil Procedure and the sale set aside if such relief were not for any reason barred (3) that the sale having been confirmed such confirmation was final and precluded the mortgagors from seeking the relief to which they would otherwise have been entitled and (4) that notwithstanding such sale and confirmation, the mortgagors might not be precluded from suing to redeem the mortgaged property on payment of the amount given credit for by the mortgagee in respect of the sale. MATAN PATNI v PAKIRAN

On the 21st July 1889 an order was made for transfer of the decree to the High Court for execution. On the 5th April 1890 the mortgagee applied to the High Court for execution by attachment of the mortgaged properties and in the same year an order for attachment was made. The mortgagee died in April 1891 and on the 20th August 1891 the plaintiff (his widow and administratrix) applied to the High Court for an order absolute for sale of the mortgaged properties under s 89 of the Transfer of Property Act. On the 5th January 1892 the application was refused on the ground that the mortgaged properties were outside the territorial jurisdiction of the High Court. The plaintiff then instituted the present suit in which she sought (inter alia) administration of the estate of the mortgagee (who had died before the mortgage suit was filed) and asked for the sale of such properties as might be found subject to such mortgage. Held (affirming the decision of SALE J) that the suit was not maintainable by reason of the provisions of ss 230 and 244 of the Civil Procedure Code the questions arising in the suit being such as should have been determined in execution of the decree and not by a separate suit. JOZEMAYA DASST v THACKOMONI DASST I L R, 24 Calc 473

The decree directed that the Pandara should name a Tambiran of his adhi nam for the office whom after inquiry as to his fitness the subordinate Court should appoint. nam petitioned to withdraw the nomination naming another Tambiran. The subordinate Court made an order disallowing the withdrawal and after inquiry as to the fitness of the first named Tambiran appointed him to the office. The High Court on the Pandara's appeal decided the first nomination had been competently withdrawn and directed an inquiry as to the fitness of the person secondly named finding on the evidence that the first named was not fit. Held on the appeal of the Tambiran first named that the question as to his right was one that had arisen between the parties to the suit and related to the execution of the decree within the meaning of s 244 sub s (c) Civil Procedure Code and that he could appeal from the order made. PON NAMUALA TAMBIRAN v SIVAGANNA DESIKA GUNYA SAMBANDHA PANDARA SAMNADHI

In 1887 however she returned to his house and stayed with him for two months. She afterwards deserted him again. Thereupon the plaintiff filed a second suit for restitution of conjugal rights. Held that the suit was not barred either under s 13 or s 244 of the Code of Civil Procedure. 158 ———— Decree incapable of execution by reason of event subsequent to decree—Decree giving an option to the parties—A partition suit brought by a son against his father was referred to arbitration. On the 9th January 1890 the award was published and on the 27th March 1890 the defendants moved for and obtained a decree in terms of the award. By this decree it was ordered that in satisfaction of the plaintiff's claim the defendant should pay to him Rs 10,000 in the manner therein stated: Rs 40,000 to be paid forth with and the balance of Rs 60,000 to be paid upon the plaintiff delivering to the defendant certain specified property which included two vessels or bugloves called respectively the Nassi and Sambuk. In no event was defendant to be required to pay the Rs 65,000 before the 15th November 1890. At the date of the decree the vessel Sambuk was at sea on a voyage and on the 18th June 1890 while still on the voyage she was lost. On the 15th November 1890 the plaintiff's attorneys demanded payment of the balance of Rs 65,000. They offered to deliver the other properties specified in the decree but stated that the vessel Sambuk had been lost. They offered to pay its value which they estimated at Rs 10,000. The defendants however demanded the delivery of the buglow which they stated to be worth a very large sum. The defendant having under the circumstances refused to pay the Rs 65,000 the plaintiff applied for execution of the decree which was refused. He then obtained a rule calling on the defendant to show cause why the decree of the 27th March should not be amended or rectified by stating therein the amount of money to be paid to the defendant as an alternative if delivery of the vessel Sambuk could not be made such delivery having become impossible. That rule was discharged. The plaintiff then took out a summons calling on the defendant to show cause why an order should be made under s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code directing the plaintiff to pay to the first defendant in lieu of the delivery of the vessel Sambuk such sum of money as might be fixed by the Court as the value of a compensation for the loss of the vessel Sambuk in the decree mentioned and why an order should not be made that on payment of such sum and delivery of the other properties mentioned in the decree which the plaintiffs were to deliver the decree to the first defendant on payment of the latter to them of Rs 60,000 the first defendant pay to the plaintiffs Rs 65,000 and interest thereon from the 15th day of November 1890 mentioned in the said decree and in the event on its being that the first defendant was not bound to pay said sum of Rs 65,000 then why an order should be made that the property mentioned in the decree which the plaintiffs were to hand over to the first defendant on payment of Rs 60,000 should not be retained used and appropriated absolutely by the plaintiffs for their own use and benefit freed and charged of all claims on the part of the first defendant and why the first defendant should not be directed to withdraw the claim made by him to the effect of Rs 22,000 or thereabouts mentioned in the award of one Ahmed bin Essa Khaliffa and why further or other order as to the Court might see fit and the justice of the case may require should be made in the premises and in relation to the properties mentioned in the decree which were delivered over by the plaintiffs to the first defendant on receiving from him Rs 60,000 and why in alternative this suit should not be restored and placed on the board for trial. It was contended by the plaintiff that the questions raised in the summons were questions arising in execution to be dealt with by a Judge in chambers under s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code and that a fresh suit was not necessary. Held dismissing the summons that the application was not one in execution of a decree but was the question one arising in the course of execution of the decree but that the decree having become incapable of execution the summons asked the Judge to decide whether were the rights of the parties in consequence of non execution. Held also (as to the part of the summons asking for restoration of the suit) that the matters in issue in the suit had been fully heard and determined and the rights of all parties had been settled by the decree and consequently there was nothing further to be tried. The Court could not in this suit after passing a decree proceed to ascertain the rights of the parties under a state of facts quite different from those which appeared in the pleading and arising subsequently to the decree AHMED BIN SHAIK ESSA KHALIFFA v. 161. — Transfer of decree by operation of law—Representative of original decree holder—Right to appeal against order refusing execution—B died in May 1869 leaving his property to his executors in trust for the appellant P and he directed that the property should be assigned by them to the appellant as soon as he came of age. In August 1868 the executors filed this suit against L as manager of certain landed property belonging to the Halla Bhattia caste and known as Mibajan Wadi to recover certain loans made by them as executors to him as manager of the said wadi. On the 11th May 1870 while this suit was pending the executors assigned all the property of their testator to the appellant P. By the deed of assignment they assigned to him inter alia all moveable property debts claims and things in action whatsoever vested in them as such executors. No steps were taken subsequently to this assignment to make the assignee P a party to the suit which proceeded without amendment. On the 23rd January 1873 a decree was passed for the plaintiffs on the record for Rs 131 72 13 5 and it was declared that the said sum should be a first charge on the rents and income of the said wadi. Subsequently to this decree L opened an account in the name of the appellant P and from time to time made payments to him on account of the decree. The last of these payments was made on the 19th November 1884. None of these payments were certified to the Court. In 1885 the respondent L was appointed to the office of manager of the Halla Bhattia caste in the place of L the original defendant in the suit. On the 4th January 1886 his attorneys wrote to the appellant's attorneys offering to pay the appellant the balance due to him under the decree. Subsequently however he refused to make any payment to the appellant whereupon the appellant applied for execution of the decree against him as manager of the said wadi. He claimed to be a transferee of the decree under s 232 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882). His application was refused by the Judge in chambers. Held that the appellant was a transferee of the decree within the meaning of s 232 of the Civil Procedure Code. The decree had been transferred to him by operation of law. As such he was Subsequently M transferred the decree to other persons and the co-transferees applied under s 232 of the Civil Procedure Code to have their names substituted for those of the original decree holders. The judgment debtor opposed the application on the grounds that his name had not been substituted for those of the original decree holders who had transferred to him and that the transfers to M were impermissible as the instruments of transfer had not been registered at the place where the substantial portion of the mortgaged property was situate in accordance with s 20 of the Registration Act of 1877. It appeared that no notice had been issued to M under s 232 of the Civil Procedure Code that he was dead and that his legal representatives had not been cited as required by law. The application was allowed by the Courts below. Held that the matter involved questions arising between the parties to the decree or their representatives within the meaning of s 244 (c) of the Code and that the order allowing the application was therefore a decree within the definition of s 2 and was appealable as such. *GULZARI LAL v. Party—

Representative of a party—Auction purchaser—Order in summary inquiry—A purchaser at a Court sale is not a party or the representative of a party within the meaning of s 244 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV of 1882). He is therefore not bound by any order in the miscellaneous inquiry under s 280 281 or 282 of the Code. Nor is he bound by the specifications contained in the proclamation of sale of the claims of intervenors. Certain property was attached in execution of a decree. The defendants intervened and objected to the attachment on the ground that they held the property on permanent tenancy. Their objection was allowed and the Court made an order directing the property to be sold subject to the defendants' rights. In the proclamation of sale however it was stated that the Court did not guarantee the title of the intervenors. The plaintiff purchased the property at the Court sale. He then sued to eject the defendants. The defendants pleaded that the plaintiff had purchased subject to their rights as permanent tenants. Both the lower Courts rejected

rights of Hindu widow—Representative—After the death of a childless Hindu widow a lessee from her of property which had belonged to her husband obtained against her vendees of part of the same property a decree for damages for wrongfully keeping him out of possession. The effect of the decision was to decree the claim against the estate of the widow and to exempt from liability the judgment debtors personally and the property which they had purchased. In execution of the decree the said property was sold and was purchased by the decree-holder; one of the judgment debtors had died during the execution proceedings and her son was duly impleaded as her representative and he raised no objection to the attachment and sale. Subsequently this son sold his rights and interests in the property and his vendee sued the decree holder to recover possession on the ground that the decree being limited to the estate of the childless Hindu widow the defendant as purchaser could not acquire by the sale any rights superior to those of the widow that those rights had expired upon her death and left nothing to be sold and that on her death the property devolved upon the plaintiff's vendor and had thence passed to the plaintiff. Held that the plaintiff's vendor was a party to the suit within the meaning of s 244 (c) of the Civil Procedure Code and that he not having objected to the sale in execution of the decree neither he nor the plaintiff could go behind that sale or claim the property upon any title which he might have asserted in the execution proceedings and that the suit was barred by s 244. Ram Ghulam v Hazaro Kuar I L R 7 All 547 followed Bahors Lal v Gauri Sahai I L R 8 All. 620 distinguished. Mulmantri v Ashraf Ahmad I L R 9 All 605 Koop Lal Das v Bekan Meah I L R 15 Calc 437 and Kavanas Menon v Kunya Nayar I L R 10 Mad 117 referred to. RAGHUBAR DIAL v HAMID JAY

308 — Official Assignee—Attachment of property—Judgment debtor declared an insolvent—Claim by Official Assignee to attached property—Appeal from order disallowing claim—Stat 11 & 12 Vic s 21 ss 7 49—Representative of judgment debtor—A decree holder having attached the property of his judgment-debtors in execution of the decree obtained an order for sale of the attached property. Prior to sale the judgment debtors made an application to be declared insolvents and obtained an order under Stat 11 & 12 Vic c 21 s 7 by which their property was vested in the Official Assignee. An application was then made by the Official Assignee to the Court in which the execution of the decree was pending for the release of the property from attachment and that the property might be made over to him. The Court dismissed the application. On appeal the District Judge reversed the first Court's order. Held that the matter did not come before the Court of first instance under s. 49 of Stat 11 & 12 Vic c. 21 inasmuch as that section refers to cases where the insolvent's schedule has been filed and to debts or demands admitted therein and in the present case no schedule had been filed at the time of the Official Assignee's application and the Court could therefore only entertain the application under the provisions of the Civil Procedure Code relating to the execution of decrees. Held that the Official Assignee could not be held to be a representative of the judgment debtors within the meaning of s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code and his application was not one relating to the execution discharge or satisfaction of the decree. Held that the Court of first instance had only jurisdiction in the matter under s. 278 of the Code and disposed of it under that section and that the District Judge had no jurisdiction to entertain the appeal. KASHI PRASAD v MILLER

309 — Execution of decrees—Representatives of judgment-debtor—The word "representative" as used in cl (c) s. 244 of the Code of Civil Procedure means any person who succeeds to the right of any of the parties to the suit after the decree is passed. A Hindu widow mortgaged certain properties and afterwards by an ikramamah made them over to B the next heir. The ikramamah contained a condition that B was to be liable for the widow's debts. Subsequently the mortgagor brought a suit against the widow on the mortgage and joined B as a party on the ground that he was in possession of the mortgaged properties. That suit resulted in a money decree being passed on appeal by the High Court against the widow personally the property in the hands of B being held not to be liable. The case was taken on appeal to the Privy

Council and pending the hearing of that appeal the widow died and B was brought on the record as her legal representative. The decree of the High Court was ultimately confirmed by the Privy Council. In execution of the decree it was sought to make B liable to satisfy the amount out of the properties which he had obtained under the ikramamah the mortgagee not having been aware of the conditions of that document before the decree of the High Court. Held that so far as these properties were concerned he was not the legal representative of the widow as he inherited them as heir at law of her husband and that his title to them under the ikramamah was not that of a representative within the meaning of cl (c) of s 244. Held further that the question of B's liability under the ikramamah did not fall within the scope of the provisions of cl (c) of s 244 as being a question to be decided between the parties to the suit as although B was a party to the suit the only claim against him was that the property in his hands was liable as having been previously hypothecated and as the suit was dismissed so far as that claim was concerned it was not a question relating to the execution of the decree. *KAMESH WAR PERSHAD v. substituted as his representatives. In execution of the decree only the share which had stood recorded in the name of the deceased judgment debtor and which was in possession of J and L as his representatives, was sold and the decree holder then applied for sale of the other shares which had been attached. To this B objected under s 281 of the Civil Procedure Code claiming to be the owner of the shares in question. Before the hearing of her objection she died and L applied to have his name brought upon the record in her place for the purpose of supporting the objections. An order having been passed disallowing the objections which had been filed by B L applied to the High Court. A preliminary objection was taken on behalf of the decree-holder to the hearing of the appeal on the ground that as the first Court's order related to L's claim as the heir of B to have the shares entered in her name released from attachment it must be regarded as passed under s 281 of the Civil Procedure Code and as conclusive subject to L's bringing a suit to establish his right. On the other side it was contended that B being the representative of the deceased judgment debtor K the first Court's order must be regarded as passed under s 244 of the Code and the appeal would therefore be allowed. Held that the preliminary objection must prevail and the first Court's order must be regarded as passed under s 281 and not under s 244 of the Code inasmuch as L's claim which was rejected by it was nothing more than to come in as B's representative for the purpose of supporting her objections and it was in right of a third person whose interest he asserted to have passed to him that he prayed admission to the proceedings and his character was wholly distinct from that he filed as the legal representative of his deceased father. Because L happened, for the purpose of the execution proceeding to be his father's legal representative and to be liable to satisfy the decree to the extent of any assets which might have come to his hands it did not follow that any rights claimed by him through a third person must be dealt with and could only be dealt with between him and the decree holder in the execution proceedings. *Waked Ali v. Deceased judgment debtor—

Execution against a person not the legal representative—The defendants along with one N and C had brought a suit against one A in the Civil Court at Peshawar in the Punjab and obtained a decree on the 23rd July 1878 for Rs 05 545 12 0. In 1881 application for transfer of the decree to the Court at Moradabad for execution was made and it was granted, but no steps were taken thereupon. On the 12th June 1883 A died. On the 30th April 1884 the defendants again applied to the Court at Peshawar treating their judgment debtor as being then alive for a fresh certificate to execute their decree in the Moradabad district and obtained it. On the 20th August 1885 they made an application to the District Judge of Moradabad for execution of their decree and in it it was stated that the application was for execution against Ajudha Prasad and after his death against Angan Lal the own brother and Durga Kuar widow and Lachman Prasad and others sons of Ajudha Prasad residents of Kundarki; and the said Angan Lal at present residing at Umballa and employed in the Commissariat Transport Department judgment debtors. It was further stated that the judgment debtor was dead and his heirs are living and in possession of his estate and Angan Lal himself has realized Rs 937 4-9 due to the deceased judgment debtor from the Commissariat Department of Calcutta and appropriated the same therefore to that extent the person of the said Angan Lal was liable. Notification of this application was issued to Angan Lal as also to the other persons named therein. Angan Lal objected to the application as against him stating that although he was the brother of A deceased yet he always lived separate and carried on business separately and that there was no connection or partnership between him and the deceased judgment debtor and that he had no property of the deceased in his possession. Further that as A left issue it was wrong to call him an heir to A and take out execution process against him. In reply to these objections the judgment creditors (defendants) did not contend that Angan Lal was the legal representative of the deceased judgment debtor but treated him as a person in possession of a sum of money belonging to the deceased and therefore liable to the extent of the sum so received by him. The Subordinate Judge holding that Angan Lal was the brother of the deceased and had realized the amount of the Commissariat Office which he failed to prove that he paid to the deceased ordered execution to proceed against him. Angan Lal then instituted this suit to set aside the order of the Subordinate Judge. It was contended that the proceedings of the Subordinate Judge were held under s 244 of the Code and therefore no separate suit would be held that the contention must fail as the Subordinate Judge never treated the proceedings in execution against Angan Lal upon the footing that he was the legal representative of the deceased judgment debtor. Mahomed Aga Ali Khan v Balenkwad I L R 3 I A, 241 and Nadir Hossain v Bipen Chand Bazarat 3 C L R 437, were referred to ANGAN LAL v GUDAR MAL I L R, 10 All 479

of judgment debtor—Death of party to suit before final decree in appeal—Subsequent proceedings in execution taken against representatives of such party—A decree was given to the defendant (then plaintiff) in 1856 for possession of land and mesne profits against numerous defendants including one Dawan Rai. Some of the judgment debtors including Dawan Rai appealed to the Sadr Diwani Adalat but before the decree of the Sadr Diwani Adalat was passed, Dawan Singh died. No application was made to put any representative of Dawan Rai on the record but in 1881 (the amount of the mesne profits payable under the decree having been finally determined in 1877) certain persons were made parties as representatives of Dawan Rai in various proceedings in execution of the decree for mesne profits, which ended in the sale of certain property which had been of Dawan Rai in his lifetime. Subsequently the said representatives of Dawan Rai brought a suit to recover the property sold as above described on the ground that they were no parties to the decree under execution. purchased by the father of the plaintiff A who eventually obtained possession of it through the Court. The plaintiff B purchased privately the mahal Ekdhala from the mortgagors and from M some time after the date of the decree on the mortgage. That decree was in course of execution when the mortgagors died, and his estate came into the hands of the Administrator-General who on 13th August 1878 sold the decree to G defendant No 1. After this sale several applications were made to have the name of G substituted for that of the original decree holder but in none of these applications was any further step taken towards execution of the decree or any order made for substitution of the name of G until 18th July 1883 when after notice to the defendants under s. 232 of the Civil Procedure Code G's name was substituted in decree-holder and execution was taken out against the mortgaged property including Olipore and Ekdhala. The plaintiffs each claimed the mahal they had respectively purchased but their claims were disallowed. In suits brought by the plaintiffs for a declaration of their right to hold the properties free of the mortgage the Court found that G was only a benamadar so far as his purchase of the mortgage-decree was concerned. Held the plaintiff A being the purchaser at a public sale in execution of a decree was not the representative of the judgment debtors the mortgagors within the meaning of s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code but the case was different with respect to plaintiff B who claimed by private purchase and must be considered the representative of the judgment debtors within the meaning of that section. Dinendronath Sanayal v Ray Coomar Ghose L R 8 I L R 65 I L R 7 Cal 107 Anundmoyee Dosste v Dhondro Chander Mookerjee 14 Moore's I L R 101; 8 B L R 122 and Lalla Prabhulal v Mylne I L R 14 Cal 401 referred to GOUR SUNDAR LAHIRI v HEM CHUNDER CHOWDHURY GOUR SUNDAR LAHIRI v HAFIZ MOHAMMED ALI KHAN

The objection was allowed and the decree holder then sued for a declaration that the property belonged to the mortgagee judgment debtor and was liable to attachment and sale in execution of the decree. Held that, as no claim in the former suit was made against the objector personally or in a representative character but as regards her the only claim was virtually for a declaration that she was not entitled to the hypothecated property the decree affirmed her only so far as it negatived her alleged interest in that property and so far as it was sought to be enforced against other property she was a stranger to that suit and her objection must be taken to have been decided under ss. 8 and 250 of the Civil Procedure Code and the present suit was rightly brought under s. 253 and was not barred by s. 244. *Kameshwar Pershad v. 10. Settlement of decree without sanction by giving promissory note payable on demand—Note renewed from time to time—Suit on note—On the 4th December 1889 the plaintiffs obtained a decree against the defendants for Rs 941. The decree was made payable in eight days or on or before the 12th December 1889. On the 9th December 1889 i.e. before the decree was capable of execution it was settled by the defendants paying Rs 600 in cash and passing a promissory note for Rs 341 payable on demand and carrying interest at 3 per cent per mensem. The decree was satisfied and handed over to defendants and plaintiffs also endorsed the summons to that effect. That compromise was not sanctioned by the Court. On the 9th November 1892 and again on the 4th November 1895 the plaintiffs made up their account with defendants and obtained new promissory notes from them for the amount found due in renewal of the note passed in 1889. The present suit was brought on the note passed on the 4th November 1895 which was for Rs 315 and earned interest at 3 per cent per mensem. Held that the note sued on fell within the purview of s 257A of the Civil Procedure Code and was void and unenforceable under the provisions of that section. The consideration for the note given in 1889 was the agreement of the plaintiff to accept it in satisfaction of the decretal balance due to them. If that agreement was void the note given for the void consideration was void also. The note was not in fact the agreement but was given in performance of the agreement. HERRA NEMA v PRATOWJI DOSSABHOY I L R 22 Bom. 683

11 ————— Havala or under taking by a third party to pay decreed debt for the judgment debtor—Agreement incorporating the havala in substitution of the decree capable of execution at the date of the agreement—Suit on such agreement—The plaintiff obtained a money decree against the defendant H P and in execution thereof attached his property. Thereupon at H P's request five persons gave a havala or oral under taking to pay the amount of the decree and the attachment was removed. It appeared that some payment was made under the havala. Subsequently H P and the defendants Nos. 2 and 3 executed a bond to the plaintiff reciting the havala the payment thereunder and agreeing to pay the amount of the decree with interest. Neither the havala nor the bond was brought to the notice of the Court for sanction and the decree which was capable of execution was then destroyed. The plaintiff now sued to recover the debt due under the bond. The District Judge was of opinion that the part of the bond which contained a promise to pay interest was void but that in respect of the principal amount of the decree it was not void. On reference to the High Court — Held that the whole bond was void. The havala was an agreement such as is contemplated in para 1 of s 257A of the Civil Procedure Code and was void for want of the sanction of the Court under that section. The bond regarded as one in consideration of the havala or as an agreement for satisfaction of the decree was also void under para 2 of the same sections for a similar reason. VISHNU VISHWANATH v HIR PATIL I L R 12 Bom. 499

On the 3rd October 1885 the parties entered into an agreement whereby (inter alia) the time to pay the decreed debt was extended to five years from that date but no sanction of the Court was obtained. On the 18th February 1888 the parties applied to the Court to sanction the agreement of 1885. 13 ————— Agreement for or to give time for satisfaction of judgment debt—Agreement without sanction of Court—Illegal contract—Contract Act (IX of 1872) s 23—Consideration—The plaintiff obtained a decree against the defendant under which the judgment debtor was liable to pay the amount by instalments with interest at 4 per cent. Eventually the defendant failing to pay the plaintiff accepted a bond executed jointly by the defendant and T his father by which they both became liable for the amount of the decree with interest at 18½ per cent. In a suit on the bond it was contended that the bond was void under s 257A of the Civil Procedure Code as being an agreement to give time for the satisfaction of the judgment debt made for no consideration and without the sanction of the Court and also without such sanction providing for payment of a sum in excess of the amount due under the decree that it was void within the meaning of s 23 of the Contract Act as being forbidden by or of a nature to defeat the provisions of s 257A of the Civil Procedure Code and that consequently the suit on it was not maintainable. Held that s 257A of the Code was not applicable. That section was framed to prohibit the enforcement of an agreement of the kind mentioned therein if made without the sanction of the Court in execution of the decree but was not intended to take away the right of parties of entering into a fresh contract either for payment of the judgment debt to give time for such payment or for the payment of a larger sum than may be covered by the decree if it be for a proper consideration. In this case the consideration for the bond was a lawful consideration it could not be said that because satisfaction of the decree was not certified to the Court there was no consideration. Held also the bond was not void under s 23 of the Contract Act. Semle—The words any law in that section refer to some substantive law and not to an adjective law, such as the Procedure Code is. HICKUM CHAND OSWAL v TANAR UNNESSA BROS (I L R 18 Cal. 804

No sanction for the bond was obtained under s 257A of the Civil Procedure Code. The adjustment was secured under s 28. The plaintiff now sued upon the bond. 16 ——— Civil Procedure Code Amendment Act (VII of 1885) s 2—Adjustment of a decree. Suit upon—Agreement to extend time for enforcing decree by execution—On the 16th July 1885 S obtained a decree against A for Rs 15 with costs. On the next day A paid S Rs 100 in part satisfaction of the decree and induced A to accept a bond by which he (S) gave up the costs and by which A was to pay the balance of the decree with interest at the end of eight months. S sued upon the bond. A contended that the bond was void under s 257A of the Civil Procedure Code and that the suit would not lie. Held that the suit would lie. Since the amendment made in s 28 by Act VII of 1885 such payments or adjustments may be recognized by a Civil Court except when executing the decree and therefore a suit based upon such a payment or adjustment should be admitted. The concluding clause of s 28 has no direct bearing on s 257A as it relates to a different subject matter. Quare—Whether s 257A relates exclusively to agreements to extend the time for enforcing decrees by execution as ruled by the Calcutta High Court or is applicable to all agreements according to the view taken by the Bombay High Court? Jahar Mahomed v Modan Sonar I L R. 11 Calo 671. Madras Anant v Chitra P J for 1881 p 315. Ganesh Shrinam v Abdullah g I L R. 8 Bom 539. Pandurang Ramchandrar v Narayan I L R. 8 Bom 800. and Dattatray v Pandu I L R. 9 Bom 176 referred to. SWAMINATH NARAYAN DESHPANDE v KASHINATH KRISHNA MUTALIK DESAI

It only prevents such agreements being enforced in a Court of Law. Where such an agreement to give time never sanctioned by the Court as required by s 257A formed part of the consideration for a bond and had actually been enjoyed by the obligee of the bond—Held that such consideration not being in its nature illegal and not having as a fact failed there was no reason why the obligee should not enforce the terms of the bond. BANK OF BENGALE v VYASMOY GAWGI

23 — Agreement for

satisfaction of judgment debt—A money decree was passed against a zamindar by the High Court in 1883 and it was transferred to the District Court for execution. The decree holder attached and prepared to bring to sale certain villages of the judgment debtor. These villages were included in a mortgage subsequently executed by the judgment debtor in favour of third parties. Both before and after the mortgage the decree holder received from the zamindar certain sums in consideration of his agreeing to postponements of the sale. Also it was agreed between them at a date subsequent to the mortgage that interest should be computed at a higher rate than that provided by the decree. Subsequently the decree holder sought to bring the land to sale and in computing the amount then due gave credit for none of the sums so received and calculated interest at the enhanced rate. The mortgagee objected that the computation was erroneous in both these respects and the District Judge upheld his objection. The judgment debtor took no part in the contest. Held that the District Court not being the Court which passed the decree had no power to sanction the agreements under s. 257A and that the decision was right. PARAMANANDA DAS v MANABEEN DOSSETI

24. — Agreement to give time to the judgment debtor—Agreement not sanctioned by the Court—A judgment debtor asked for time to pay the decretal amount. The decree holders agreed to give time on condition that the judgment debtor gave them a hundi for Rs 500 that sum representing a portion of the decree holder's claim which had been dismissed as barred by limitation. The judgment debtor gave the hundi but the sanction of the Court was not obtained to the transaction. In a suit by the decree-holders to recover the money secured by the hundi given under the circumstances mentioned above it was held that the transaction was one contemplated by s. 257A of the Code of Civil Procedure and that as it had not been made with the sanction of the Court it could not be enforced and the suit should be dismissed. Hukum Chand Oswal v Takarunnassa Bibi I L R. 16 Cal. 504

12. — Adjustment out of Court—Decree holder becoming purchaser—A decree holder who was not barred by lapse of time in seeking to execute his decree was opposed by the judgment debtor on the ground that the decree had been seized and sold by the Deputy Collector in execution of the decree of that functionary's Court and that he himself (the judgment debtor) had become the purchaser thereof. Held that these proceedings amounted to an adjustment out of Court which under s 206 Act VIII of 1859 could not be recognized by the Court unless certified to by the judgment creditor himself. BHARUT CHUNDER ROY v. 14. — Adjustment out of Court—Duty of execution creditor—Presumption—K an execution creditor of C applied to the Court by which the decree was passed and caused C to be imprisoned under it. C then entered into a compromise on certain terms with K for the adjustment of the decree and K thereupon but with certifying the terms of such adjustment to the Court petitioned for the release of C who was accordingly released. Subsequently K again applied to the Court to compel satisfaction of the whole amount of the decree against C. This application was opposed by C on the ground that an adjustment of the decree had taken place between him and K. The Judge how ever refused to enter into the question of the adjust ment as the terms of it had not been certified to the Court under s 206 of the Civil Procedure Code. Held that the Judge was in error that it was the duty of K on applying for the release of C to certify the adjustment to the Court that it would be unjust to allow him to take advantage of his own omission to do so and that not having done so the presumption against him was that the decree had been satisfied in full but that under the circumstances it would be the most equitable course to direct the Judge to enquire into the terms of the adjustment. The terms of this compromise were not certified to the Court under s 206 of the Civil Procedure Code. Held that this compromise having been effected after the decree in favour of B had been reversed did not come within the meaning of s 206 and was therefore a good defence to the suit of H. HARI SADASHIV DIXSNI v. 16 ———— *Adjustment made out of Court—Payment into Court—Under the Civil Procedure Code s 206 a debtor under a money decree can at any time bring the amount of his debt into Court to be paid to the judgment creditor and by analogy any other person against whom a decree is made for the delivery of moveable or immovable property has an equal right to relieve himself from further vexation by making satisfaction with the knowledge of the Court in such mode as the circumstances of the special case admit. instalments, does not amount to a varying of the decree itself. A having obtained against B a decree for the payment of money a kistbandi was inserted in the decree by which it was arranged that the amount of the decree should be paid by instalments of Rs 5000. A considerable remission was allowed to the judgment-debtor and some reduction was made in the amount of interest payable. The kistbandi contained an express provision that in default of payment of three consecutive kists, the whole amount due under the bond was to become at once realisable and it also provided that in case of default the amounts due were to be recovered by execution to which the judgment-debtor was to make no objection. Certain instalments having fallen due the judgment-creditor sought to enforce the kistbandi by execution. Held that he was entitled to do so that he was not bound to bring a regular suit and that a provision in the bond by which payment might be enforced against property which could not have been attached and sold in execution of the decree did not prevent the decree holder from proceeding by execution so long as he did not seek to enforce that provision. AMEER TUNISA KHATOON v. of a decree dated the 14th June 1878 the parties, on the 11th January 1881 entered into an agreement which was registered and filed in the Court executing the decree. The deed recited that the decree was under execution and that a mortgage bond dated the 1st December 1873 in favour of the judgment debtor by a third party had been attached and advertised for sale and that the decree holder and judgment debtor had arranged the following method of satisfying the decree that the judgment-debtor should make over the said bond to the decree holder in order that he might bring a suit thereon at his own expense against the obligor and realize the amount secured by the bond and out of the amount realized satisfy the decree under execution with costs and future interest together with all costs of the suit to be brought against the obligor and together with a sum due by the judgment debtor to the decree holder under a note of hand for Rs 200 with interest and other details which need not be stated. On the same day that this deed was executed the decree-holder filed a petition in the Court to the effect that under the agreement an arrangement had been made for payment of the judgment debt by which the judgment-debtor made over to him the bond advertised for sale in order that the petitioner should file a suit under it at his own cost against the obligor and realize the debt due under the decree in execution with interest and costs and he prayed that the sale to be held that day might be postponed and the application for execution struck off for the present and the previous attachment maintained and stating that after realization of the amount entered in the bond advertised for sale an application for execution would be duly filed. On this order was that the execution case be struck off the file and the attachment maintained. On the 24th December 1883 the decree holder applied for execution of the decree alleging that the judgment debtor had failed to make over the bond to him according to the agreement. The judgment-debtor objected that the decree was no longer capable of execution having been superseded by the agreement of the 11th January 1881 and that the application was barred by limitation the previous application being dated the 9th November 1880. PER OLDFIELD J.—That the agreement of the 11th January 1881 did not contemplate and had not the effect of cancelling the decree and substituting for it a new contract inasmuch as the deed contained nothing to the effect that the decree was superseded and all it did was to provide means by which the decree together with another small sum due by the judgment-debtor to the decree holder might be satisfied without having recourse to the sale of the bond attached and the effect would be that on realization satisfaction would be certified in whole or in part to the Court executing the decree. Further if the arrangement was to be regarded as within the meaning of an adjustment of the decree under s. 28 of the Civil Procedure Code it could only be recognized by the Court when certified by the decree holder or judgment-debtor and in this case the only certification in which was made was by the decree holder by his petition of the 11th January 1881 which was in —A decree passed against the defendant in a suit dated 19th March 1877 directed that the plaintiff should recover the decree money by instalments agreeably to the term of the deed of compromise and he in case of default should recover in a lump sum. The compromise mentioned in the decree provided that the amount in dispute should be paid in ten instalments, from 1284 to 1294 Fushl the first to be paid on the 27th May 1877 (1284 Fushl) and the remaining nine instalments on Jaith Purnamashi of each succeeding Fushl year. On the last September 1883 the decree holder applied for execution of the decree alleging that the first four instalments had been paid, but that any of the succeeding instalments and they claimed to recover under the terms of the decree the fifth and all the remaining instalments in a lump sum. The judgment-debtors contended that the application was barred by limitation as they had not paid a single instalment and more than three years had elapsed from the date of the first default and that even if the first four instalments had been paid, such payments could not be recognized by the Court as they had not been certified. A suit will not lie to enforce an uncertified agreement of adjustment of a decree against a judgment debtor the consideration for which is that it shall operate in satisfaction of the decree as there is in that case no consideration which the Court can recognize and therefore no valid consideration for the judgment debtor's agreement. The plaintiff was the assignee of a decree obtained by one O K against the defendants on the 5th May 1883. By that decree O K was declared entitled to recover Rs 951 5 with interest at nine per cent. from the defendants and payment was ordered to be made to him of the said sum by weekly instalments of Rs 200. In order to secure the payment of the said instalments the defendants were required to execute a mortgage to O K of certain property with power to him to sell the same and to execute the decree for the whole amount in case of default for six months. O K assigned the decree to the plaintiff in the present suit and subsequently to the assignment (viz. on the 21st July 1883) the defendants executed to the plaintiff the mortgage in which the present suit was brought. The mortgage-deed after reciting the above facts stated that the defendants had agreed to satisfy the amount of the decree and it contained a covenant by the defendants that they would pay Rs 200 5-6 with interest at six per cent. by monthly instalments of Rs 400 from the 21st August 1883

5 ——— Opportunity of and refusal to obey decrees—Enforcing execution of decrees—No order for enforcing a decree by imprisonment under s. 200 of the Code of Civil Procedure should be made until the defendant has had an opportunity of obeying the decree or has contumaciously refused to obey it. UMED KHA v NAGENDAS NOROTAMOLA

11 ——— Decree for joint possession and management of property—Attachment for disobedience to decrees—Civil Procedure Code 1877 s 260—By a decree relating to certain joint property belonging to the plaintiff and defendant but which had previously been held in the sole name of the defendant it was directed that the plaintiff and defendant should jointly manage the property and that the names of both should appear in all papers connected with such property. The plaintiff subsequently applied to have his name registered in the Collectorate but was opposed by the defendant who it appeared also allowed the amiable of the estate to continue to use his sole name. Held that the Court had under the circumstances jurisdiction under s. 260 of the Civil Procedure Code to attach the defendant's property until he had obeyed the decree by having the joint names of himself and the plaintiff inserted in all documents belonging to the estate. GOURI PRASAD MOITRA v BROHA NATH SANYAL

2. ——— Application for money deposited in Court—Question for Court exercising decree—Separate s 1—The plaintiffs, having obtained decrees on certain hundis against K and P applied under Act VIII of 1859 s 237 for payment of certain moneys which had been deposited in Court in a suit in which one D was the plaintiff and which had been attached by them. The ground of their application was that D had recovered a decree on certain hundis which had been fraudulently transferred to him by K and P. The Munsif holding that the question of the ownership of the decree could not be determined in the miscellaneous department referred the applicants to regular suits. These were accordingly instituted and the transfer to D declared to be fraudulent and colourable. Held that the question of the title of the plaintiffs as against D to have their debt paid out of the money in deposit ought to have been decided in the Court in which the money was in deposit. The Munsif was in error in directing the applicants to a regular suit. PERSHAD v GUJADHUR RAM

KASHER LALL & AMZER JAY 2 N W. 347

2. ——— Arrangement for instalments extending over twelve years.—Where a Collector recommended that the lands of a judgment debtor should be exempted from auction sale and that the judgment-debt should be satisfied by money instalments extending over a period of twelve years and the Judge on the matter being referred to the Civil Courts for auction and approval, in sending the proceedings to the Munsif intimated that the arrangement was a proper one and the Munsif in his order referred to this opinion of the Judge—Held that the recommendation of the Collector should have been dealt with by the Court executing the decree in the exercise of its own judgment and not in deference to the opinion expressed by the Judge who exceeded his jurisdiction in interfering in the matter. 1. — Suit against public officer—Notice of action Form of—In a suit against the Deputy Magistrate of A and the Deputy Magistrate of B for damages for having in bad faith and maliciously caused the plaintiff to be confined in hajat, the plaintiff served a notice under s. 424 of the Civil Procedure Code on the defendants to the effect that the Deputy Magistrate acting in concert with the intention of oppressing the plaintiff had wilfully and improperly and illegally kept him in hajat and thereby caused him injury. Held that the notice sufficiently stated the cause of action within the terms of s. 424 of the Civil Procedure Code it not being necessary that a notice under that section should be read with the strictness with which a plaint should be read in regard to the statement of the cause of action

3 ——— Suit against public officer in respect of acts done by him in his official capacity—Notice of suit—Suit for damages against public officer—Trespass—Misjoinder of causes of action—Amendment of plaint—The plaintiff sued the defendant a public officer to recover damages for two distinct acts (viz wrongful arrest and trespass) alleged to have been illegally and maliciously done by the defendant on two different occasions and claimed one lump sum as damages for both the acts no permission to amend the plaint was asked for in the lower Court. On the 21st of October 1895 the plaintiff instituted this suit having on the 18th of September 1895 served the defendant with a notice under s 424 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882). Held that the former act (viz the plaintiff's arrest) was an act done by the defendant in his official capacity and was clearly of the kind contemplated by s 424 of the Civil Procedure Code under which two months notice to the defendant would be necessary previous to the institution of the suit and that the suit was rightly dismissed by the lower Court for want of such notice. Shahunshah Begum v. Fergusson I L R 7 Cal 499 distinguished. Quare—Whether the latter act (viz the trespass into the plaintiff's house) on the allegations in the plaint was an act done by the Magistrate in his official capacity and whether a notice under s 424 of the Civil Procedure Code would be necessary previous to suing for damages for such an act. Held further that as the two acts were mixed up together in the plaint and one lump sum claimed as damages for both and as no permission to amend the plaint was asked for in the lower Court so as to convert the suit into one for damages with reference to the trespass only the plaint ought not to be allowed to be amended on appeal to the High Court. JOGENDRANATH ROY v. The first Court (AMER ALI J) gave the plaintiff a decree. Held on appeal (reversing the decision of AMER ALI J) that whether or not the words in respect of an act purporting to be done by him in his official capacity relate only to a public officer and not to the Secretary of State no suit whatever is maintainable against the Secretary of State unless the notice prescribed by s 424 of the Code of Civil Procedure has been given and that therefore the present suit could not be maintained. SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA IN COUNCIL v. 19 ——— Reversal of decree on appeal by one defendant—A and B were sued on a joint liability to pay rent. A did not defend. B did and a decree passed against both. 20 ——— Main ground of decree affecting all defendants—The plaintiff sued on a mortgage bond executed by the first defendant. The second defendant who claimed the property under a mortgage from the first defendant was admitted and set out on his own application but afterwards excluded from the suit. If it was done he had incurred certain costs which by the Munsif's decree he was ordered to bear himself. Upon appeal by the first defendant the Civil Judge found that the mortgage bond sued upon was not proved dismissed the suit and ordered the plaintiff to pay all costs those of the second defendant included. Held that under s 337 of the Civil Procedure Code it was competent to the Civil Judge so to modify the Munsif's decree as the main ground of the whole decision—the validity of the mortgage bond—affected all the defendants in common, and the appeal of the first defendant and the decision of the Appellate Court had reference to that common ground. PERA BALU VINAYAGAYA REDDI v ABDUL KHADIR (4 Mad. 26)

21 ——— Suit on bond—Appeal by one of several defendants—In a suit for recovery of Rs 300 due on a bond the defendants denied the execution of the bond and the receipt of the consideration. N C A who claimed under a mokuran title and alleged that he was in receipt of the rents from the rayats was made a party under s 73 Act VIII of 1869. The Munsif passed a decree in favour of the plaintiff. On appeal by N C A which was heard and decided by the Subordinate Judge on reference by the District Judge the decree of the first Court was reversed and the suit dismissed. On appeal to the High Court—Held that N C A was properly

[ 3 N. W., 199 ]

26. — Persons not parties to proceedings in appeal not bound by the result of those proceedings—Decrees in three separate suits for the partition of a certain estate having been referred to the Collector of Patna for execution under the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882) s. 205 B and R (brothers of the first appellant) who were parties to the suits objected to the Collector's mode of partition and applied to the Court to set aside the Collector's scheme and to direct a fresh partition. The Subordinate Judge of Vengurda granted the application and set aside the partition ordered by the Collector. Against this order P. who was plaintiff in one of the suits appealed to the District Court and in the appeal he made B alone the respondent. The District Court reversed the order of the Subordinate Judge and upheld the order of the Collector. Thereupon B preferred a second appeal to the High Court against the decision of the District Court. To this appeal neither R nor his brother the present appellant were made parties. The High Court having confirmed the decision of the District Court proceedings were taken to carry out the partition according to the Collector's original scheme. The appellant objected on the ground that the Collector's scheme

had been set aside by the Subordinate Judge and that the appellant had not been a party to the proceedings in either of the Appellate Courts. He contended that he was therefore not bound by the decisions of the Appellate Courts and that the order of the Subordinate Judge setting aside the partition ordered by the Collector was still in force so far as he was concerned. He therefore applied that the property should be divided in accordance with that order. His application was rejected by the Court of first instance as time barred inasmuch as more than a year had elapsed since the date of the order of the Subordinate Judge and during that time the applicant had taken no steps to enforce the order. On appeal the Acting District Judge confirmed the order of the lower Court holding that the order of the Subordinate Judge was no longer in force having been set aside by the High Court. On second appeal to the High Court—Held that the appellant was not bound by the final decision of the High Court. The original order being in his favour he could not be deprived of the benefit of that order without having the opportunity to defend it. Not having been a party to the proceedings in appeal he was not affected by the result of those proceedings. Where there are several respondents before the Court of first appeal though one of them may represent his fellows in a further appeal he cannot represent a person who was not his co-respondent and against whom therefore no decree could have been made on a point common to the two or on any point at all. DEV GOPAL SAVANT v. 27. — Appeal on full Court fee from de res dismisses suit in part—Remand of whole case though no cross appeal or object one preferred—Dismissal of whole suit on remand—High Court competent in second appeal to consider validity of remand order not specially appealed—Civil Procedure Code ss. 544 551—A plaintiff whose suit had been decreed in part appealed from so much of the first Court's decree as was adverse to him and stamped his memorandum of appeal with a stamp which would have covered an appeal from the whole decree. The defendant did not appeal or file cross-objections. The lower Appellate Court remanded the whole case to the first Court under s. 562 of the Civil Procedure Code the plaintiff not appealing under s. 558 (25) from the order of remand. The first Court then dismissed the whole suit and on appeal by the plaintiff the lower Appellate Court confirmed the decree. On a second appeal to the High Court—Held (i) that the High Court was competent to consider the validity or propriety of the order of remand though it had not been specifically appealed against; (ii) that the order of remand was ultra vires so far as it related to that part of the first Court's decree which was favourable to the plaintiff the lower Appellate Court not having jurisdiction in the absence of any appeal or objection by the defendant to disturb that part of the decree.

29 ———— Power of Appellate Court to alter decree on appeal by one party—Madras Civil Courts Act 1878—Jurisdiction of Munsif—Suit for partition and mesne profits—N sued S and others for partition of a share of certain land and claimed mesne profits from other defendants who were tenants of the land. S obtained a decree by consent for her share and a sum of Rs 93 was decreed to her against the tenants for mesne profits. Against this decree the tenants appealed. The Subordinate Judge finding that the subject matter of the suit the land of which partition was claimed exceeded the jurisdiction of the Munsif reversed the decree of the Munsif and directed the plaintiff to be returned for presentation in the proper Court. It was contended, on appeal to the High Court that the Subordinate Judge could not set aside the decree against the tenants for mesne profits. Held that as the Munsif's Court had no jurisdiction to entertain the suit for partition it could make no decree for mesne profits and therefore the Subordinate Judge had power to set it aside. NAGAMMA v SUBBA [I L R. 11 Mad. 197]

It is only when the decree appealed against has proceeded upon a ground common to all the defendants that is when the Court below has made a decree against several defendants upon a finding which applies equally to all of them that under s 544 any one of the defendants may appeal against the whole decree and the Appellate Court may reverse or modify that decree in favour of all the defendants. Protap Chunder Dutt v Kooraniasa Bibee 14 W R. 150 referred to. PERMAN MAL v KRANT SINGH I L R. 20 All 8

The plaintiffs appealed and the case was remanded to the Court of first instance under s 562 of the Code of Civil Procedure. One of the defendants appealed against the order of remand to the High Court which set aside the order of remand and restored the decree of the first Court. An appeal was preferred by one of the defendants who claimed to be the tenant of the premises comprised in the loan and another who had a loan from him. The first mentioned appellant withdrew from the appeal which however was prosecuted by the other and the Appellate Court reversed the decree. 1. — Hearing of appeal ex parte
—The plaintiff sued to recover possession of certain immovable property sold to him by the first defendant a Hindu widow. The second defendant answered that his father and the first defendant's husband were undivided brothers and that as a childless widow she had no right to sell the property. Both the lower Courts upheld the sale as absolute on the ground that she was competent to make it as widow of a separate Hindu. The District Judge heard the appeal ex parte under s. 551 of the Civil Procedure Code. The High Court on second appeal held that the decrees of the lower Courts were unsustainable as they did not contain the limitation pointed out above and remanded the case for the trial of the issue
whether there were any such special circumstances
as would justify the absolute sale by the first defendant to the plaintiff. The High Court were also of opinion that the District Judge ought not to have

Patent for the High Court of the N W Provinces has been superseded in those cases only to which s 575 of the Civil Procedure Code properly and without straining language applies. There are many cases to which s 575 even with the aid of s 617 does not apply and to these s 27 of the Letters Patent is still applicable. One of the cases to which s 575 of the Code does not apply is where a preliminary objection being taken to the hearing of a first appeal before the High Court on the ground that the appeal is time barred the Judges of the Division Bench differ in opinion as to whether the appellant has shown sufficient cause within the meaning of s 6 of the Limitation Act (XV of 1877) for not presenting the appeal within the prescribed period. The decision of such a preliminary objection is not a hearing of the appeal but precedes the hearing or determines that there is no appeal which the Court can hear or decide. Where such a preliminary objection is allowed it cannot be said that the Court which by reason of the Limitation Act has no jurisdiction to hear the appeal should nevertheless affirm the decree of the Court below. In 1888 he attached the mortgaged property in execution of the decree whereupon the defendant intervened and applied to have the attachment removed on the ground that prior to the attachment she had purchased the land under a registered deed of sale dated the 23rd June 1888. Her application was rejected on the 24th September 1888. Subsequently the judgment debtors applied and obtained the Court's permission to sell the land by private contract and on the 1st November 1888 the plaintiff purchased it and withdrew his application for execution on the 20th November 1888. In 1889 the plaintiff brought this suit against the defendant to obtain the removal of certain portions of a culvert erected by her on the land. The defendant pleaded that she was the owner of the property having purchased it on the 23rd June 1888. The Subordinate Judge passed a decree for the plaintiff on the ground that though the plaintiff's sale deed was not entitled to preference over the defendant's still as she had taken no steps to establish her right to the property in a regular suit after application for the removal of the plaintiff's attachment had been rejected effect could not be given to her purchase. On appeal by the defendant the decree was reversed and the plaintiff preferred a second appeal. Held confirming the appellate decree that when the plaintiff withdrew his attachment on the 20th November 1888 the parties were restored to the status quo ante. The object of the claim which was preferred by the defendant was as contemplated by s 28 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1852) to obtain the removal of the attachment and when that attachment was removed by the judgment creditor's own act there was no longer an attachment or any proceeding in execution of which the order could operate to the prejudice of the claimant and therefore there was no necessity for her to bring a suit to set aside the order. The defendant's title to the property having been acquired on the 23rd June 1888 was superior to the plaintiff's which was not acquired before November 1888. GOPAL PURUSHOTAM v BAI DIVALI L. L. R. 18 Bom. 241

46. Suit to set aside order removing attachment—Suit for declaration of title—Adverse possession—Civil Procedure Code (1852) s 293—The plaintiff obtained a decree against I and in execution attached the property in dispute. The defendants intervened and obtained an order for the removal of the attachment on the 11th August 1888. On the 13th August 1889 the plaintiff instituted this suit for a declaration that the property belonged to his judgment debtor (I) and was such as was liable to attachment and sale. The defendants pleaded that they had been in possession of the property for more than twelve years prior to the institution of the suit and that the suit was therefore barred. The Judge rejected the plaintiff's claim. Held reversed, the decree that the suit being brought under s 293 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1852) it was a suit to set aside the order of 11th August 1888 directing the removal of the attachment and should be determined by ascertaining the rights of the parties at the date of that order. As the defendants had not at that date acquired a title to the property by adverse possession for twelve years the plaintiff was entitled to a decree. HARISHANKAR JEDHAJI v NARAYAN HARSAN I. L. The goods were to be sold on arrival on I's account and the proceeds credited to him as against the advances made by the payment of the hundis. On the arrival of goods at Bombay they were attached by B S & Co who had obtained decrees against P. Held that F H & Co were entitled to the goods. They had made specific advances against the goods. B S & Co as attaching creditors occupied the same position as P himself and had no better claim to the goods than he had and if he had attempted to prevent the goods reaching the hands of F H & Co who at his request had made specific advances against them he would have been restrained by injunction. Held also that at the date of attachment the goods were in possession of P by the railway company on account of or in trust for F H & Co in the sense in which that expression is used in s 280 of the Civil Procedure Code. VELJI HIRJI v BHARNAL SHRIJAL

Code (Act III of 1892) ss 278 293—Attachment of same property in execution of decrees obtained by different creditors—Claim made in one suit to attached property under s 278—Order made under s 293—Suit by claimant to establish right—The first and second defendants obtained a decree in suit No 1548 of 1892 against E described as the owner of the Wahlan Mills and attached d property on the mill premises. Twelve other creditors also brought twelve other similar suits and obtained decrees against other persons who were also described as owners of the Wahlan Mills and attached the same property. In suit No 1544 of 1897 I M (the present plaintiff) under s 278 of the Civil Procedure Code claimed the property. His claim was disallowed and he was ordered to bring a suit under s 293. No claim or order was made in the case of the other twelve suits. I M now sued in pursuance of the above order to recover his property and he included as defendants not merely those defendants (Nos 1 and 2) who had been plaintiffs in suit No 1548 of 1897 but also those who had been plaintiffs in the twelve other suits, and who had attached the property in execution of their decrees. It was objected that no suit would lie against the latter as in those suits no claim had been made to the goods which they had attached, and no order made under s 293. Civil Procedure Code. Held that the suit lay against the defendant (other than Nos 1 and 2) although no claim had been made or order passed under s 291 of the Civil Procedure Code. The summary remedy given by s 28 of the Civil Procedure Code is alternative to the remedy by way of suit. The object of s 28 is not to let a claimant of

Civil Procedure

*Code (1892) ss 279 280 291—Attachment—Striking off—Execution proceedings—Question of nature of possession in claim suit—B instituted a suit in the Subordinate Judge's Court Cuttack on the 21st of November 1887 against R for possession of the Dakham Pareah Muth at Puri with the properties appertaining thereto and obtained a decree on the 20th April 1889. Execution having been applied for by B it was stayed pending the appeal to the High Court upon R giving security. The decree of the Subordinate Judge's Court was set aside by the High Court but restored by the Privy Council and B was put in possession of the Muth with its properties in execution of the last mentioned decree between the 23rd of April and the 3rd of June 1890. Subsequent to the institution of the above suit A instituted a suit for recovery of a certain sum of money against R and obtained a decree and in execution thereof caused the attachment of the immovable properties now in dispute on the 18th September 1890 and the application was dismissed for default and subsequently after the institution and dismissal of various proceedings in execution an order for sale of the properties attached on the 18th of September 1890 was applied for and obtained by A on the 15th of April 1893. B then put in his claim on the 23rd of May 1893 and it was disallowed on the 9th of September following. B moved the High Court under s 15 of the Charter Act (24 & 25 Vict c 104) and s 622 Civil Procedure Code. Held that the striking an execution proceeding off the file is an act which may a limit of different interpretation according to the circumstances under which it is done and no general rule can be laid down which would govern all cases of that kind but having regard to the circumstances of the present case that the Court below had no opportunity of considering the circumstances under which the several execution proceedings were dismissed it could not be held that there was no embargo on attachment and that the order of the Court below was bad in law. Held further that the lower Court was wrong in holding that the decree obtained by B in the Subordinate Judge's Court did not show that he had an interest in the attached property merely because it was not final but had been appealed against. Torre v Cole ss 280 and 291 the words some interest must be taken to imply such interest as would make the possession of the judgment debtor possession not on his own account but on account of or in trust for the claimant. Held also that it cannot be said that the property is in dispute which was admitted in the possession of the judgment debtor at the date of the attachment were in his possession not as his own property but on account of the claimant. to attached property what the Code of Civil Procedure provides in a summary investigation into the question of possession and the question of title is required to be gone into only so far as it may be necessary to determine whether the person in possession holds such possession as agent of or as trustee for another. Having regard to the facts that K the creditor brought her suit after the institution of the suit by B the claimant and also that the money covered by K's decree was borrowed by B for the purpose of paying Government revenue due on account of the properties of the mortgagor the questions that arise are whether the doctrine of lis pendens applies and whether the decree-holder can succeed upon the principle that a debt contracted for legal necessity by a mortgagor de facto is recoverable from the mortgaged property in the hands of the mortgagor de jure? These questions do not come within the scope of an investigation under the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure relating to claims to attached property. SHAWAN I AMATJ DAS v KHETTU MOVI DASH [C W N 617]

tor for execution The Mamlatdar under the orders of the Collector put up for sale certain immovable property belonging to the judgment-debtors The sale was confirmed by the Mamlatdar with the sanction of the Collector Some time afterwards the auction purchaser applied to the Collector for a certificate of sale but the Collector refused the certificate and set aside the sale on the ground that the purchaser was a relative of the decree-holder and had really purchased the property on his behalf without the permission of the Court Against this proceeding
of the Collector the purchaser made an application
first to the Subordinate Judge who had transferred the decree to the Collector for execution and then to the District Court. But both Courts declined to entertain his application on the ground of want of jurisdiction. Held on an application to the High Court that the subordinate Judge had jurisdiction on to deal with the application and to revise the Collector's proceedings in execution. Held also that the Collector has authority through his subordinate put up for sale the judgment-debtor's property and confirmed the sale had in that way completely executed the decree so far as he could and it was so far functus officio. His duty was to make a return to the Court of what he had done. After confirmation of the sale he could not set it aside. Per WEST J.—The Collector like the Nazir in India is a ministerial officer when he executes a decree. He like the Nazir must carry out the decree of a Civil Court in general subjection to the judicial direction of the Court of whose authority the coercive power exercised by him rests and which alone can deal judicially with the questions that arise in execution. His proceedings and orders are subject accordingly to revision and correction on the application of a party aggrieved whenever he misconceives the decree or acts illegally in giving effect to it. He is limited strictly to the precise line of activity laid down for him in the Code and the order is under it and in cases of error or doubt it is the Court that must determine whether he as its ministerial officer has or has not transgressed his powers. Per BIRDWOOD J.—A sale made by a Collector under Ch. XIX of the Civil Procedure Code is subject to confirmation by the Civil Court under s. 312. As soon as the Collector has exercised or performed the power or duties conferred or imposed upon him by s. 321 to 325 of the Code he is functus officio. If he has sold the property or resold it under the power given by cl. (c) of s. 325 he has completed the execution of the decree so far as he can legally complete it and it is then his duty to retransmit the decree to the Court under rules prescribed in that behalf by Government under the second paragraph of s. 320. Where the property has been sold or resold the sale or resale cannot be set aside by the Collector. Any application for setting it aside must be made to the Civil Court under s. 311 and dealt with by it under s. 312 and if no application is made to the Court the sale must be confirmed by it under that section. LALU TRIKAM v BHAVLA MITHA I L R 11 Bom 478

B and R (brothers of the first appellant) who were parties to the suits objected to the Collector's mode of partition and applied to the Court to set aside the Collector's scheme and to direct a fresh partition. The Subordinate Judge of Vengurla granted the application and set aside the partition ordered by the Collector. Against this order V who was plaintiff in one of the suits appealed to the District Court and in the appeal he made B alone the respondent. The District Court reversed the order of the Subordinate Judge and upheld the order of the Collector. Thereupon B preferred a second appeal to the High Court against the decision of the District Court. To this appeal neither Z nor his brother the present appellant were made parties. The High Court having confirmed the decision of the District Court proceedings were taken to carry out the partition according to the Collector's original scheme. The appellant objected on the ground that the Collector's scheme had been set aside by the subordinate Judge and that he (the appellant) had not been a party to the proceedings in either of the Appellate Courts. He contended that he was therefore not bound by the decisions of the Appellate Courts and that the order of the Subordinate Judge setting aside the partition ordered by the Collector was still in force so far as he was concerned. He therefore applied that the property should be divided in accordance with that order. His application was rejected by the Court of first instance as time barred inasmuch as more than a year had elapsed since the date of the order of the Subordinate Judge and during that time the applicant had taken no steps to enforce the order. On appeal the Acting District Judge confirmed the order of the lower Court holding that the order of* the Subordinate Judge was no longer in force having been set aside by the High Court. On second appeal to the High Court—Held that the appellant could not succeed in the present appeal the object of which was to revive the order of the Subordinate Judge. That order was one which the Subordinate Judge had no power to make. It involved taking the execution of the decree for partition out of the Collector's hands into his own in direct contradiction of the law. In case of partition of lands s 265 of the Civil Procedure Code (XIV of 1882) and s 113 of the Bombay Revenue Code (Bombay Act V of 1879) place the execution of the decree entirely in the Collector's hands. This does not deprive the Court of judicial control of its decree as for instance if it should appear to have been obtained by fraud or surprise but in the present case nothing of that kind was relied on. Nor was it asserted that the Collector had acted in bad faith or contravened the command of the Court or transgressed the law. What was alleged was that he had made an objectionable partition. This was not a ground on which the Subordinate Judge could interfere. LEY GOPAL SAVANT v VASUDEV VITHAL SAVANT I.L.R. 12 Bom. 371

6 ———— Execution of decree for partition—Collector—Power of to refuse execution—Ultra vires—The plaintiffs obtained a decree against the defendants for partition and possession of their share in the lands in the village of Hasri. That decree was sent for execution to the Collector. In the meantime a revision survey had been introduced into the village under which the designation of some of the lands directed to be partitioned was changed from khotsi to dhara lands. The Collector proposed to partition them as described by the survey but the plaintiffs having declined the proposal he refused to partition the lands and returned unexecuted the decree to the Court. On reference to the High Court—Held that the Collector had acted ultra vires. The plaintiffs were entitled to have the lands partitioned quite independent of the result of the new survey as regards the character of the lands. The proposal of the Collector was virtually to contravene the command of the Court which as a purely ministerial officer it was not in his power to do either directly or indirectly. GANOJI UTEKAR v DHONDU

A Collector to whom a decree has been so transferred for execution acts ministerially and when he delegates his functions to an assistant or a munsifdar incurs a risk of having to answer in damages to the person who by any error or mistake deprived of the fruits of his judgment and this risk attaches independently of malice or negligence. MAHARAJ KARANDIKAR v HARI D. [5 N W, 321]

30 ——— Deputy Collector whether a Court under Land Acquisition Act — Judicial Officer — Revenue Court — Prosecution for false evidence — Criminal Procedure Code 1899 s. 476 — Penal Code s. 193 — The expression the Court in the Land Acquisition Act does not include a Collector nor is there any authority given to the Collector to administer an oath or to require a verification. It is a false statement made under a verification that constitutes an offence under s. 193 of the Penal Code not a verification oath or solemn affirmation. The Deputy Collector acting under the Land Acquisition Act is not a judicial officer; he cannot properly be regarded as a Revenue Court within the terms of s. 476 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. His proceedings under the former Act are not regulated by the Code of Civil Procedure nor is he bound to require a petition put in before him to be verified in accordance with that Code so as to make any false statement punishable as perjury. The Deputy Collector is not in a position to pass any final order in the matter of value of the land or the right to claim the price fixed. A party dissatisfied can claim a reference to the Civil Court whose duty it is to settle the matter in dispute judicially therefore to subject parties who claimed the right to such a reference to a criminal prosecution when the matters on which the Deputy Collector had formed an opinion as a Revenue Officer under the Land Acquisition Act must be submitted to the determination of a Court is obviously premature and improper and is almost certain to operate very prejudicially towards them in the trial before the Civil Court of the same matter. DROA DAS RUKHIT v. 32. — *Examination of parda nashin lady—Code of Criminal Procedure (1882) ss 6 7 503 504 505 506 and 507—Presidency Magistrate Power of—It is doubtful if a Presidency Magistrate in the Town of Calcutta has power to issue a commission under ss 503 to 507 of the Code of Criminal Procedure to examine a witness residing within his own jurisdiction but there is nothing in the Code to prevent a Presidency Magistrate examining a witness within his jurisdiction at some place other than the Court house. Where a Presidency Magistrate refused on the ground of want of jurisdiction to grant a commission for the examination of a parda nashin lady but offered to take her evidence in his Court when cleared for the purpose or in his private room and she applied to the High Court for a commission being granted or for such other order as they might deem proper the High Court on revision directed that if the lady would take a house or suite of rooms not far from the Magistrate's Court and pay all the costs which the Magistrate deemed reasonable and proper he should not enforce her attendance in Court but examine her in the place so appointed in the presence of the parties concerned and in the manner in which parda-nashin ladies are ordinarily examined. HEM COOMAR DASSEN v QUEEN EMRESS was charged and of his wife taken by commission during the enquiry and the evidence of the servant of those persons taken at the enquiry and also the evidence of the owner of the property taken during the trial under a commission issued by the Sessions Judge under s 53 of the Criminal Procedure Code. The ground is upon which the Sessions Judge admitted the evidence taken during the enquiry were that the attendance of the witnesses could not be procured without an expense of Rs. 500 an amount which he considered unreasonable that the witnesses would be inconvenienced and that their evidence did not concern the accused personally having reference only to the identification of the property in respect of which the accused was charged. Held that the Sessions Judge had improperly admitted such evidence. Inconvenience to witnesses is no ground allowed under s 53 of the Evidence Act and the question of identification was a most material one and the evidence of the witnesses in question was of the utmost moment the whole case resting on it and as regards the ground of expense it was impossible to consider the amount unreasonable considering that the entire case rested on the evidence of those witnesses and that the accused had not cross examined those whose evidence had been taken by commission nor looking at his position could he arrange for their cross examination. Held that on these grounds the Sessions Judge was not justified in issuing a commission under s 503 of the Criminal Procedure Code. QUEEN EMRESS v BURKE I. L. R. 6 All 224

34. — *Application by prisoner for commission to place out of the jurisdiction—Previously to the trial at the Sessions the prisoner had applied to the Court for commissions to Pondicherry and Mauritius to take evidence on his behalf. The application was refused on the ground that the High Court had no authority to issue a commission in such a case but the learned Judge (Wiser J) reserved the question for the full Court. Held that the High Court had no power to issue a commission out of the jurisdiction in a criminal case on an application by the accused. EMRESS v MOOREA CHERRY

Code (Act X of 1882) may be admitted under s 33 of the Evidence Act (I of 1872) if the requirements of the proviso to that section have been complied with. The words opportunity to cross-examine in the proviso to s 33 do not imply that the actual presence of the cross-examining party or his agent before the tribunal taking the evidence is necessary. No order was passed by the Registrar upon this application until 6th May and owing to delay for which the applicants were not responsible registration was not effected and the certificate was not issued until the 3rd July when a certificate was given purporting to be granted in pursuance of Act X of 1866. Meanwhile on the 1st May 1882 the Indian Companies Act (VI of 1882) repealing Act X of 1866 came into force. s 28 of which provided that every share in any company should be deemed to have been taken and held subject to payment of the whole amount thereof in cash unless the same had been otherwise determined by a contract in writing filed with the Registrar. No such provision existed in Act X of 1866. The shareholders of the company paid nothing upon their shares in cash but had agreed (as in writing filed with the Registrar) that in consideration of certain property conveyed by them to the company at the time of its formation fully paid up shares were to be allotted to them. Subsequently the company having gone into liquidation the official liquidator sought to make the shareholders contributories to the assets of the company as the holders of shares upon which nothing had been paid with reference to s 28 of the Indian Companies Act (VI of 1882). Held that the proceedings for obtaining registration of the company and a grant of a certificate of such registration commenced within the meaning of s 6 of the General Clauses Act when the memorandum and articles of association were received in the Registrar's office in April 1882 while Act X of 1866 was in force that therefore the repeal of that Act by Act VI of 1882 did not affect those proceedings that consequently the company must be taken to have been incorporated under the former Act and that the provisions of s 28 of Act VI of 1882 not being applicable the shareholders were not liable to be placed on the list of contributories as not having paid the full amount of their shares. IN THE MATTER OF WEST HOPETOWN TEA COMPANY formed by a number of persons over 20 in number the object being according to the prospectus and rules to provide for the widows children and other relatives of the subscribers. The management was vested in a board of directors elected by the subscribers from amongst their own number. Subscriptions at fixed rates according to tables were paid by the subscribers to secure the provision of pensions for their widows children and relatives. The moneys subscribed were invested in Government 4 per cent securities and in the course of management a large reserve fund was accumulated and so invested the interest annually payable in respect of which amounted in the year 1883 to upwards of Rs 6000 but there was nothing to show that such reserve was larger than sound principles of management required. The rules provided for abatement of subscriptions according to a graduated scale which might be granted or withheld from year to year by the directors according to their opinion as to the condition of the fund. A subscriber to the fund was under no obligation to continue his subscription but might stop it at pleasure subject in certain contingencies to forfeiture of the benefit of past payments. Fines were also provided for unpunctuality in payments of subscriptions. It was contended that the subscribers formed an association which required registration under s 4 of the Indian Companies Act inasmuch as they carried on business having for its object the acquisition of gain by the association or the individual members thereof as the subscribers must be taken to contemplate the ordinary consequences of their acts and the forfeitures fines and large and increasing reserve fund constituted gain. Semle—that these did not constitute gain. But held that whether they did or not no business was carried on having for its object the acquisition of gain by the association or the individual members thereof. The subscribers to the General Family Pension Fund are not a company association or partnership formed for the purpose of carrying on business that has for its object the acquisition of gain by the company association or partnership or by the individual members thereof within the meaning of s 4 of the Indian Companies Act. Where the substantial purpose of an association is not to carry on a business for gain, the fact that gain may accrue incidentally or may arise from merely subsidiary provisions does not make registration necessary. KRAAL v WHITMER

mensum for seven years from the date of admission and that at the end of the seven years Rs200 should be paid in full discharge of each share. It was further provided that subscribers should be entitled to borrow money from the said fund at interest that a reserve fund be formed and distributed once every five years to the subscribers and that surplus collections be distributed among the subscribers annually. In 1868 defendants father borrowed money on mortgage from the fund in accordance with the rules and the amount was admittedly due at the time of suit. The fund was wound up under an order of the High Court dated 15th September 1877 during the life time of defendants father who however took no active part in those proceedings. It further appeared that on the execution of the mortgage the defendants father (the mortgagor) took a lease from the mortgagors of the houses mortgaged and retained possession of them as tenant. Held that the association had for its object the acquisition of gain and that as the association consisted of more than twenty members and was not registered its formation was forbidden by the Indian Companies Act (V of 1866) s. 4 that the mortgage suit having for its object the carrying out of the illegal purpose of the association was an illegal transaction and that the suit must fail. Held further that the defendants were not estopped from setting up the plea of illegality either by the order of 1877 or by reason of their predecessor in title having attorned to the fund. MADRAS HINDU MUTUAL BENEFIT PERMANENT FUND v. The bonds in question were executed in favour of the stakeholder and the subscribers. The business was not registered. A suit was brought on one of such bonds to recover the amount payable for subscription on account of the period subsequent to its execution. Held that the obligee carried on business which had for its object the acquisition of gain within the meaning of Companies Act 1882 s. 4 and accordingly constituted an illegal association and that the suit was not maintainable. KAMASAKI BHAGAVATHAN v. Their names were also entered as such shareholders in the registration of the company under Act X of 1866. In January 1867 certain contributors (amongst whom appellants were not) and certain creditors applied to the Recorder of Rangoon and v. ss. 4 and 5 s. 101 to have the company wound up and an official liquidator appointed. A liquidator having been appointed he applied to the Court to call upon each of the contributories named in a list which he presented to pay up his contribution. Accordingly the Recorder declared the appellants to be contributories and directed each of them to pay the amount appearing against his name. Held that this was a suit by the official liquidator to have appellants declared contributories and an appeal therefore lay from the Recorder's decision so declaring them. Held that the liability under ss. 6 11 18 22 36 and 37 of a registered shareholder as member of a company to contribute is a prima facie liability only it being open to him to show that although his name was on the register yet he did not agree to become a member; and that as appellants were not cognizant of (much less did they assent to) the registration of their names as shareholders, whilst they refused to receive any shares or pay up any calls or deposits the sole step taken by them of joining others in putting forth the prospectus and affixing their names therein to a certain number of shares could not be said to be an agreement to become members of the company and therefore they were not contributories. COTTON & PEGU SAW MILLS COMPANY F. His withdrawal however was not accepted. Subsequently to the receipt of the said notice the memorandum and articles of association so signed by the defendant and others were presented for registration; but registration was refused on the ground that the said documents were not printed. A printed copy of each was then procured and registered. The registered copies differed in respect of the signatures subscribed thereto from the copies signed by the defendant. The defendant's name was put upon the register of the company as the holder of 101 shares, but without the defendant's assent or knowledge and two calls were made upon him in respect of the said shares. The defendant denied that he was a member of the said company or liable for calls. Held that the defendant was not a member of the plaintiff company either (i) as a subscriber of the memorandum of association under the earlier part of s. 22 of the Indian Companies Act inasmuch as the memorandum there referred to was the registered memorandum of which the document signed by the defendant was not even a true copy or (ii) by reason of an agreement to take shares under the latter part of that section inasmuch as the agreement there alluded to was an agreement with the company and the agreement (if any) entered into by the defendant was not and could not have been an agreement with the company the company not being at that time in existence. Quare— Whether it is enough to constitute a person a member of a company under

The agreement under which the shares were so allotted was not registered as required by s 28 of Act VI of 1882. A sold three of these shares to D who had no notice that they were not fully paid up. D sold the three shares to G who was the Managing Director of the Company. The Company was wound up by the Court. At the date of the winding up G was holder of the three shares. In settling the list of contributories the Court ordered G's name to be placed on the list in respect of the three shares. Held that G was not liable as a contributory. Though G was a Managing Director of the Company and as such must have known that the shares had been issued as fully paid up shares without complying with s 28 of Act VI of 1882 he was not on that account estopped from taking advantage of the equitable rule which protects a purchaser with notice taking from a purchaser without notice. IN RE GULABDAS DEWIDAS I. 25 — Contributory—Increase of capital—Illegal issue of shares—Reduction of capital—Companies Act (VI of 1882) s 13—The Nawab of the Beyla Spinning Weaving and Manufacturing Company Limited was registered under the Indian Companies Act (X of 1866). The original capital of the company consisted of Rs 4,00,000 divided into 1,600 shares of Rs 250 each. In 1882 the capital of the company was increased by Rs 1,00,000 divided into 1,600 shares of Rs 62 8. The resolution to increase the capital was not passed in accordance with the articles of association &c with the sanction of a special resolution of the company passed at a general meeting. On the 5th November 1881 a resolution was passed at a general meeting of the company that the shareholders should take up 49 shares of the original capital and 1,037 shares of the increased capital which were then in the hands of the company in the proportion of one share to every two shares already held by them. In pursuance of this resolution the appellants took up several shares of the original capital as well as of the new capital. On 19th October 1883 a general meeting of the company was held at which it was resolved that the resolution of the 5th November 1881 and all acts done in connection with it should be set aside that the shares taken by the shareholders in pursuance of that resolution should be taken back by the company and such amounts as had been paid by them on those shares should be credited to their names in the company's books. This was accordingly done and the shares were transferred to the name of the company. In October 1886 the company was wound up by order of the Court. In settling the list of contributories the District Judge of Surat held that the appellants were liable as contributories in respect of all the shares which they had taken up in pursuance of the resolution of 5th November 1881. On appeal from this decision—Held that with respect to the shares of the original capital the resolution of the 19th October 1885 was illegal and invalid. It operated not as an investment by the company of its funds in its own shares but as an extinguishment of the shares and such extinguishment was virtually a reduction of the capital which could not be done without complying with the provisions of s 13 of the Indian Companies Act (VI of 1882). The holders of such shares were therefore properly placed on the list of contributories. Held also that the issue of the shares of the new capital was illegal as the resolution to increase the capital had not been come to in accordance with the articles of association. It was therefore open to the Company to set aside the resolution of 5th November 1881. When it was set aside the persons who held the new shares ceased to be shareholders and could not therefore be held liable as contributories. BHIMBHAI v ISHWARDAS JAGJIWANDAS I. L. The Official Liquidator need not take out letters of administration to the estate of a deceased shareholder before settling the list of contributories. There is nothing in ss 126 and 144 requiring the Official Liquidator to place on the list all the persons who may as representatives be liable to contribute in discharge of the liability of a deceased shareholder as contemplated by s 126. Nor can the liability under that section of a person who has been placed on the list as his representative be affected by omission of the Official Liquidator to do so. Directors have no power to cancel shares duly issued to a shareholder at his request and so reduce the capital of the company. Bhimbhais v Ishwardas Jagjiwandas I. L. R. 16

The plaintiff set forth the particulars of demand one of which was Rs 200 being the amount of deposit payable before allotment on 15th July 1886 and another a sum of Rs 200 payable on allotment on 15th July 1886. This suit was brought on 10th September 1889 and the defendant contended that the above two items of claim were barred by limitation. The lower Courts notwithstanding the statement in the plaint found as a fact that the allotment of the shares was really made in November 1886. Held therefore assuming three years to be the period of limitation that the claim was not barred. was not agreed that in consideration of the transfer he and his executors or administrators shall be entitled so long as they held the said hundred shares to an extra or preferential dividend. On this agreement the parties acted and the shareholder held the shares till he died in England in 1888 having by will directed that his executors or administrators should hold the hundred shares in trust for his surviving brothers of whom the executor who proved the will was one. Administration with the will annexed was granted in India to the plaintiff in this suit as the attorney of the executor. A note of this was made in the register of the company leaving the hundred shares still in the name of the testator. The company then discontinued to pay the preferential dividend and contended that it was no longer payable inasmuch as the testator's estate had been administered and that the executor no longer held the shares as executor but as trustee for the beneficiaries under the will. Held that the contract was still in operation the executor still holding the shares within its meaning; and that the preferential dividend continued payable to the estate of the testator the company being only concerned with the legal title to the shares and not with any claims if there were any that might be made by beneficiaries under the will against the executor as trustee. BOMBAY BURNING TRADING CORPORATION v. 32. — Suit to compel Directors to register transfer—Persons entitled to require registration of transfer—Insolvency of shareholder—Official Assignee right of to sell shares and obtain transfer—One of the Articles of Association of the Coria Spinning and Weaving Company provided that the Board of Directors might decline to register any transfer of shares unless the transferee were approved by the Board. A shareholder holding 423 shares became insolvent and his shares thereupon vested in the Official Assignee who sold them. The purchaser required the Official Assignee to transfer the shares into the names of two nominees, viz. 200 shares to the name of one nominee and 223 shares to the name of the other. The Official Assignee executed the necessary transfer deeds and sent them to the company with a request that the shares might be transferred accordingly. The proposed nominees were already members of the company and registered holders of shares in it and no objection was taken to them in their personal capacity. The Directors however declined to approve of the transferees and to register the transfer unless the transferees would pledge themselves not to approve a certain change in the mode of remunerating the agents of the company which the Directors desired to effect and which they believed would be very advantageous to the company. The transferees refused to pledge themselves in any way as to their future action and brought this suit to enforce registration of the transfer. Held following Moffatt v Farquhar L R, 7 Ch D, 591 that the Directors were bound to register the transfer. It was contended that neither the Official Assignee nor the transferees had any legal right to call on the company to register the transfers. Held that, having regard to the provision of the Articles of Association of the company the Official Assignee was entitled to have the shares registered in the names of his vendees. KATKOSKO MITCHELLS HEERAMAYEK v COORLA SPINNING AND WEAVING COMPANY 1 L R, 16 Bom., 80

On the 18th October 1893 the directors passed a resolution that up to the time of the next ordinary general meeting the board approve of all transfers of shares made by Dwarikadas Shamji and Ramdas Kessowji (two of the shareholders) or either of them, and will transfer shares standing in the name of Dwarikadas Shamji and in the name of Ramdas Kessowji to their or his transferees without claiming any lien or raising any objection. Held that the above resolution was ultra vires and not binding on the company. The power conferred on the directors by the articles of association was a fiduciary power to be exercised for the benefit of the company and could not be exercised until the question of each transfer together with the names of the transfer and the transferee was before them and they had an opportunity of considering each case. *IN THE NEW GREAT EASTERN SPINNING AND WEAVING CO. ## 5 MEETINGS AND VOTING

36 — Meeting of shareholders—Power of chairman—Poll—Time for taking a poll—Right of shareholder to vote at meeting—Articles of association—At common law and where the taking of a poll is not governed by statute or special rule the chairman of a meeting is the proper authority to fix the time and place for the taking of a poll and a poll is properly and correctly taken immediately after the termination of the meeting. The same rule applies to meetings of registered companies unless their articles prescribe some other procedure. The object of a poll in the case of a meeting of members of a registered company as of other meetings is to ascertain the true sense of the meeting and is not to give absent members a further opportunity of voting unless a contrary intention is expressly or impliedly to be gathered from the articles of the company. There is no presumption in construing a null and void article in the latter sense. Clause 98 of the articles provided that the said firm as such agents should have full power and authority (inter alia) to appoint and employ in or for the purposes of the transaction and management of the affairs and business of the company such solicitors as they should think proper. An agreement dated 26th August 1884 was also entered into between the company and the partners in the firm of M F & Co, their executors administrators and assigns for the time being constituting the partnership firm of M F & Co whereby it was agreed that the said firm should be agents to the company for twenty five years to buy and sell etc and particularly to exercise all the powers contained in cl 98 of the articles of association. Messrs C and B were duly appointed solicitors to the company and acted as such for a considerable time. Merwanji Framji one of the members of the said firm of M F & Co died in the middle of March 1886. The plaintiffs complained that G one of the shareholders in the company became dissatisfied on being the plaintiffs from the position of agents of the company and of becoming the managing director of the company that in July 1881 he procured his own election and that of certain nominees of his as directors of the company

32 — Suit to compel Directors to register transfer—Persons entitled to require registration of transfer—Insolvency of share holder—Official Assignee right of to sell shares and obtain transfer—One of the Articles of Association of the Corla Spinning and Weaving Company provided that the Board of Directors might decline to register any transfer of shares unless the transferee were approved by the Board. A shareholder holding 433 shares became insolvent and his shares thereupon vested in the Official Assignee who sold them. The purchaser required the Official Assignee to transfer the shares into the names of two nominees viz 200 shares to the name of one nominee and 233 shares to the name of the other. The Official Assignee executed the necessary transfer deeds and sent them to the company with a request that the shares might be transferred accordingly. The proposed nominees were already members of the company and registered holders of shares in it and no objection was taken to them in their personal capacity. The Directors however declined to approve of the transferees and to register the transfer unless the transferees would pledge themselves not to approve a certain change in the mode of remunerating the agents of the company which the Directors desired to effect and which they believed would be very advantageous to the company. The transferees refused to pledge themselves in any way as to their future action and brought this suit to enforce registration of the transfer. Held following Moffatt v Farquhar L R 7 CA D 591 that the Directors were bound to register the transfers. It was contended that neither the Official Assignee nor the transferees had any legal right to call on the company to register the transfers. Held that having regard to the provision of the Articles of Association of the company the Official Assignee was entitled to have the shares registered in the names of his vendees. KARIMOSHO MENSCHENJI HERRMANECK v CORLA SPINNING AND WEAVING COMPANY I L R. 16 Bom. 80 and on the 8th August 1881 procured the passing of a resolution at a board meeting to the effect that as Messrs C and B the company's solicitors were also the solicitors of the agents it was desirable for the interests of the company that a change should be made and that Messrs H C and L be appointed solicitors of the company. The plaintiffs alleged that the only object of passing the said resolution was to facilitate the design of G of ousting the plaintiffs from their agency and getting the management of the company for himself that Messrs H C and L had been for a long time the solicitors of G and had been advising him in his designs upon the company and upon the plaintiffs and they contended that the resolution was a breach of the contract between the company and the plaintiffs and a violation of the articles of association of the company. The plaintiffs sued G and two other directors of the company and the company itself and prayed for an injunction against the defendants to restrain them from committing any breach of the agreement of 26th August 1874 and in particular from carrying into effect the resolution appointing Messrs H C and L as solicitors for the company and to restrain them from doing anything inconsistent with the memorandum and articles of association. The defendants contended that the contract of the 26th August 1874 had been determined by the death of Merwanji Framji; and that the powers conferred on the agents by cl 93 of the articles were subject to the general powers of management vested in the directors by the articles and that the case was not one in which an injunction could be granted. Held that having regard to the memorandum and articles of association the contract was that the firm of M F & Co for the time being should be the agents of the company for twenty five years and that the right to sue on the contract by its nature survived to the plaintiffs after the death of Merwanji Framji. Held also that there being no provision either in the articles of association or the agreement of 26th August 1874 that the power thereby conferred on the agents should be subject to the control or assent of the directors there was no right in the directors to interfere with the agents in the exercise of their powers otherwise than as representing the company in virtue of their general powers of management. NUS SERWANJEE & GORDON I L R 11 Bom. 288

The scheme was made public and shares were applied for in excess of the intended capital. On the 1st May 1863 the memorandum of association was registered signed, inter alia by A and M. On the same day the prospectus was issued which stated inter alia that the company have purchased from the former proprietors for the sum of Rs100 000 the entire stock of hotel and shop together with the outstandings on the 30th April 1863 the latter amounting to about Rs50 000. The dividend of 10 per cent per annum for two years was guaranteed to the shareholders. The prospectus was signed by A and M and another as directors but the last took no active part. On the same day an agreement was signed by B whereby he agreed in consideration of Rs100 000 paid by A and M as therein mentioned—Rs100 000 in paid up shares of the company—to transfer to them or Spence's Hotel Company Limited all his right title and interest in Spence's Hotel the good will furniture outstandings etc. The articles of association were dated 7th September 1863. A and M with two others formed the first board of directors. These directors at an extraordinary meeting on August 1st presented a report which was adopted by the meeting in which they said B has deposited with M and A security sufficient to ensure the payment of the 10 per cent dividend guaranteed to him by the company. On the 5th December 1863 a deed was executed with the approval of the company's solicitors by B on the one part and A and M on the other which after reciting that as security for the guarantee of the 10 per cent dividend B had deposited with A and M 400 fully paid up shares in the company witnessed that B would pay to A and M such sums as would be necessary to make up and pay half yearly a dividend of 10 per cent per annum and that he constituted A and M his attorneys to sell the 400 shares and out of the proceeds to make good the yearly dividend of 10 per cent and after such payment towards the guaranteed dividend to hold the remaining shares or balance of money in trust for B absolutely. On the same day another deed prepared by A's private solicitor was executed by B on one part and A and M on the other which after reciting an agreement by B with A and M in April that if they would assist him in forming such company for the purchase of Spence's Hotel and as they had in fact since formed. B would pay or secure to them A and M such sitting and proper remuneration for their trouble and risk as might be ultimately arranged and after reciting the first deed of 5th December 1863 witnessed that B covenanted with A and M that notwithstanding the trust contained in the before mentioned indenture whereby the surplus mentioned was declared to belong to B absolutely the same surplus should belong to and be the exclusive property of A and M in equal shares and that if the net profits of the Hotel Company should prove sufficient to pay the whole 10 per cent then the whole of the 400 shares deposited with A and M should be retained by them for their own benefit in equal shares. This deed was undisclosed until the filing of their written statement by A and M in the present suit. There was no actual deposit of the 400 shares by B but A and M respectively took 200 shares in their own names. Rs10 847 9 6 were paid by A and M to make up the deficit on the guaranteed dividend up to December 1861. Also on the 5th December 1863 B executed another deed in which after reciting that he had guaranteed that the outstanding debts of the Hotel should realize before May 1864 Rs100 000 at least and that he had deposited with the company 50 fully paid up shares as security for this guarantee he covenanted to pay any deficit and appointed the company his attorneys to realize these shares and out of the proceeds to pay themselves the deficit and subject to this to hold the shares or the proceeds in trust for him. Fifty shares were received from B by A under the trusts of this deed. The outstandings fell short of the guaranteed amount by Rs19 25. In a suit by the company to recover the 400 shares and for an account of the profits of the same—Held in the Court below and on appeal that the suit was rightly brought by the company as plaintiffs. That A and M were the agents of the company to effect the purchase and as such were bound to make for the company the best bargain which they reasonably could, and forbidden to obtain personal profit or benefit out of the matter. A and M as regards the beneficial interest in the 400 shares were trustees thereof for the benefit of the company from the date when that interest arose and A and M were jointly as well as severally responsible for the 400 shares after satisfying the trust of the guarantee. In the lower Court it was decreed that A should make over the 50 shares or their value to the company and account for the interim receipts and profits. A and M to account for the 400 shares at par value at least and for dividends and profits thereon including profits if any made by sale at a premium. A to account similarly for the 50 shares. B to make good his two guarantees after being allowed the benefit of the trust of the 400 shares. SPENCE'S HOTEL COMPANY v. 43 ——— Liability of directors for negligence in management—Employment of agent by directors—Acquiescence of shareholders—Liability of estate of deceased director—Banker Who is a—The plaintiffs company went into liquidation early in the year 1878 in consequence of losses sustained by the failure of Nursey Kessowji & Co which firm had been the bankers of the said company. The said firm had stopped payment on the 26th December 1878 having then in its hands the sum of Rs 80 200 11 1 belonging to the company. In this suit the official liquidators of the company sought to recover that sum from the defendants who had been directors of the company and a further sum of Rs 48 670 14 0 as damages sustained by the company through the fraud and gross negligence of the defendants in permitting Nursey Kessowji the agent of the company to deal with certain shares for his own purposes. The first four defendants were the directors of the company the fifth defendant was the assignee of the estate of Nursey Kessowji whose firm of Nursey Kessowji & Co had become insolvent. The plaintiffs company was registered on the 31st July 1878 and by the memorandum and articles of association the said Nursey Kessowji was appointed secretary treasurer and agent of the company for a period of twenty five years upon the terms and conditions contained in an agreement annexed to the articles of association whereby it was (inter alia) provided that Nursey Kessowji should deposit with such banker or bankers as the directors for the time being should appoint all the moneys due from him to the said company and exceeding in amount at any one time the sum of Rs 5000. On the 6th August 1878 the directors of the company appointed the firm of Nursey Kessowji & Co to be the bankers of the company. It was further alleged by the plaintiff that immediately after the registration of the company the directors and Nursey Kessowji began to borrow money upon the credit of the company far in excess of the legitimate wants of the company and to pay over the money so borrowed to the firm of Nursey Kessowji & Co to be used by that firm in speculative business that the said loans were obtained by the directors not bond fide for the purposes of the company but for the purposes of supplying funds to the firm of Nursey Kessowji & Co to enable it to carry on its business. At the end of the year 1878 the sum paid over by the directors to the firm of Nursey Kessowji had by reason of such borrowing amounted to the sum of Rs 80 20 0. The plaintiffs alleged that the said loans were wholly unnecessary; and they charged the directors with gross negligence in raising the said loans or permitting them to be raised and in permitting the moneys so borrowed to remain in the hands of the firm of Nursey Kessowji & Co to be applied by that firm to its own purposes. As to the Rs 48 670 14 0 the plaintiffs alleged that certain unallotted shares of the total value of Rs 100 750 had been left in the hands of the directors to be disposed of the proceeds of which were to be applied in making certain payments due by the company that instead of applying these shares to such purposes the directors had filled up the said shares in the name of Nursey Kessowji and authorized him to mortgage the same in order to raise funds that the said Nursey Kessowji had accordingly dealt with the said shares and had applied the proceeds thereof to his own purposes. The plaintiffs charged the directors with fraud and gross negligence as to these shares and claimed to recover Rs 48 670 14 0 in respect thereof from the defendants. The defendants alleged that they had acted bond fide in all matters connected with the company that they had always believed the firm of Nursey Kessowji & Co to be in a solvent condition and had no reason to mistrust its management of the affairs of the company. One of the defendants (No 3) died after the institution of the suit and his sons were made parties. His representatives and Kessowji Naik (defendant No 1) also claimed to set off against the plaintiffs claim certain payments made by them as guarantors for the company. Held (1) that one of the directors knew as a fact that the agent was not in a solvent condition; and that the other directors in the circumstances of the case ought to have ascertained his financial condition. (2) Directors are responsible for the management of their company where by the articles of association the business is to be conducted by the board with the assistance of an agent. They cannot divest themselves of their responsibility by delegating the whole management to the agent and abstaining from all enquiry. If he proves unfaithful and in such circumstances the liability is there just as much as if they themselves had been unfaithful. (3) That the directors had not used fair and reasonable diligence in the management of the company's affairs and were liable to refund the money entrusted by them to the agent Nursey Kessowji without proper knowledge as to whether it was needful and without any subsequent investigation of a bona fide character with respect to its disposal. amount of the purchase. All the directors were equally responsible as all attended the directors' meetings and all gave the same blind sanction to every act and proposal of the agent. Held also that the estate of the deceased director was liable on the ground that the misfeasance of a director is a breach of trust and not a mere personal default. A separate debt cannot be set off against a joint and several debt and directors cannot set off money due from the company to them against sums which they may be ordered to refund to the liquidators. NEW FLEMING SPINNING AND WEAVING COMPANY v. 44. — Power of directors to deal with profits either by declaring a dividend or by appropriating to reserve fund—Power of shareholders to interfere with declaration of dividend.—The articles of association of the B Co provided (a) that the directors might with the sanction of the company in general meeting declare a dividend (b) that the directors might before recommending any dividend set aside out of the profits of the company such sum as they thought proper as a reserve fund to meet contingencies or for equalizing dividends etc. The directors of the company added to the existing reserve fund a certain portion of the profits of the company for the year 1880 and thereby diminished the amount of dividend which they could otherwise have declared. Some of the shareholders dissatisfied proved of the course taken by the directors and contended (1) that the shareholders of the company had a right by resolution to withdraw from the reserve fund a sum sufficient to enable the directors to declare a suitable dividend (2) that they had the right to direct the directors to declare a dividend greater or less than that recommended by the directors out of the amount standing to profit and loss including the amount so withdrawn. Held that under the articles of association the contention of the shareholders could not be sustained. The reserve fund consisted of profits and by the articles the disposal of profits was expressly entrusted to the directors. To allow the shareholders to deal with it would be a direct contravention of the articles which entrusted to the management of the directors all the business of the company. Nor could the shareholders decide the question as to the amount of dividend. By the articles they agreed that the directors should declare the dividend and only reserved to themselves the power to vote a dividend to which they objected. The remedy of the shareholders if they were dissatisfied with the directors was to remove them from office or to alter the articles of association. BOMBAY BURMA TRADING CORPORATION v. the same 2000 shares at 20 per cent premium. The contracts for the repurchase were signed by three directors of the defendants company and on each was a memorandum initialed by two of them referring to a list of the Share Receipts delivered with the words we are duly to examine and receive the same at the fixed time. One hundred and ninety letters of allotment in the names of several persons and for various numbers of shares endorsed by the original allottees and initialed by one of the three directors were together with receipts for the first call handed over to the persons who acted for the plaintiffs by the three directors of the defendants company who made the contracts. In April the defendants company made a fresh call payable on the 4th May. A list of the names and addresses of the original allottees of what were called shares in the market (i.e. other than those purchased by the company itself for cash or held by it on mortgage) was made out from the date of settlement and notices of forfeiture for non payment of the call were sent by post. The original holders of the 190 letters of allotment were included in the list but no notice was sent to the plaintiffs. On the 24th of May all shares upon which the second call was not paid were declared to be forfeited for the benefit of the company. The defendants company as stated in the memorandum of association was established among other objects for the purchase and sale of debentures stocks shares of joint stock companies (including the shares of this company) and other securities the making loans and advances on such securities as the directors of the company might think fit. Held that the contracts for the purchase of the 2000 shares being within the scope of the authority of the directors the defendants were bound by them that the defendants were bound to treat the plaintiffs as the holders of three shares and to give them the notice required by the articles of association and that they were not at liberty to give that notice to the original allottees who by the admission of the defendants testified by the acts of their agents in making the contracts had parted with the shares that the shares were consequently not legally forfeited and the defendants having refused to accept them and they being then unable the plaintiffs were entitled to recover the full price as damages. ORIENTAL FINANCIAL ASSOCIATION v. and subsequently divided among themselves B P taking for himself two-fifths of the whole including the 25 shares of J S. The fact of the joint purchase was not communicated to the other directors of the company nor was there any evidence to show that their attention had been called to certain entries in the books of the company relating to B P having paid the second call on his two-fifths of the joint purchase. J S got no notice to pay the second call and never applied for or obtained a certificate for the 25 shares but such a certificate was obtained by B P on the 10th of October 1864 certifying that J S was the shareholder. J S had signed a blank form of transfer and a blank form of request to the directors to transfer which were undated and without particulars but B P never executed the transfer as transferor and the shares never were transferred to his name on the register nor was the sale to him ever brought to the notice of the directors or to any of his partners or any portion of the 2500 shares and the articles of association required the consent in writing of the directors to every transfer. On application by J S that his name should be removed from the list of contributors but was framed by the official liquidator and the names of B P's trustees under Act XVIII of 1860 substituted thereon in respect of the 25 shares—Held that J S was not exonerated under the circumstances from the duty of obeying the articles of association and the provision of Act XIX of 1857 that the act of an individual director in his private capacity ought not to bind the board which had never authorized or ratified his conduct and that the official liquidator as representing the body of shareholders rightly insisted upon keeping J S's name on the list of shareholders. IN RE EAST INDIAN TRADING AND BANKING COMPANY JAMNA DAS BATAKAL'S CASE 3 Bom. The letters of allotment endorsed by the allottees and receipts for the first call were made over at the time of purchase to the company. No transfers however were executed by the allottees nor were the shares registered by the company in their own name but they continued to stand in the names of the allottees. Two thousand of the seven thousand shares had been re-sold by the company, and the remaining five thousand were mentioned in a list kept by the company of shares purchased by them. On application to the allottees to have their names removed from the list of contributors as framed by the official liquidator—Held that the company through its directors having as well by the act of purchase as by their subsequent conduct treated themselves as the owners of the shares could not be permitted to take advantage of their own neglect or 48 ——— Purchase of shares in other companies and their own shares—Trustee shareholders—Parties—A quiescence—The purchase by the directors of a joint stock company, on behalf of the company of shares in other joint stock companies unless expressly authorized by the memorandum of association is ultra vires. A joint stock company even though it be empowered by its memorandum of association to deal in the shares of other companies is not thereby empowered to deal in its own shares and a purchase by the directors of the company of its own shares on behalf of the company is therefore under such circumstances ultra vires. A shareholder in a joint stock company can maintain an action against the directors of such company to compel them to restore to the company funds of the company that have by them been employed in transactions that the directors have no authority to enter into without making the company a party to the suit. Where a shareholder purchased shares in a joint stock company knowing at the time that similar companies were in the habit of dealing in their own shares and those of other companies and believing that the company in question adopted the same practice but made no enquiry to ascertain whether or not such was the case nor made any objections to such dealings of the company until it was discovered they had resulted in loss it was held that he had by his own conduct lost his right to hold the directors personally liable in respect of such dealings and the result was held to be the same whether the said shareholder was beneficially entitled to his shares or merely a trustee of them for others. JEHANGIR BASTAMJI MODI v. At the time of issuing the prospectus there were no other members of the company besides the directors. Some of the material statements in the prospectus were untrue to the knowledge of the directors. The prospectus which was published on the 23rd June 1865 contained the following statements: "Capital fifty lakhs of rupees in 10,000 shares of Rs. 500 each with power to increase Rs. 50 per share to be paid on application and the balance by calls of Rs. 100 each to be made within not less than three months of each other. England but the operations of the company will not be delayed until they can be sent home and taken up. On 19th July 1865 the company advertised that all the Indian shares being subscribed for the share list is now closed and the letters of allotment will be issued at an early date. In truth not half the number of "Indian shares" were at any time subscribed for. On the 22nd November 1865 the directors resolved that a call of £100 per share be made upon the shareholders payable at the National Bank of India on the 15th December proximo. P. received notice of the call but did not pay it. On 18th April 1866 the directors directed the secretary to write to shareholders who had not paid their first call in full asking them to do so at once. R. G. who had not signed the articles of association on receipt of notice from the secretary requested to be allowed to withdraw his money forfeiting one fifth or to be allowed to hold five shares instead of fifty. The request was refused by the directors who on 18th July 1866 passed a further resolution that the defaulters among whom R. G. was named have notice sent them that unless the amount of the calls due on their respective shares together with interest thereon at the rate of 12 per cent per annum from the 15th December 1865 be paid into the National Bank of India Calcutta on or before the 7th August 1866 legal proceedings will be adopted against them for the recovery without further notice. R. G. on receiving notice of this resolution wrote through his attorneys informing the directors that he would apply to the High Court to have his name removed from the register of shareholders. The directors thereupon declared the shares to be forfeited. On 20th September 1866 a resolution to wind up the company voluntarily was passed at a general meeting of the shareholders and was afterwards confirmed. In the course of the winding up the liquidator applied to the Court under s. 164 Act X of 1866 to determine whether R. G. was entitled to a refund of the deposit money paid by him on the fifty shares allotted to him in the company or whether he was liable to pay as a contributory the call in respect of his shares made before the shares were forfeited. It was not until the hearing of this application that R. G. became aware of the facts which proved that the directors had published material statements which they knew to be untrue. Held that the issuing of a prospectus is an act comprised within the term management and conduct of the company's business. The statements made in the prospectus were the representations of the company. R. G. was entitled to have his contract to take 50 shares set aside and to be repaid the amount of his deposit money. formation of company effect of.—Laches effect of as a plea to avoid contract on the ground of misrepresentation—Contract Act (IX of 1872) ss. 1 and 19 Exception (1)—A misrepresentation was alleged to have been made by one B as agent of a company which was not then in existence. B became the managing director of the company upon its formation. Quære—Whether assuming that the representation was made by B that it was material and had been relied on and that it was untrue in fact the company which was not then in existence could be held to be bound by such misrepresentation. In a suit by the plaintiff company to recover money due upon certain shares taken by and allotted to the defendant the defendant in his pleadings set out and relied upon certain misrepresentations said to have been orally made by one B as the agent of the plaintiff company. At the trial he also sought to rely upon a misrepresentation in the prospectus of the company. Held that the defendant ought to be pinned down to the misrepresentations alleged in his pleadings and upon the faith of which he says he acted. It is not open to him to go into the question of misrepresentation in the prospectus. That the prospectus although issued by the promoters before the formation of the company was the basis of the contract between the company and the defendant for the allotment of the shares and if the misstatements therein alleged by the defendant were relied upon by him and were material to the contract the defendant would be entitled to rescind the contract and to repudiate the shares in the absence of laches or conduct on his part which would deprive him of that right. In re Metropolitan Coal Consumers Association Karbery's Case L. R. 1892 Ch. D. 1 followed. When a person makes a positive assertion relying upon the statement of another that a certain third party would become a director he is not warranted in making that assertion within the meaning of s. 19 of the Contract Act. That under the Exception in s. 19 of the Contract Act the contract even if caused by misrepresentation would not be voidable if the defendant had the means of discovering the truth with ordinary diligence. The application of that Exception is not restricted to cases where the party is fired with constructive notice of the true state of affairs. MOHUN LALL v. SRI GANGAJI COTTON MILLS CO.

Spinning and Weaving Company Limited directors. The bill was endorsed by S to the bank of Bombay was duly presented for payment to the drawee and protested for non payment. Subsequently to the date of the drawing of the bill the New Fleming Spinning and Weaving Company Limited, went into liquidation. The Bank of Bombay claimed as endorser of the bill to prove against the company as drawers. Held that assuming that companies under the Indian Companies Act (X of 1866) are by s 47 liable on bills of exchange drawn on their behalf or on account of persons acting under their authority the bill in question was not such a bill. Whether or not a note or bill must on the face of it express that it is made accepted or endorsed "by or on behalf or on account of the company yet there must be on the face of it that which shows that it was so made accepted or endorsed and which excludes the inference that it was made accepted or endorsed by or on behalf or on account of any other person. A bill or note may be in a certain sense on behalf of or on account of a company though there is upon its face no reference to the company even in the form of a description of the persons who actually make accept or endorse as being directors or secretary. As between such persons and the company such a bill or note may well be on behalf or on account of the company but it is not therefore so between the company and third parties. So far as third parties are concerned a company and the Indian Companies Act (X of 1866) can be made liable on a bill or note only when such bill or note on the face of it expresses that it was made accepted or endorsed by or on behalf or on account of the company or where that fact appears by necessary inference from what the face of the instrument itself shows. The addition to the signatures of individuals as makers drawers acceptors or endorser of notes or bills of their description as director or directors secretary treasurer and agent of a certain company is not considered to raise such inference as it does not exclude the supposition that though described as directors, etc they intended to make themselves personally liable to holders of the instrument though as between themselves and the company they may be entitled to be indemnified for anything they may have paid on account of the company in respect of such notes or bills. Dutton v Marsh 1 L R 6 Q B 361 followed. Rule No 21 of the Rules dated the 3rd of August 1866, made by the High Court of Judicature at Bombay under the powers given by s 189 of the Indian Companies Act (X of 1866) is ultra vires so far as it allows interest on debts or claims subsequent to the date of the order to wind up a company to creditors whose debts or claims do not carry interest. IN THE MATTER OF NEW FLEMING SPINNING AND WEAVING COMPANY

The memorandum contained the following words—If found desirable the company may effect purchases of cotton and produce in Bombay and ship to England and carry on such local trade as may seem profitable. The company went into liquidation in 1867. In April 1890 the present suit was filed against the defendant who had been one of the directors of the company and it was alleged that after the formation of the company the defendant and his co-directors had carried on speculative dealings in shares of other companies and had used the funds of the company for this purpose which was not warranted by the memorandum of association. The plaintiffs alleged that their dealings which were duly set forth in their plaint had resulted in a heavy loss to the company and they now sought to recover from the defendant the sum of Rs 37,700 13 5. There had been originally five directors of the company but at the date of suit two of them were dead and two had become insolvent. The plaint was filed in April 1890. Held (affirming the decision of PARSONS J.) (1) that the memorandum of association did not justify the directors of the company in dealing in shares of other companies and that the transactions complained of by the plaintiffs were ultra vires (2) that the directors were liable to replace the moneys of the company which they had misapplied by applying them to a purpose which was ultra vires. KATHIAWARI TRADING Co v VIRCHAND DITCHAND

the memorandum of association (1) of securing valuable property in the new port and town of C and its immediate vicinity and of improving the property so acquired by building upon letting or selling it as may be deemed most advisable and of undertaking the construction of public works calculated to facilitate trade and also of constructing tramways roads docks wharves and jetties upon the lands so to be acquired and for all other purposes that may be essential or conducive to the attainment of or connected with the above objects. Soon after the establishment of the company the directors were induced to take a share in and become liable for the cost of a mill for husking rice which it was intended to establish by a separate company and a considerable sum was advanced out of the funds of the company for the building of the mill and for machinery etc. The undertaking failed and the directors to avoid losing the advances of the company resolved to take over the mill and carry it on as the property of the company. They accordingly purchased a large quantity of rice which was husked at the mill and consigned to several firms in England. P M & Co were appointed agents of the company in Calcutta for the purpose of shipping the rice under letters from the directors guaranteeing that the company would pay at maturity any re-drafts which might be drawn on P M & Co as their agents in respect of the shipments. Bills of exchange were drawn by P M & Co on the firms to which the respective consignments were made and these bills were sold in the ordinary course of business in Calcutta. P M & Co realizing the proceeds for the benefit of the company. These bills were honoured by the respective consignees. The rice was sold in Fowland at a considerable loss and re-drafts for the deficiency were drawn on P U & Co or on the company. The company went into liquidation during these transactions. Some of these re-drafts had been accepted by the company and others merely registered by the liquidators as claims against the company. Claims were now made on the company by the drawers or endorsees of these re-drafts but the liquidators declined to pay them stating that the proceedings in connection with the consignments of rice were not authorized by the memorandum and articles of association of the company and that therefore the company was not liable for any losses in respect of such consignments. Held that trading in rice was a transaction ultra vires of the company the directors therefore could not bind the company and the consignees could not recover in respect of the shipments. The company was not liable on the re-drafts it had no power to issue bills of exchange or to accept the re-drafts and therefore the holders of those which had been in fact accepted were in no better position than the holders of those which had not been accepted. IN THE MATTER OF PORT CANNING COMPANY

Advances of sums of money to the company amounting in 1890 to over Rs 1,00,000. No previous sanction was given to any of these advances. On the 4th October 1891 an extraordinary general meeting of shareholders was held at which a resolution was passed sanctioning a mortgage to K of the whole of the company's property except a certain garden to secure the payment of a sum not exceeding Rs 1,00,000 for advances already made and to be made with interest at 7 per cent. This resolution was confirmed on the 16th of October and the mortgage was executed on the 2nd of December 1891. Subsequently the company was ordered to be wound up and K advanced a claim for Rs 20,787. Held that there is a distinction between loans which a company is empowered to raise under its borrowing powers and debts which in meeting its current liabilities and in the actual carrying on of its affairs the company or its agents on its behalf have contracted and that the advances made by K did not amount to a borrowing within the meaning of the articles of association. In re Cefu Cycles Mining Company L R 7 Eq 85 and Waterlow v Sharp L R 8 Eq 501 followed. 66 ——— Winding up under supervision of Court—Order for dissolution of company—Voluntary winding up—Official liquidator—Companies Act VI of 1882—As a general rule a winding up of a company under supervision of the Court should be terminated in the same way as a purely voluntary winding up—see under r. 166 and 157 of the Companies Act VI of 1882. Although under r. 157 of the Companies Act VI of 1882, the Court has power to make an order dissolving a company in the course of winding up subject to its supervision such cases must be exceptional and can only occur when the Court has deemed it proper to carry on the winding up under supervision in a manner such as clearly to approximate to a winding up by the Court. The ordinary rule is the other way and it is reasonable that it should be so as generally a winding up under supervision is not conducted under so intimate a control of the Court as to put the liquidator in a position to judge of the correctness of the liquidators' action and the completeness of the winding up. So far as the Court does not interfere a winding up under supervision remains essentially a voluntary winding up but the Court in a winding up under supervision has full authority to interfere and to exercise to any extent the power which it might have exercised if an order had been made for winding up the company by the Court. The words official liquidator in s. 160 of the Companies Act VI of 1882 do not include the liquidators in a winding up under supervision. 76. ——— Notice of proceeding—Service of notices and orders—Suit against contributory—Contributory in India to English company—Last known address or place of abode—Rule 63 of the rules of 1862 of the High Court Bombay—The London Bombay and Mediterranean Bank a joint stock company registered under the English Companies Act 1862 was ordered to be wound up by an order of the Court of Chancery in England in 1866 and by a subsequent order of the said Court made in the winding up of the bank it was ordered that service of any notice summons order or other proceedings in these matters might be effected by putting such notice etc. into any post office either in England or at Bombay duly addressed to such contributories being past members according to their respective last known addresses or places of abode. By a final balance order dated 5th June 1879 it was ordered by the Court of Chancery in England that the persons named in the schedule to the said order being contributories as past members of the said bank should within four days after the service of the said order pay the amount set opposite to their names with interest from the 15th March 1879. The defendant's name appeared in the said schedule and the present suit was brought to recover the sum therein appearing due from him to the bank viz Rs 900. The defendant denied that he had ever held shares in the plaintiffs' bank or that he ever had notice of any of the proceedings in the winding up. At the trial it appeared that all the various orders and notices to shareholders made in the winding up of the bank prior to the balance order of the 5th June 1879 had been sent by post to the defendant addressed to him at No 36 Fannasvadi and were all returned undelivered. It was proved that he had never resided there but that his brother had a place of business there and that the defendant used occasionally to go there for the purpose of attending to his brother's business. It further appeared that the residence of the defendant as given in the register of shareholders was Loharchall and not 36 Fannasvadi. Held that the notices orders etc. prior to the order of 5th June 1879 were not so served as to make the defendant subject to that final order that the obligation to obey the command of the Court of Chancery contained therein had not arisen as against the defendant and that consequently the present suit must fail. It is a leading principle of English law always understood except when expressly excluded that a person proceeded against in a Court must have due notice of the proceeding failing such notice he is entitled to protection if the judgment or order obtained in his absence is made the ground of a suit in any Court governed by English principles. The Court of Chancery in England had not in this case so called the defendant before it as to enable it in his absence to pronounce a definitive order against him or to bind him in the Court of his domicile although he was included in the order of the Court of Chancery. The fact that the defendant frequently attended his brother's place of business at No 36 Fannasvadi was not sufficient to make that place his last known address. If there had been evidence that he had used No 36 Fannasvadi as an address for receiving letters that might probably have been sufficient. It would then have been known as his address at least as an address. The address or residence of a member of a company entered in the register of shareholders although sufficiently ascertained for the purpose of communication from the company is not therefore ascertained for a service of legal proceedings. For the purpose of such service care must be taken to find out the last known place of abode of the alleged contributory and to effect the substituted service there. LONDON BOMBAY AND MEDITERRANEAN BANK & GOVIND RAMCHANDRA

Companies Act, 1862 and the winding up order was made by the Court of Chancery in England on the 20th July 1866. By a subsequent order made on the winding up it was ordered by the said Court that service of notices etc. of the various proceedings might be effected on contributories being present members by posting the same either in England or in Bombay duly addressed to the last known address or place of abode of such contributories. The Court of Chancery on the 16th December 1878 made an order for a call of £10 per share upon the contributories and on the 5th June 1879 the final balance order was made by the Court. This suit was brought to recover the sum of ₹754-7-0 alleged to be due by the defendant as a contributory in the list under the said balance order. The plaintiff was an assignee of the bank. The defendant who resided at Sumari in the Surat District denied that he was a shareholder in the bank and alleged that he had had no notice of the various proceedings in the winding up. At the hearing it was proved that one of the notices which had been posted in Bombay addressed to the defendant at Sumari in the Surat District was a notice of the intended application for a call of £10 per share dated the 27th August 1878 had been returned undelivered to the Dead Letter Office having been carelessly addressed. No further steps were taken to serve it on the defendant. Held that the defendant not having received any summons or notice to attend the hearing of the application for a call of £10 per share was not liable to the call made in his absence. Courts in British India when called upon to give effect to a foreign judgment should insist upon a strict proof of the validity and service of summonses and other processes alleged to have emanated from a foreign Court and made a foundation for a liability to be enforced here by Courts that have no cognizance of the case on its merits. *Rousillon v. ginal letter of the address which it bore but the press copy was contained in the press-copy letter book of the company and was proved to be in the handwriting of a deceased secretary of the company whose duty it was to despatch letters after they had been copied in the letter book. The objector denied having received the letter or any notice of allotment. Held that the Court should not draw the inference that the original letter was properly addressed or posted that the press-copy letter was inadmissible in evidence and that there was no proof of the communication of any notice of allotment. The evidence adduced by the official liquidator to show that the defendant was a member of the company and so liable as a contributory consisted of the register of members a letter written by the objector in reply thereto written by a managing director of the company and the oral testimony of the director himself. The objector adduced no evidence at all. Held that the official liquidator might if he had chosen to do so have put the register in evidence and waited before giving any further evidence until the objector had given some to displace the prima facie evidence afforded by the register or to impugn the character of the register but his case must be looked at as a whole and having taken the line which he did he must take the consequences of his other evidence contradicting or impugning the prima facie evidence of the register and notwithstanding that the objector gave no evidence the register was not evidence. PAN DAS CHAKRABARTI v. 81. ——— Transfer of assets to new company—Companies Act (X of 1866) ss 149 151 and 156—Rights of creditors of transferring company—Dissentient shareholders—Sanction of Court—By special resolutions passed on the 3rd July 1878 and confirmed on 31st July 1878 the shareholders of the Fleming Spinning and Weaving Company (Limited) resolved that the company should be wound up voluntarily and that all the assets of the said company should be transferred by the liquidators to a new company then intended shortly to be formed and registered in Bombay called the New Fleming Spinning and Weaving Company Limited and that the liquidators should receive as the consideration for such transfer certain fully paid up shares in the new company for distribution among the shareholders of the old company. The said transfer was to be made subject to a covenant on the part of the new company to perform all the agreements and to discharge all the debts and liabilities of the old company. The new company was duly formed and registered on the same day (31st July 1878) and the specified number of shares was delivered to the liquidators of the old company for distribution among the shareholders of the old company. Two of the said shareholders J and H the holders of 60 and 20 shares respectively dissented from the special resolutions in the manner provided by s. 175 of the Indian Companies Act (X of 1866) and required the liquidators to purchase their interests. The matter was thereupon referred to arbitration. In the case of H an award was made and filed but further proceedings were stayed by order of Court. In the case of J no award was made and he brought a suit which was still pending against both the old and new companies and the liquidators to recover Rs 75,000 the alleged value of his shares. In pursuance of the resolution the liquidators of the old company handed over the assets to the new company but no formal grant or assignment in writing of the said assets was executed. They remained in its possession until the 17th January 1879 on which day the said new company was ordered to be wound up by the Court. The liquidators were appointed official liquidators and as such were in possession of the assets at the date of the petition. No property whatever remained in the hands of the old company except the shares remaining to be distributed among the dissentient shareholders. The new company had discharged debts of the old company to the amount of six lakhs of rupees and there remained debts of over three lakhs due by the old company. Until after the new company had become insolvent no creditor of the old company had expressed his dissent from the above special resolution or had refused to accept the new company as his debtor. On 1st March 1879 the voluntary winding up of the old company was directed to be continued as a winding up under the supervision of the Court. The official liquidators of the new company now presented a petition praying that the above special resolutions might be sanctioned by the Court. Certain unsatisfied creditors of the old company opposed the petition insisting that the sanction should be refused except upon the condition that they should be paid in full out of the property of the old company. The two dissentient shareholders J and H also objected to the sanction being given unless provisions were made for the satisfaction of their claims as soon as they should be ascertained. Held that under the special circumstances of the case, the sanction of the Court should be given to the resolutions but subject to the value of the interest of the two dissentient shareholders being paid or adequately secured. Such order to be without prejudice to any question between the creditors of the old company and the dissentient shareholders. IN RE FLEMING SPINNING AND WEAVING COMPANY [L. L. R. 3 Bom. 299]

J a dissentient member of the old company sent on the 5th August and therefore within the seven days provided by that section a notice expressing his dissent from such resolution but the notice did not contain the requisition provided for by the latter part of that section requiring the liquidators either to abstain from carrying the resolution into effect or to purchase his interest in the company. The liquidators however replied on the 23rd August by offering to purchase J's shares which offer being refused they and J entered into an agreement on the 12th October in pursuance of the provisions in that behalf contained in the Indian Companies Act X of 1866, for the reference of the dispute as to the price to be paid to the said J for his shares in the F S & W Co (Ltd) to two arbitrators and an umpire to be named by them. The agreement fixed a short date for the making of the award. The arbitration was entered on but the time limited for the award having expired without any award being made J filed a suit on the 26th of December to recover the value of his shares

94. — Claims on assets—Precedence of judgment-debt due to Secretary of State—Stay of execution of judgment-debt—A judgment debt due to the Crown in Bombay entitled to the same precedence in execution as a like judgment-debt in England, if there be no special legislative provision affecting that right in the particular case. Under similar circumstances a judgment-debt due to the Secretary of State in Council for India in Bombay entitled to the like precedence and the reason is that such debt is vested in the Crown and when realized falls into the State treasury. The nature of the cause of action in respect of which the judgment was recovered does not affect the right of the Crown or of the Secretary of State in Council for India to priority. As the Crown is not either expressly or by implication bound by the Indian Companies Act (X of 1866) and as an order made under that Act for the winding-up of a company does not work any alteration of property such an order does not enable the Court to stay the execution of a judgment debt due to the Crown or to the Secretary of State in Council for India. It is a principle recognized by the laws of many countries that claims of the Crown or State are entitled to precedence—e.g. the Hindu Pottan and French codes, the laws of Spain, the United States of America, Scotland and England. SECRETARY OF STATE IN COUNCIL FOR INDIA v BOMBAY LANDING AND SHIPPING COMPANY

On the facts it was not a case of illegal seizure and detention of cattle but rather one of theft as all the elements of that offence were present and the accused should have been charged with and tried for that offence. Held further that the sentence of imprisonment in default of payment of the compensation was not warranted by law. Compensation may be levied as a fine and the ordinary mode of levying fines is laid down in s 346 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. 30. Exatous charge—Criminal Procedure Code 1861 s. 20—Where a complainant presents three charges of three distinct offences, two of which are offences triable under Ch. IV and one under Ch. IV of the Code of Criminal Procedure a Magistrate may award amends to the accused under s. 20 of the Code if he considers the charge with reference to the cases under Ch. IV to have been vexatious. MOHD. MOHAMMAD GHOSSE alias MADHUB CHUNDER GHOSSE v. JOYRAM HAZRAH 13 W. R., Cr. 39

40. Exatous charge—Criminal Procedure Code 1861 s. 20—Where a judicial officer finds over anxiety for the administration of justice in his Court makes a mistake in taking steps against parties whose conduct appears to obstruct the Court of Justice somewhat too hastily and without due circumspection it is not to be presumed that he had acted vexatiously in the sense of s. 20 of the Criminal Procedure Code or otherwise than in perfect good faith so as to justify an award of compensation to the person who was prosecuted by his directions. ANONYMOUS CASE

[15 W. R. 508]

41. Exatous charge—Criminal Procedure Code s. 200—Exatous or frivolous charge—Case instituted upon complaint—A case instituted by the police on a complaint to them is not instituted "upon complaint" in the sense of s. 20 of the Criminal Procedure Code and therefore in such a case an order awarding compensation made under that section is illegal. IN THE MATTER OF THE COMPLAINT OF ISKBI ISHREE v. or upon information given to a police officer. A Magistrate and consequently that section has no application to a case instituted on a police report or on information given by a police officer. QUEEN—Whether under the section a Magistrate has power to make an order of imprisonment in default of payment of the compensation awarded? A police constable arrested a rafter and charged him before a Magistrate with an offence under s. 34 of Act V of 1861. The Magistrate acquitted the accused and directed under s. 560 of the Code that the police constable should pay him Rs. 20 as compensation or undergo simple imprisonment for a fortnight. Held that as the section had no application to the case the order was illegal being made without jurisdiction. Held further that even if the Magistrate had power under the Code to pass an order for imprisonment in default of payment of compensation awarded under s. 560 it was illegal to pass such an order until some attempt had been made to levy the amount in the manner provided by s. 386 for the levying of a fine. RANJEETAN KOORMI v. [I. L. R., 21 Cal. 970]

45. Penal Code, ss. 193 and 211—Sanction to prosecute and a writ of compensation—Imprisonment in default of payment of compensation—Sentence—Legality of—The complainant was directed to pay Rs. 50 as compensation to the accused or in default to suffer imprisonment for one month under s. 560 of the Code of Criminal Procedure and sanction was also granted to prosecute him for offences under ss. 211 and 193 of the Penal Code. Held that if the Magistrate thought that this was a case in which a prosecution under ss. 211 and 193 of the Penal Code should be sanctioned he ought not to have taken action under the provisions of s. 560 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. Held also that the order for imprisonment in default of payment of the compensation awarded was illegal. JAMJEETAN KOORMI v. DURGACHARAN SARDHU KHAN I. L. R. 21 Cal. 979 followed. SHIB NATH CHONG v. SARAT CHUNDER SARKAR

46. Order for imprisonment in default of payment of compensation—Although compensation awarded under s. 560 of the Code of Criminal Procedure is recoverable as if it were a fine it is not competent to a Magistrate immediately upon ordering a complainant to pay compensation to direct that he should in default be sentenced to imprisonment. QUEEN EMPRESS v. JUMNA

I. L. R. 18 All. 98

47. Compensation for frivolous and vexatious complaint—Order in the alternative for imprisonment—It is not competent to a Court in awarding compensation under s. 560 of the Code of Criminal Procedure against a complainant for making a frivolous and vexatious complaint to order at the same time that in default of payment of the compensation the person against whom the order is made suffer imprisonment. QUEEN EMPRESS v. 37. — Omission to take sworn examination of the complainant—Complainant merely called upon to attest complaint in writing—Criminal Procedure Code (1882) s 200—It is not a sufficient compliance with the provisions of s 200 of the Code of Criminal Procedure where a complainant who has presented a written complaint is merely called upon to attest the complaint on oath no separate sworn statement of the complainant being recorded by or under the orders of the Magistrate to whom the complaint is presented. Queen Empress v Murphy I L R. 9 All. 666 distinguished KSERI v MUHAMMAD BAKISH I L R 18 All 221

38. — Omission of examination of complainant on oath—Dismissal of complaint—Criminal Procedure Code (Act X of 1882) s 197 200 202 203—Complaint against a public servant—Upon receipt of a petition of complaint it is the duty of a Magistrate as directed by s 200 of the Criminal Procedure Code (Act X of 1882) to examine the complainant on oath. Until he has done so it is not competent for him to dismiss the complaint under s 203 of the Code. It is an irregular proceeding on the part of a Magistrate in place of examining the complainant on oath to call on the person complained against to submit a report as to the truth or otherwise of the allegations made against him. If an investigation into the subject matter of the complaint is considered necessary it should be conducted according to the provisions of s 203 either by the Magistrate himself or by some properly qualified officer. A complaint against a public servant such as the Chairman of a Municipality must be dealt with in exactly the same manner as any other complaint and the consideration of the question as to the applicability of s 197 of the Criminal Procedure Code to the case should be postponed until after the complainant has been examined on oath in accordance with the law. SATYA CHARAN GHOSH v CHAIRMAN UTTERPARA MUNICIPALITY [3 C. was without jurisdiction. Where a complainant whose complaint had been reported false by the police complained to the Magistrate and asked him to try the complaint and the Magistrate did not examine the complainant himself but made over the case to a Subordinate Magistrate for judicial enquiry or report—Held that the Magistrate had no authority for this procedure. A complainant must be examined by the Magistrate who receives the complaint or by some Magistrate to whom he has transferred the case. When a complainant has been examined he is entitled to have the person accused brought before the Magistrate and it is only when the Magistrate has reason not to believe the truth of the complaint from his examination that this can properly be refused and an investigation held. MAHADEO SINGH v. When a complaint is made before a Magistrate but not reduced to writing he cannot under s. 273 of the Code of Criminal Procedure refer the case to a Deputy Magistrate for trial. Ss. 420 and 429 do not apply to a case where the prosecution is not commenced by a complaint as directed in the Code. Held that the subordinate Magistrate exercising second class powers had no jurisdiction to deal with the offence triable only by a Court of Sessions and that the enquiry ought not to have been directed to be made by him. That the District Magistrate, to whom the complaint was made was alone competent to deal with it and that he could not make it over for enquiry to any subordinate Magistrate without having previously himself examined the complainant. That the enquiry ordered could neither be regarded as one under s. 202 of the Code of Criminal Procedure nor could the proceedings be regarded as held under s. 203 of the Code and that the order for the prosecution of the complainant was therefore not made according to law. BUDDHATH MATHO v.
